Republicans do better here than in state result

True to tradition, Winchester voted more heavily for Republican candidates in Tuesday's elections than voters statewide.

Joyce Hampers, the GOP challenger to state treasurer Robert Crane, won the race in Winchester, getting 4,095 votes to Crane's 3,787. Hampers won precincts three through seven, where Republicans also won two other races for constitutional offices.

Crane was the easy winner in statewide results.

Former U.S. Attorney Edward Harrington, a Republican, also won Winchester in the race for state attorney general, outpolling former U.S. Rep. Jim Shannon 4,261 to 3,858. Harrington won precincts 3-7 but Shannon got nearly 60 percent statewide.

House minority leader Bill Robinson, the GOP candidate for auditor, won only 37 percent statewide in his race against Joe DeNucci but was almost a winner in Winchester. DeNucci got 3,865 votes to Robinson's 3,780. Again, Robinson won precincts 3-7.

Gov. Michael Dukakis overwhelmed Republican challenger George Kariotis in his re-election bid, getting nearly 70 percent in Massachusetts overall. Dukakis also carried every Winchester precinct and won 5,123 to 3,200 with about 62 percent of the vote.

Incumbent secretary of state Michael Connelly, who said this will be his final term, defeated Republican challenger Deborah Cochran in Winchester and the state. In town, Connelly got 4,662 votes and Cochran 3,073 and carried every precinct.

Incumbent state senator Dick

Kraus easily defeated independent challenger Helen Metros in the district, which includes Arlington, Lexington and Woburn, and in Winchester.

Kraus got 4,804 votes in town to Metros' 2,394.

Congressman Ed Markey, unopposed Democrat, got 5,820 votes while Sixth District Councillor Joseph Langone III got 4,455 votes. District attorney Scott Harshbarger, also unopposed, won 6,192 votes.

Sheriff John McGonigle, unopposed, won 4,835 votes.

Democrat Bill Schmidt won Winchester's support in the race for county commissioner, outpolling Republican Albert Onessimo 3,740 to 2,814 in town. Schmidt won overall in the district but Onessimo won Winchester precincts five and six.

Voter turnout drops a bit

Winchester voters turned out in slightly smaller numbers than expected Tuesday.

Town clerk Carolyn Ward, who expected about 70 percent of registered voters to visit the polls, reported only a 63 percent turnout. Winchester people still vote in far greater numbers than Massachusetts people as a whole, who turned out at a 50 percent rate, well above the predicted 38 percent level.

The highest turnout in recent history was 85 percent in the presidential election of 1984, Ward said.

All Winchester results were in the town clerk's office at 10:50 p.m. and Ward completed her work at midnight Tuesday.

Tuesday's elections were the last for the current precincts, whose lines will be re-drawn for Jan. 1, 1987, Ward said.

Town hires pro to plan housing

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Amid several surprising developments, town meeting members voted Monday to hire an outside consultant to plan for the town's long-range housing needs.

A high-rise housing project on the Woburn Loop was among the surprise elements during the first session of the fall town meeting.

After lengthy discussion, town meeting voted 110-24 to spend $20,000 to hire outside help.

Winchester Housing Authority (WHA) member Bill McCarthy, arguing against hiring a professional to create long-range housing plans, said the WHA's long-range plan included a multi-story complex on the Loop.

Moderator John Sullivan asked McCarthy to repeat his statement. He did.

Article 10 on the town meeting warrant proposed creation of a long-range planning committee of one selectman, one planning board member and one WHA member, with the town manager an ex-officio member, to work with a hired professional.

The group will have $22,000 from surplus and must bring a final plan to the spring town meeting.

Robert Frank, vice chairman of a special study committee created by the spring 1986 town meeting to study low-and-moderate income housing, said all other articles for the current meeting "address short-range goals."

Frank said Winchester's percentage of assisted and subsidized housing units, including handicapped and elderly, is well below average at 1.8 percent.

Statistics show Acton at 5.1 percent, Andover 3.8, Belmont 3.3, Concord 3.5, Danvers 5.1, Lexington 3.3, Marblehead 3.6, Milton 1.2, Reading zero, Wakefield 5.3 and Wellesley 3.2.

"Without meaning to criticize, the people charged with the task have neither the time nor the expertise to engage in long-range planning for housing," Frank said.

He compared Winchester's housing dilemma with the downtown revitalization. Frank said downtown was discussed at length by town boards but "didn't move forward until we hired a professional consultant."

Finance committee chairman Gerry Polcari recommended hiring a consultant, saying the town needed a "non-emotional, professional" analysis.

Wade Welch, chairman of selectmen, also recommended the article.

"There are now seven town boards (Please see HOUSING page 18)

WHA has Loop plans

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Selectmen knew about a housing authority plan for the Woburn Loop in August.

Mary Meader, chairman of the Winchester Housing Authority (WHA), said Tuesday that WHA executive director Jerry Keefe wrote to the board of selectmen Aug. 5, making the board aware of the housing authority's intention to explore "multi-uses" of the Woburn Loop, the abandoned railroad right-of-way.

The letter suggested the southern portion of the Loop, from Cross Street to Skillings Road, might be used for offices, family housing and/or elderly housing.

It did not contain any reference to a high-rise project, as suggested Monday by WHA member Bill McCarthy, but selectmen were aware the WHA had future plans, she said, which did not include a high-rise.

Meader said the housing authority has been "the last to know" when letters arrived from state officials with the Executive Office of Communities and Development, the state agency requiring the town to provide seven units of low-to-moderate income housing.

In addition, she said, "someone from Winchester" was responsible for scuttling plans to locate such housing at the former Girl Scout camp on South Border Road.

"The site was OK'd by the state but on June 18, the EOCD said someone from Winchester called and said to throw out that site," Meader said. "Nobody from the housing authority made any such call."

Meader said the housing authority never discussed big housing complexes and would "never" build any.

She said the Aug. 5 letter to selectmen was a part of the public record.

Saltmarsh tops Casey

Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, Winchester's representative on Beacon Hill for 12 years, will return to the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Saltmarsh defeated challenger Paul Casey with 54 percent of the overall vote in Winchester and four Stoneham precincts.

Saltmarsh easily carried Winchester, winning 4,756 to 3,719, but Casey was very close in Stoneham, where Saltmarsh had 2,506 votes and Casey 2,439.

Saltmarsh won all eight precincts in Winchester. He took the first precinct 631-448, the second 623-333, the third 599-456, the fourth 605-552, the fifth 562-469, the sixth 665-552, the seventh 565-504 and the eighth 506-405.

Voters overwhelmingly approved creation of a county charter commission and supported Paul Meaney of Woburn, a county employee, for the post.

Meaney got 3,552 votes in Winchester while Robert Rotberg of Lexington got 2,631. Rotberg won the sixth precinct and lost the fifth by only two votes, 376-374.

School officials continue to ponder adoption of a drug, alcohol curriculum

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

A program to educate Winchester public school students about alcohol abuse has been under review since June, and police officer Daniel McGee has asked the school committee not to "sit on it" any longer.

Last week, youth officer McGee told school board members 70 percent of Winchester's junior high students have tried sex, drugs and/or alcohol (mostly alcohol).

He encouraged board members to start a kindergarten through 12th grade drug and alcohol awareness curriculum.

Last spring Winchester purchased a K-12 alcohol program, called Cambridge and Somerville Program for Alcohol Rehabilitation (CASPAR).

According to Frank Bianco, director of special education, the schools received the materials at the end of the school year.

He said Winchester High School teachers Tom Walsh and Peggy Sullivan and elementary school adjustment counselor Judy Messinger are reviewing them.

"I don't think we're behind the times at all. It's identical to how we introduced computers in the schools. We took a good hard look. The community traditionally likes to take a hard look," said Bianco.

Bianco said they are looking at the merits of CASPAR and several other programs.

David Ackerman, assistant superintendent of curriculum, said,

"I've heard some good things about the program (CASPAR) but there are other programs worth looking at."

"I think we should do more than we're doing. The time is right to do a better job at the elementary level. But, in an area as important and sensitive as this, we should look before we leap," said Ackerman.

Priscilla Quirk, an employee of CASPAR, said the program is used by schools in every state and in seven countries. The program is approved by the federal Department of Education.

Quirk said she visited Winchester last spring to present the program. She said because of the number of communities the program serves, she has not followed up with Winchester.

"He (Winchester youth officer McGee) has been consistent in keeping in touch with me," said Quirk.

McGee told the school committee last Tuesday about the alcohol and drug problem in Winchester. He said there is still a drinking problem in town.

McGee, referring to the CASPAR program and a need for elementary education, asked the board not to "sit on the program" any longer, he said.

By 1989, the state will mandate elementary education on drugs and alcohol, McGee said.

CASPAR is not the only program Winchester could choose.

A second program used in nearby towns is offered by Mount Auburn Prevention Center in Waltham. The center serves 20 surrounding communities including Arlington, Lexington, Belmont and Concord.

The center offers a drug and alcohol prevention program, "Making Friends, Making Choices."

Mt. Auburn director Jan Hoyt says her objective is to train teachers about preventive treatment and enforcements.

"It's interesting they (Winchester officials) haven't contacted us for any services. They know we're here," says Hoyt.

"Winchester stands out. They're known for being a pretty good school system. We're puzzled and curious," she says.

In 1986, Hoyt says, her only contact with the town has been through McGee.

In 1982, McCall Junior High School principal Vandy French consulted the center to set up a prom campaign at his school.

Hoyt says, "McGee is legitimately trying to get something going." School board members last Tuesday night talked about ways to curtail weekend partying among students.

Hoyt says, "What works is a long-term commitment."

Hoyt says most communities receive grant money to run their programs. "If Winchester wanted grant money they'd get it," she says.

"The reality is that they don't have to give money as much as they have to give time and commitment," says Hoyt.

The center is staffed by employees with a minimum of a master's degree. "They're very experienced," says Hoyt.

Hoyt's staff trains teachers and parents through a three-day training workshop. McGee participated in the program last March.

Mount Auburn Center acts as a consultant to school systems in New York, Virginia, Texas, Illinois and Vancouver, Canada.

Hoyt says her staff works with school systems individually to design a program to fit each system's needs.

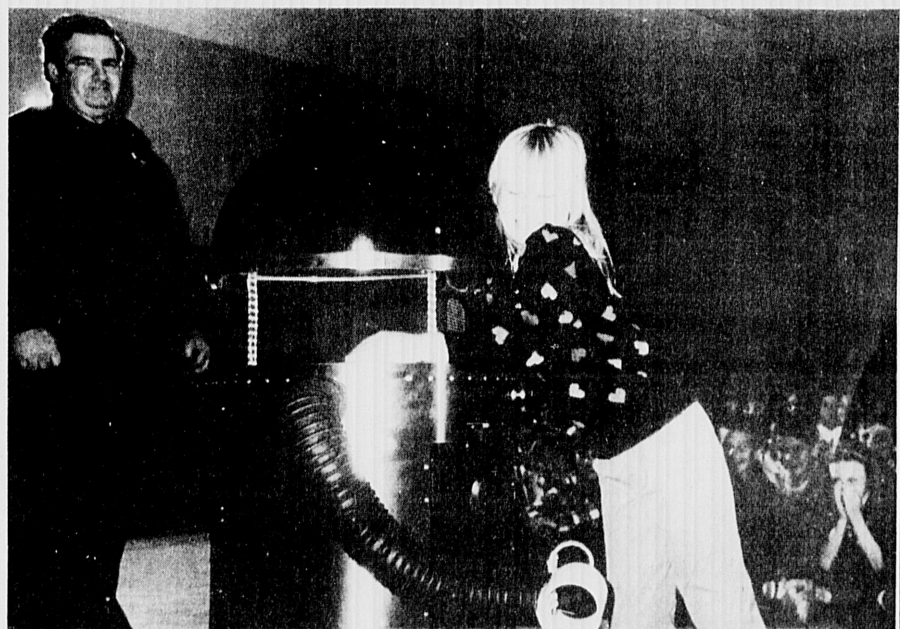

Although Winchester has no formal K-12 program, superintendent Charles Mitsakos told school board members last month a new community-wide effort is needed.

"The fact is that some parents won't face up to their responsibility," Mitsakos said.

Mitsakos cautioned, however, "There is conflicting research about the results of drug education programs. Some research says education encourages increased use. And some says that if you make the presentation too dramatic, students are turned off."

In the November 1986 issue of Reader's Digest, a survey indicated 43 percent of the nation's seventh graders have tried alcohol.

In a Winchester High School survey last winter, 83 percent of Winchester High School students said they tried alcohol. No study of Winchester junior high students has been made.

Robot has anti-drug message

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

A computerized robot named Fred mesmerized Winchester elementary school students while encouraging youngsters to steer clear of drugs and alcohol.

Winchester elementary school students visited with the robot this week to learn dangers of alcohol and drug use.

The voice-activated robot captivated more than 100 Muraco School students Monday in the school's gymnasium.

The Winchester Elks Club donated

$1,520 to sponsor the program. The robot visited the five elementary schools, The Bartlett School and St. Mary's School.

Through various games, the computerized robot emphasized the need for students to respect themselves and their bodies. "Each and every one of us is special," the voice belted.

Winchester safety officer Kevin Mawn helped the robot choose eager youngsters to talk with.

"Would you get into a car with a driver who has just smoked marijuana?" the robot asked.

In unison, students yelled, "No." Fred shook hands with students and talked to them about making decisions.

"You only have one body and you have to take care of it," the robot told his young audience.

When friends ask you to try alcohol or drugs for fun, the robot said, what do you say? "No," rang through the Muraco gymnasium.

The robot has visited several area towns and is owned by Robotic Educational Devices of Chestnut Hill.

POLICE LOG

Worcester man for theft and OUI

Winchester police officers Eric Benson and Thomas Romeo arrested John Droham of Worcester for larceny of a car, operating under the influence of alcohol and operating without a license.

At about 5:30 a.m. Nov. 4 the officers stopped a Buick heading south on Main Street near Ridgefield Road.

Police received information that the same car was stolen minutes before from a Glenwood Avenue residence, police said.

Police arrested the man and took him to Winchester station. Droham refused a breathalyzer test, police said. He was later bailed for appearance in Fourth District Court in Woburn, police said.

Tuesday, Nov. 4

At 7:26 a.m., a Kirk Street resident told police someone threw a rock through the windshield of his 1980 Chevrolet pick-up truck.

Monday, Nov. 3

At 6:30 a.m., Winchester police assisted state police in arresting Ralph P. Tully Jr. of Woburn. Tully was wanted to answer charges of rape, breaking and entering and assault in a dwelling.

Officer John Guarante assisted the police at Washington and Swanton streets.

Tully was arrested and booked at Winchester station. Tully was released to state police.

At 9:45 a.m., police found an unregistered car on Laurel Hill Lane. The 1976 blue Mercury Monarch was towed.

At 2:47 p.m., a Harvard Street resident told police someone smashed the glass of her front door.

Sunday, Nov. 2

At 12:16 a.m., an Olde Village Drive resident told police someone stole a $200 stereo from his 1977 Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

Saturday, Nov. 1

At 10 a.m., a Winslow Road resident told police someone smashed the rear window of his 1985 Buick.

At 4:37 p.m., a Stratford Road resident told police someone threw eggs at her front door.

At 12:30 a.m., police reported a car accident at Amberwood Drive and Johnson Road. A Buckman Drive resident, driving an Audi sedan, collided with a Ridge Street resident, driving a 1977 Lincoln. Damage to both cars was minor.

At 12:52 a.m., a Washington Street resident told police someone smashed the front and rear windshield of his 1976 blue Toyota.

At 12:52 a.m., an Eaton Street resident told police someone smashed the rear windshield and the right rear window of a cab.

At 4:16 a.m., officer James Covino reported a vandalized 1981 Toyota on Palmer Street. Police said the car's driver side window was smashed.

Friday, Oct. 31

At 10:17 p.m., police confiscated a paint pellet pistol from an Everett Avenue youth.

Police observed a white Toyota station wagon traveling north on Yale Street. Police stopped the car at the corner of Yale Street and Foxcroft Road.

Police found an empty egg carton and a paint pellet pistol in the car.

Chamber hosts dinner Nov. 18

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce sponsors a group for business and professional women who meet monthly to discuss areas of mutual concern.

At 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, the chamber will host a dinner and representatives from Cambridgeport Savings Bank will discuss how banks can assist a new or existing business. Guests can ask specific questions.

Everyone is encouraged to bring business cards to exchange.

The event is open to the public. For information and reservations, contact the chamber office at 729-8870.

Dinner will be catered by Sweet Deliverance Inc. of Winchester.

Shape Yourself is club topic

"Shaping Yourself Positively" will be the theme of the next meeting of the Winchester Club—International Training in Communication (ITC). The meeting will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, Nov. 10, in the meeting room of the Winchester Public Library, 80 Washington St. President Madeline Murray of Somerville will preside.

Evelyn Tyner of W. Medford will lead the education session on pointers in developing assertiveness. The topic mistress, Gail Connor of Malden, using newspaper want ads, will encourage impromptu speeches by members on the evening's theme.

The program will feature three speakers. Claudine Herron of Cambridge, Murray and Paula Gassman of Winchester will speak on three aspects of assertiveness—image, thoughts, and behavior.

ITC meetings are open to people interested in improving skills in communication and leadership. For details, call Carol Johnson at 665-1796.

Newcomers plan monthly coffee

The Winchester Newcomers' Club will conduct its monthly morning coffee from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, in the second floor choir room of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church on Dix Street.

Child care will be provided for a small fee. All are welcome to drop in and meet new friends.

Job Bank has employment

Students in search of extra spending money or part-time employment are invited to the Job Bank to have the staff match them to a job.

The Job Bank has many employment opportunities for youths in grades 7-12. Positions available include babysitting, retail and office help, yardwork and more.

The Youth Center is located at McCall Junior High School. Call 721-7129 for more information.

Four to ski with area club

Winchester residents Karen, David and Margot Bauman, starting their first year in the Massachusetts Ski Club, will join Michelle Tadros, also from Winchester, who will return for her fourth year.

All have signed up to ski Saturdays in the Northern New Hampshire program. The first trip is Dec. 13.

Tuesday parade will honor town's veterans

The Winchester Veterans Day Committee has invited all Winchester veterans to participate in the observance Tuesday, Nov. 11.

Commander Warren Bolivar of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Commander John Feeney of the American Legion said uniforms are not required.

Veterans will meet on Laraway Road by the Winchester Common, at 10:30 a.m. to depart for the war memorial at Main Street and the Mystic Valley Parkway at 10:45. Marchers will then proceed to the honor roll at the town hall. Those unable to march should join the group at the honor roll for a brief memorial service.

Participating will be members of the board of selectmen, State Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr., members of the police and fire departments, the police color guard, members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and American Legion, Boy and Girl scouts, and the Winchester High School band.

"We hope to see all veterans from our town take part," the commander said. The high school band will play "Taps" at the war memorial and the honor roll.

ABOUT TOWN

Dr. Lucy Wollaeger

Dr. Wollaeger joins counseling group

Sherman & Margolis Associates has appointed Lucy Wollaeger, M.D. to the agency staff.

A graduate of Brown University, Wollaeger received her master's degree from Boston College and her medical degree from the University of Minnesota Medical School. She is currently affiliated with the Sancta Maria Hospital in Cambridge.

Wollaeger, a former teacher at Watertown High School and a Belmont resident, will join Sherman & Margolis to participate in a support program designed to focus on the psychosocial needs of outpatients with cancer and other serious diseases.

In a team setting with a certified social worker, Wollaeger will provide medical background and expertise. She will also be involved as a liaison with the attending physician.

Discussions with the staff at local hospitals suggested that combining the medical and social work components in providing counseling and support for outpatients with serious diseases was a unique approach, Wollaeger said.

Wollaeger, a member of the American Women's Medical Association and the Massachusetts Medical Society, will be available days and evenings to provide counseling around serious medical issues. For additional information, contact Sherman & Margolis at 165 Washington St. 729-2070.

Town to 'blend' new housing

When Winchester builds low-to-moderate income housing, it will "blend" with the neighborhood.

Town meeting members voted Monday to spend $15,000 from surplus to guarantee that Section 705 family housing will appear and be landscaped to blend into the neighborhoods in which the units are placed.

The money will also be used to hire an architect to find out how much more than the $82,000 per unit allotted by the state the housing will actually cost.

David Mortensen, chairman of a special committee created by the spring town meeting to study Section 705 housing, estimated the units will cost between $20,000 and $30,000 more than $82,000 each.

Mortensen said the town needs to know precise figures so it will know how much town money will be needed to fulfill Winchester's promise to provide seven units of Section 705 housing. The figures will be presented to a spring town meeting.

"I don't promise the options will be attractive. We're under contract with the state to build these units," Mortensen said.

The finance committee and selectmen recommended the "blending" proposal.

"People are worried that the housing will look like. They fear their lifelong investment will be endangered," Welch said. "This money will go a long way to alleviate their fear."

The housing authority recommended a no vote, saying no more planning should be done until the state gives approval for the seven units approved by the spring town meeting this year.

Robert Frank, vice chairman of the special study committee, said there is no question the units will be approved. "The only question now is to figure out what it will cost the town," he said.

Town meeting passed the article by a wide margin.

Local voters go with tide on state's referenda questions

Winchester voters cast their ballots on statewide referenda questions the same way other Massachusetts voters did.

By a margin of 5,214 to 2,913, Winchester rejected a constitutional amendment that would have allowed the legislature to restrict or prohibit state funding of abortion. The proposal lost by a 58-42 percent margin statewide.

An amendment that would have allowed state funds to be used for support of non-public schools also was unpopular in Winchester. The town rejected the amendment 5,870 to 2,391.

A tax cap proposal that would limit the growth of state spending to the average increase of wages and salaries was victorious both statewide and in Winchester, which favored it 4,494 to 3,551.

A question proposing that state environmental officials quickly identify and clean up hazardous waste sites was very popular. Winchester supported it 5,597 to 2,488.

Winchester voters were more willing to wear seat belts than most. Despite losing precinct two 457-437 and precinct eight 510-369, the mandatory seat belt law was supported in Winchester by a 4,424 to 3,896 margin.

Statewide, the mandatory seat belt law proposed by Gov. Michael Dukakis was repealed.

Voter registration by mail was defeated 4,668 to 3,354 in Winchester and also lost in the state.

A non-binding advisory question asking for a national health care program was overwhelming approved in the state and won Winchester 4,310 to 3,454. Precinct five defeated the proposal 507-481 and precinct six also rejected it 571-565.

A question proposing a 50 percent acid rain reduction, also non-binding, won Winchester 5,417 to 2,421. It was approved in the state as well.

GOOD NEWS FOR SECOND HOME

Those of you who own or plan to buy a second home or condo, can breathe a little easier now. The House Ways and Means Committee voted to drop the change in the tax-reform bill that would potentially cost big dollars in mortgage interest deductions.

The second-home decision made by the Ways and Means Committee is a most generous concession to the second home market.

The original proposal was to restrict current mortgage interest deductions for second home owners while retaining ALL interest deductions for the owner's principal residence only. The Committee turned the recommendation on its head and voted instead to treat all second homes like first homes in terms of mortgage-interest deductions—that is to permit write-offs without limit. This is great news for vacation area economies.

Channel 5 meteorologist Bob Copeland talks about weather with Miriam Foley's third-grade class Oct. 22 at Vinson-Owen School. His talk culminated a unit about weather prepared and taught for eight weeks by student teacher Christine Conley, a Salem State College early education major. She said Copeland excited the children, who asked many questions and received responses to each one.

Students will be fingerprinted

For the fourth time, the I-Dent-A-Kid program will be held in Winchester elementary and junior high schools Nov. 10-14.

The program objective is to provide a tool to help parents and law enforcement agencies find missing children by providing positive identification through fingerprints. Children are fingerprinted at school and the prints are sent home via the children unless arrangements are made by the parents to pick them up at the school office.

The school department and police department do not retain a copy. If a child is reported missing, parents can provide the fingerprints to the police department and they can be electronically transmitted to a central agency in Washington, D.C., where a possible match can be made.

Since its inception in May 1984, over 3,000 children have been finger-printed, about 96 percent of all elementary-age children in the town. The program is held each fall to reach kindergartners and other students new to the Winchester school system. Unless instructed by parents otherwise, fingerprinting is automatically done. Arrangements are being made to fingerprint children in the private schools as well.

The program is supported by the Community School Association, Teachers' Association, the school committee, school principals, Winchester police, John Hackett, John Mercurio Jr. and through the funding and coordination of the Hackett Mercurio Insurance Agency.

The schedule is: Vinson-Owen, 9 a.m. Nov. 10; Ambrose, 10:30 a.m. Nov. 10; Muraco, 9 a.m. Nov. 12; Lincoln, 10 a.m. Nov. 12; McCall, 8 a.m. Nov. 13; and Lynch, 9 a.m. Nov. 14.

Egging wins Global grant

The Massachusetts Global Education Program, a project of Winchester public schools, has named Leslie G. Egging, a teacher at Muraco School, as a recipient of a $500 award for curriculum development in global education.

The recipient qualified by attending a two-week institute this past summer at Old Sturbridge Village. This institute was entitled, "World Regions: The Local Connection."

Part of the criteria for selection is based on the teacher's demonstrated ability to improve the global content of the curriculum. The grants are made possible through the Danforth Foundation.

Egging's project is entitled "Around the World in 180 Days: An Interdisciplinary Odyssey."

Bank gives computer to ABC

Bank Five recently donated an Apple computer to A Better Chance, Inc. (ABC) of Winchester, to support its efforts in the community.

"Bank Five has a real commitment to 'greatness' and the development of each individual's potential," said president Janet Pavliska. "The ABC program supports that philosophy and we're very happy to help."

ABC is a national non-profit organization serving junior and senior high school minority students and member schools.

Students are admitted to ABC on the basis of academic merit and personal motivation. Most applicants are in the top 10 percent of their class, with a grade point average of at least 85. ABC provides excellent college preparatory educations at outstanding independent and local schools.

Winchester is currently one of 23 public school programs in the ABC network, with eight students this year from Chicago, St. Paul, Trenton and New York. Winchester's program is financially supported by the community and implemented by volunteers.

The most flexible Equity Line you can open is now free to close.

Unlike other home equity loans, the Bank of Boston Home Equity Credit Line gives you three ways to pay, including one where you can pay interest-only for up to five years. And, you get a line of credit and payback term for as long as you own your home.

We Pay Your Closing Costs

If you're a Bank of Boston deposit customer on the day you close the loan, we'll pay all closing costs*—a savings of $290-$400. All you need is a checking, savings, NOW or First Rate account, a certificate of deposit or a Deposit IRA at Bank of Boston.

Save Even More on Interest

If you maintain combined deposit balances of $5,000 or more at Bank of Boston beginning on the day you close, we'll pay your closing costs* and reduce the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) on your Home Equity Credit Line—from our Base Rate plus 2% (currently 9.5% APR), down to our Base Rate plus 1.5% (currently 9.0% APR) and if you maintain $25,000 or more we'll reduce your rate even further to our Base Rate plus 1% (currently 8.5% APR). APR may vary.

All owner-occupied, one-to-four family homes and condominiums in Massachusetts are eligible for a credit line anywhere from $10,000 to $100,000 or more. Your particular amount may be up to 75% of the current appraised value of your home, minus the existing first mortgage balance.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

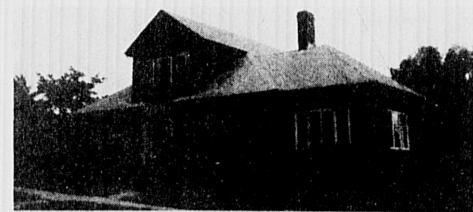

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co., Realtors

THE SETTLEMENT

It's a week before you're supposed to settle on your new home. You've arranged for the movers, the utility companies have set up an orderly transfer of your telephone, electric, water, and gas accounts, and you're planning to take a few days off, now feeling completely organized about the move. Good! Just remember that settlement dates aren't set in stone, especially in an active market. Lenders, appraisers, title attorneys, credit check services, and anyone else who's involved in real estate transactions can, for one reason or another, cause a delay of the settlement. If you keep this in mind while you're making your arrangements, you can plan to minimize the possible cost and inconvenience due to a delay.

As the settlement time approaches, your real estate agent will keep in touch with everyone involved in your transaction and stay on top of the situation, helping to prevent any unnecessary delays.

For a professional real estate agent who can help you through all of the phases of buying or selling property, call Bixby & Porter Company Realtors at 729-7000, or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson St., Winchester. We're here to serve all of your real estate needs.

Town zips through eight items

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Town meeting members zipped through their first eight challenges Monday night. They postponed action on all eight.

An article to settle contracts between the town and the unions representing firefighters and police officers was postponed until the Nov. 24 session. Town officials hope to conclude negotiations by then. A previous agreement was not ratified by the unions' membership.

Lincoln School's playground, the subject of an article to appropriate $20,000 for engineering of the $200,000 reconstruction project, was postponed until spring town meeting.

Town manager Chad Maurer and finance committee chairman Gerry Polcari said the item should be considered as part of the overall capital planning budget and "prioritized" among other projects.

School committee member Donna Brandt Landry said the project had been recommended unanimously by the school committee, which supported the project but would not argue against postponing action.

An article to build a new pipeline and beef up security around the reservoirs in the Middlesex Fells Reservation, was likewise postponed until spring, when it will be considered among other capital expenditures.

A proposal to transfer ownership of the Bacon Street bridge to the Metropolitan District Commission was indefinitely postponed.

Wade Welch, chairman of selectmen, said the town hoped to have an agreement with the MDC in place by town meeting, but negotiations have not been completed.

Purchase of an open lot on Mount Vernon Street, in front of the Mill Pond office building, was postponed until the Nov. 24 session. Negotiations with Mohammed Akbarian, owner of the lot, are continuing, the town manager said.

Tennis courts at the high school, currently sinking, will continue to sink. Town meeting postponed action on an $85,000 proposal to rebuild the courts.

Selectmen recently wrote to the school board, asking its opinion of switching the tennis courts and the rear parking lot. The idea, selectmen suggested, would give the courts a firmer base and eliminate a rear entrance from the high school.

Neighbors have complained about speeding cars leaving the rear parking lot of the school.

Yellow security signs, the subject of a proposed by-law change brought before town meeting by Richard Sampson of American Alarm, disappeared quickly.

Sampson was not present to speak in favor of his article. Several speakers said Sampson was probably unaware town meeting would move so quickly and suggested postponing consideration of his article until later.

"Mr. Sampson did a lot of research and out of respect for that, we should wait and hear him out," said town meeting member Mary Pronski.

Noreen Arcari, a member of the town committee on government regulations, said her group opposed Sampson's amendment that would allow security signs bearing the name of the security company to be placed on laws.

"The town has traditionally opposed all signs, including political signs," she said.

Hearing several negative comments, town moderator John Sullivan grinned. "Now I think I know why Mr. Sampson didn't come here."

By an overwhelming vote, town meeting voted not to hear Sampson later and instead "indefinitely postponed" action. "Indefinite postponement" is town meeting jargon for rejection of an article.

Town meeting will resume at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 24, at the high school auditorium to consider postponed articles, including 17 dealing with housing, and a special article to authorize purchase of a duplex at Winchester Gardens for low-to-moderate income housing.

Cast members of "The Skin of Our Teeth," to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at Winchester High School, rehearse a scene

Existential drama to hit stage

By LAUREN MURRAY

A great chasm separates words in a script and the actual performance of any play.

Students at Winchester High School have bridged the gap for their 7:30 p.m. Nov. 6-8 production of Thornton Wilder's existential drama "By The Skin of Our Teeth."

A great deal of work has been put into this ambitious endeavor. From the start the cast was warned the play would be a great challenge to both the cast and the behind-the-scenes people.

Lines have been memorized, various committees have selected appropriate costumes for each actor, and the scenery has been expertly constructed. All is ready for the culmination of nearly two months of hard work.

The play employs some unusual stage techniques. At certain points, actors speak directly to the audience and even call for their participation. The director has also made interesting use of modern video techniques as another medium for the play's ideas.

Throughout, director Bill Johnson has stressed the importance of being an actor, not merely concentrating on one's role. On the first day of rehearsal, he distributed and asked the cast to read books describing the Stanislavski school of method acting.

The cast played various improvisational games to develop a better sense of space and themselves. Johnson also asked each member to keep a daily journal to add personal insights into their characters and the changes they undergo toward development of the characters.

The cast rehearsed every day after school for two hours. Characters have now been established and the scenes flow smoothly through the considerable talents of the actors.

Finally, the cast is feeling the results of its labors. Under the direction of English teacher Johnson, a great play has developed.

Long hours together have fostered a sense of family among the cast. Said one cast member, "I have come to know a lot of new people from being in this play. It has been worthwhile from both the social and cultural viewpoint. Mr. Johnson has not only directed us but also taught us."

High school class of 1936 enjoys a nostalgic night

By FRED McCORMACK

On a beautiful fall evening Friday, Oct. 17, former Winchester High School students of the class of 1936 assembled at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Mount Vernon St. at 6 p.m. to begin a nostalgic evening of renewing friendships and rekindling old memories.

Close to 100 celebrators, from 10 states, were present. The cocktail hour was lively with people hopping from one table to another, visiting as many former classmates as possible.

Phrases like, "Do you remember?" "How many children do you have?" "any grandchildren?" "My how you've changed," and "You look great," could be heard everywhere.

Old flames were rekindled as 68-year-old youngsters held hands and embraced fondly. It was exactly what one would expect at a 50th reunion where many of the classmates were seeing each other for the first time since their 25th reunion or in many cases since graduation.

After hors d'oeuvres and cocktails, a roast beef dinner was served and everyone danced to the music of Sonny Freda, featuring tunes from the 1930's and 1940's. It was obvious that "the old rocking chair" has not captured the group.

Following dinner, Fred McCormack, class president, led the group in a two-hour trip down memory lane. Students were invited to the podium to relate experiences and episodes from their high school days, even embarrassing events.

Accepting McCormack's offer, with a little coaxing, were: Bob Armstrong, Buster Richardson, "Rugged" Muraco, Kirby Thwing, Arthur Goodnough, "Albie" MacDonell, "Eddie" Stone, Annette McCormick, Jean Wilson Kirkpatrick, Ines Iannachi Campbell, Mary Sloane Johnson, Jean Winchester Hart, Richard Glendon, Katherine Blanchard Comins, David C. Chamberlain, Christina MacDonald Howard, Norma Godfrey Taylor, Bicknell Lockhart and Sue Jones Pierce.

Gifts were presented in many categories including: first married, last married, traveling the furthest, most children, most grandchildren, most great-grandchildren, first baby, last baby and biggest pill taker.

Following this hilarious two-hour period, dancing continued until midnight. Former students left gradually wishing they could have danced all night.

Saturday, many former students attended the high school football game against Burlington. After a small tailgate get-together, another group, the more reckless ones, attended a party at Suffolk Downs paddock club, hosted by class member "Eddie" Stone, well-known owner and trainer of thoroughbreds.

Plans for the 55th reunion have been started.

Members present were: Helen Colliander Deminco of Stoneham, Anita Tucci Henson of District Heights, Md., Christina MacDonald Howard of LaVerne, Calif., Richard Glendon of Lincoln, Dorothy Hamilton Lynch of Winchester, Anna I. MacPartlin of Winchester, Stephen E. Root of Peterborough, N.H., John F. Sexton of Winchester, William Cott of Columbus, Ohio, and Robert Humphrey of Woburn.

Also, Ruby White of Woburn, Norma Godfrey Taylor of LaJolla, Calif., Kirby Thwing of Charlemont, Jeff Guadagno of Winchester, George C. Dotten of Tyngsboro,

Thomas Gigliotti of Winchester, John Giuliani of Winchester, Anne R. Kimball Cleveland of Claremont, N.H., Anne W. Kimball Larrabee of Yarmouth, Maine, Jean Goodale Farnsworth of Winchester, Jean Wilson Kirkpatrick of Brewster, Alexander "Sandy" McKenzie of Stoneham and Margaret Vozzella Santo of Winchester.

Also, Gaspare F. Muraco of Winchester, Albert A. MacDonnell of Winchester, Ines Iannachi Campbell of Wakefield, Harris Richardson of Winchester, Robert Armstrong of Friendship, Maine, Dana Philbrook of Campton, N.H., Ruth Hanlon Hasey of Marshfield, Lois Barnard Edwards of Plympton, David C. Chamberlain of Bridgewater, and Mary Sloane Johnson of Southington, Conn.

ABOUT TOWN

Parent-to-Parent's small groups forming

The Winchester Interagency Council's Parent-to-Parent small group discussions and workshops, an integral part of the program, are being formed for the fall and winter.

Begun five years ago by Winchester educators, clergy and parents, the groups provide an opportunity for parents to talk with one another about rearing children and to learn ways to improve communication within the family.

The program will be expanded this year to include groups for parents of elementary age children as well as continuing with groups for parents with junior high school and high school age children.

The organizing committee has appointed David Margolis as coordinator of the small discussion group portion of the program. He will work with Howard Sherman and Katherine Rousmaniere, to facilitate group discussions and workshops.

All three individuals are certified social workers with many years experience in working with small groups of parents around normal issues all parents encounter.

All Parent-to-Parent programs are free and open to all parents through support of the EnKa Society.

For additional information, call David Margolis at 729-2070 or Karen Baker or Kay Tiffany at Winchester High School, 721-7020.

Students taste 17th century song and dance

Oddly dressed characters were seen hanging around Winchester schools during October but no one was worried, because these characters were members of the New English Song and Dance Company.

The accomplished groups of actors, costumed as the first English settlers, visited all seven public and private schools in town to present a history, education and entertainment package rolled into one.

Each 45-minute program featured country dances, rousing ballads, and lively tunes punctuated by folktales and banter, featuring the characters Prudence Hill, Elizabeth Glover, Abby Jenny and Pandora Sparrow.

played respectively by Denise Wright, Joan Gatturra, Lynne Wilkinson and Mary Ann Mather, accompanied on the violin by Adam Grossman.

Much to the delight of the children, there were opportunities for audience participation in group singing and role playing.

The troupe has appeared at the New England Artist Festival, WBZ-TV's Kids Fair, Boston Museum of Fine Arts and other places throughout New England. Members said they were impressed with how responsive the audiences have been and have enjoyed being in Winchester.

Lincoln School to open library

The Lincoln School Association will officially open the school's new library and resource center at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 15.

Amy Cohn, marketing director of Horn Book magazine, will speak at the reception from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Cohn will discuss trends and new publications in children's literature. The magazine, founded in Boston in 1924, is a leading journal on children's books.

The current layout was designed with the help of architect David Mayfield, father of two pre-school children who are future Lincoln students.

Majorie Mirabito, who "job-shares" the position of library aide with Muff Bradford, says proceeds from the fundraising event will be allocated for purchases of comfortable seating, study carrels and additional books.

The evening is open to the public. Light refreshments will be served.

Brown named Merit semifinalist

Craig Brown of 36 Hemingway St. is one of 10 Boston College High School seniors to be named a semifinalist in the 32nd annual Merit Scholarship Competition.

Brown won semifinalist status on the basis of his score in the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, which he took as a junior.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, Brown attended St. Mary's School in Winchester before entering Boston College High School. His name is listed among 15,000 semifinalists who will continue in the competition for 6,000 Merit Scholarships.

Heart risk assessment set

Individuals may learn their risks for heart disease through blood work, including tests for cholesterol/HDL, triglycerides, and glucose, at the Symmes Hospital in Arlington from 8 to 10 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19. A follow-up visit will be scheduled with a health educator one week later for a blood pressure test and individual lifestyle counseling to minimize risk for heart disease.

Pre-registration is required. Call 646-1500, ext. 2291. Evening counseling appointments are available. Office hours are from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

It's "Take One" for Andrea Huber on the new slide at the Winchester Cooperative Nursery School playground.

Holiday adoption of needy, sought

During the holiday season, many people would like to do "something extra" for people less fortunate.

The American Red Cross encourages the "adoption" of a family or individual for Thanksgiving and Christmas gift giving.

All assistance is handled confidentially. Names are not given to anyone. The Red Cross also serves as a "matchmaker" in cooperation with other agencies to make sure there is no duplication of gifts as many needy are helped as possible.

More than 100 families had a happier holiday last year because of the generosity of the residents of the community.

For further information, call the Red Cross regional office at 665-1351.

Formerly a senior sales person with Fisons, Story emigrated to the U.S. with his wife Ruth. Several years ago Story established a consulting business allied with the structural pest control industry. Two special interests were museum work including the Smithsonian and writing for industry publications.

Mr. and Mrs. Story and their daughter, Helen Ruth, will live in a 265-year-old house in Winchester, England. The house was used by Winston Churchill as a personal base during the 1944 Normandy invasion.

A farewell reception was hosted by Waltham Chemical Co. at the Burlington Marriott. About 65 industry people were present and Scott Weisberg, president of the New England Pest Control Association, presented Story with a plaque recognizing contributions to the pest control industry.

Oram assigned in Arkansas

Air Force Airman 1st Class Douglas A. Oram, son of Allan E. and Beverly K. Oram of 189 Highland Ave., has arrived for duty with the 97th Avionics Maintenance Squadron, Blytheville Air Force Base.

Ark. Oram, an avionics instrument systems specialist, is a 1982 graduate of Winchester High School.

McCarty to give food ideas

Elizabeth McCarty, clinical dietitian on the Choate-Symmes Health Services staff, will review basic dietary needs as she presents ideas for appealing holiday fare at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 17, at Symmes Hospital in Arlington. Participants will taste a variety of nutritional foods and learn new ideas for low-calorie holiday cooking and entertaining.

A registration fee of $5 is required to cover food costs. To reserve a place, call 646-1500, ext. 1441.

Ostomy group to meet Nov. 12

The Northwest Ostomy Support Group will meet from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 12, at Symmes Hospital in Arlington and from 7 to 9 p.m. at Choate Hospital in Woburn.

Additional information about the meeting or the organization, which always welcomes new members, can be obtained by calling Joan Halpin at Choate or Symmes Hospital.

Dragone honored at Spaulding Hospital

Winchester resident Eunice M. Dragone, R.N., associate administrator and director of nursing at the Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital, recently received an outstanding service award in recognition of her 10th anniversary as an employee of the hospital.

Spaulding is a private, not-for-profit, specialized rehabilitation hospital affiliated with The Massachusetts General Hospital and associated with Harvard Medical School and the Tufts University School of Medicine.

A member of Spaulding's six-person executive committee, Dragone is responsible for nursing, environmental services, staff development, unit management, and patient transportation.

General director Dr. Manuel J. Lisbon said, "A hospital's nursing staff is one of its largest and most valuable resources. It is a tribute to Eunice Dragone's ability that our nursing staff is so highly regarded by patients, colleagues, and peers in other institutions. The continuing development of nursing at Spaulding is a reflection of Eunice's expertise and imagination."

Accepting the award, Dragone said, "It has been exciting to watch Spaulding grow. We have tried to make it a place in which nurses — indeed, all staff — can develop their skills and learn new ones. Rehabilitation nursing is a challenging and rewarding specialty, especially as it is practiced at Spaulding."

Spaulding provides sophisticated, multidisciplinary programs for the rehabilitation of stroke, orthopedic injuries, arthritis, spinal cord injury, head injury, cardiac disease, pulmonary disease, cancer, pain, neurological disease, alcoholism, and amputation. In addition, a specialized child and adolescent program provides intensive pediatric rehabilitation for patients with a wide variety of diagnoses.

Winchester resident Eunice Dragone, left, is honored for 10 years of service at Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital in Boston by Dr. Manuel Lisbon, general director of Spaulding. Dragone is the associate administrator and director of nursing.

Higgins is hospital's new vice president

James R. Higgins of 19 Albamont St. has been appointed vice president of administrative services at Winchester Hospital.

Higgins assumes the position vacated by Conrad Armstrong, who retired Oct. 1 after 18 years of service. Administrative services encompass the departments of social service, rehabilitation services, volunteer services, housekeeping, food service, laundry and linen, and engineering services.

A graduate of Winchester High School, Higgins received a bachelor of arts degree in political science and economics from Stonehill College and a master of business administration degree from Babson College.

From 1974 to 1984, he was employed by Massachusetts Hospital Association in the computer program, internal finance and systems engineering divisions. For the past two and a half years, he was a senior health care consultant with Peat Marwick Mitchell & Company.

He is a member of Hospital Management Systems Society and the American College of Healthcare Executives, and looks forward to becoming active in the Winchester Rotary Club.

He and his wife, Lanie, have a son, Jay, 6, and a daughter, Tricia, 2½.

College reps will visit high school

Several schools will send representatives to the Winchester High School "mini-college" programs at 2 p.m. Wednesdays in the cafeteria.

College representatives will answer all questions about their schools and programs.

Schools to be represented Nov. 12 are Anna Maria College, Cape Cod Community College, Colgate University, Chamberlain School of Retailing, Fitchburg State College, Green Mountain College, Hampshire College, Lawrence Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, University of Lowell, University of Massachusetts at Boston, Middlesex Community College, University of New England, Providence College, Quinnipiac College, Smith College, Stonehill College and Suffolk University.

Schools to be represented Nov. 19 are Boston University, Castleton (Vt.) State College, Eastern College, George Washington University, Hesser College, University of Maine, College of Mount St. Vincent and University of Rhode Island.

Halloween was exciting for 13 children in the Early Childhood Nursery School at Winchester High School. Students from the home economics class hosted an Oct. 30 party, which children enjoyed in costumes from grapes to ghosts. Children made their own trick-or-treat bags and decorated cookies made by a student. A parade to the library and main office for treats was also a big success.

COMMENT

Where's Winchester?

Whose job is it to implement an educational alcohol and drug awareness program into the K-12 curriculum in Winchester?

Surrounding towns like Arlington, Lexington and Concord have programs in full swing.

In fact, Arlington introduced a curriculum and hired a full-time alcohol counselor in 1980. Where is Winchester?

Youth officer Daniel McGee says Winchester has to introduce a program by 1989, when a drug and alcohol curriculum will be mandatory.

What is Winchester waiting for?

It's time for Winchester to face up to the growing use of drugs and alcohol in town.

Currently Winchester officials are "looking into" several educational programs.

Drug and alcohol use is a nationwide crisis.

When is Winchester going to take a firm stand and address the problem?

If smoking doesn't get ya, radon will.

Channel 7 news will carry a report about radon tests taken in Winchester homes Monday night. It's ratings time for TV stations, so they announce their "local" stories well in advance.

Generally, the radioactive gas radon is emitted from bedrock. The closer your home is to bedrock, the more likely it is to have a higher level of radon.

Winchester officialdom got lots of exposure in metropolitan media last weekend.

Town clerk Carolyn Ward filled most of page three in Saturday's Herald as she held up a referendum ballot and explanation, about a yard long.

State Sen. Dick Kraus also had a guest column in the Sunday Globe, explaining why you should vote "no" on the tax cap question. And an article in the Phoenix was also filled with quotations from Kraus on the same question.

So much for the power of the press. Or maybe it just means any referendum called "tax cap" will pass. Like most people, we ignored Kraus' advice to trust the legislature to limit its own spending.

Residents of the Aberjona Nursing Center are busy this week preparing for their holiday bazaar from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday. The event will feature crafts, fresh baked goods, plants and white elephants.

The residents also enjoyed a group of kids who paraded through the building Halloween morning and the Aberjona ladies have enjoyed recent Bible studies presented by Faith Fellowship Ministries of Winchester.

In another vein, residents got a chance to vote through the kindness of Winchester registrars.

Women face challenge of trying to 'have it all'

By DEBRA DAVIDSON

Ann, 38, appears to "have it all." Married six years, she has a 4-year-old daughter and a 2-year-old son. A talented professional, she worked full-time before deciding to leave her job until her children were old enough for school.

Ann wanted to be the one to stay home with her children. This decision was not made lightly. She had the strong support of her husband, Robert, now at the peak of his own career, who sincerely believes in sharing parenting responsibilities.

They have no financial worries. Robert's income is well above average. Ann is a loving woman who takes real pleasure in her children and her identity as a mother. Yet lately, Ann experiences anger, frustration, fatigue and even depression.

She and Robert fight more over small things than in the past and her sexual desire is dwindling. Except to a few friends, she finds it difficult and a bit embarrassing to talk about these feelings.

After all, many women would envy Ann's situation and wonder, as Ann sometimes does what she really has to complain about.

If you see yourself in Ann, you are not alone. These are confusing times for women and men. Women fill new roles as professionals. Gone are stereotypes of mothers whose interests were limited to making sandwiches and supervising Brownie troops.

We live in a society that appears to support these changes, but is far behind in integrating their realities and consequences as they affect our family lives.

In speaking to other women, I have found that their definition of a successful life often is rooted in the quality of their self-esteem, relationships and family life. These women want the independence, confidence, recognition and sense of competence that come with knowledge they can be successful in the workforce.

Yet, they are much more verbal than men in expressing their desire for a partner and children as equal or strong priorities in their lives. This balance between work and home creates new pressures that prove difficult to handle.

Unfortunately, although men are reevaluating their expectations of women, the reality often is that the burden of responsibility for initiating and achieving that balance falls more on a woman's shoulders.

This is especially true of women who have postponed childbearing until they hear the ticking of "the biological time clock." The indisputable fact that there is a point when she will no longer be able to have children colors a woman's life and decisions in an immediate and conflictual manner.

Conflicts in a marriage as a result of some of these issues are often not a man's "fault." More attention is being paid recently to the role of husband and father in the family. But, as one man expressed, "it is acceptable to return home in a family emergency, such as illness, or even to pick up my child from school, but I still have to return to the office and work until midnight so I can finish the project that has a deadline the following day."

Men also face a dilemma when they have been reared in a very traditional environment and have to adjust to changes and new expectations as well.

For the woman who chooses to stay at home with children, especially if she had been working previously, new issues crop up. Although a woman may feel right about her decision, she often feels a loss of her identity as a working woman, and all the positive feelings that came with that identity.

Some real concerns about losing their marketability and career momentum. Her success as a mother is often not valued in the same way success can be measured in promotions or dollars.

In addition, women miss the stimulation of work and the opportunity to use their talents outside the home.

Regardless of financial need, it is a hard adjustment to depend on someone else's income if a woman has been used to earning her own and making independent decisions about how to use it.

An exaggerated feeling of having to justify how she wants to use income often results in guilt and anger that can cause estrangement. Women also may resent how much time a husband's career takes from family life, both in terms of shared responsibilities, as well as intimacy with each other and their children. Loneliness for companionship of other adults is also a frequent problem.

Women can help themselves:
(1) Keep active in organizations related to work you did outside the home. Maintain contacts and keep up with changes. Subscribe to journals. If you plan to go back to work, let people know. Take on a free-lance project in your field if this is possible.

(2) Let your spouse know what you feel. This can be very difficult if it requires change and adjustments on his part as well (and it probably will!). It can work well if you approach him in a way that does not accuse, but educates him about what you are feeling and takes into account his feelings as well. Remember, however, that your pressures are as important as his. Listen to each other before jumping to conclusions or negotiating solutions.

(3) Set long-term goals concerning your work and personal life. Having long-term goals can set into motion interim steps that vitalize us and make us feel more in control of our lives.

(4) Get involved, if you are inclined, in the numerous political groups lobbying to change policies that relate to paternal leave, day care, maternal leave and job tenure, etc. You really can make a difference!

(5) Talk to your friends, join a support group, or seek professional help in working out the best solutions for yourself. Sometimes it is very hard to stand back from issues closest to us.

All these steps cannot be taken at once. Talk it over with yourself and those close to you and try to determine what would be most helpful to you now. Good luck!

Fitting right in with the class of '66

By TERRY MAROTTA

When my high school class met last week for its 20th reunion, the big question in most minds was, what had happened to us in the intervening years?

The world has changed a lot since those days.

Back then most girls wore A-line skirts and bubble hairdos. When we dressed up, we looked like Margaret Thatcher — clutch purse, stacked heels and all. The boys weren't much better. They wore skinny neckties and hair only slightly longer than the kind the Kennedy brothers had made popular.

We were a tentative bunch, generally. We tried to be naughty and rebellious, but drugs hadn't been invented yet; and skipping church to stand on the corner was about as rebellious as most of us got.

Some of the bad kids drank cough medicine once in a while and then played hookey together to spend the morning slow-dancing in the living rooms of parents that were gone for the day.

Sex had been invented, but most of us were afraid of it. We put on the brakes and changed the subject a lot, which, looking back on it, seems a pretty good thing to learn to do early in life.

I fit right in with the class of '66. I hoped to get into college; I hoped to get into Heaven. And so I studied hard and followed the rules, a girl of unexceptional looks covered over in baby fat.

I went to the reunion last week partly to see myself in others' eyes; to know more clearly the person I was today by recalling with those who knew me the person I'd been back then.

So there we all were, looking in each other's faces for all that had changed, and all that had remained the same.

One of our number is a grand-mother already. One came with her son as her escort, a full-grown close-cropped military man.

One we'd all thought would be a priest left the seminary after a year and has a working farm, three kids, and a building-supply business up in the country. One who seemed headed for a life of gentlemanly ease at the country club flies to Nicaragua this week to help bring technical know-how to the peasant population.

People exchanged bios and business cards.

Most drank, but few drank to excess. There was nary a suggestion, to our street-smart Sixties noses, of the sweet reek of marijuana. We were a straight bunch, those gathered for this event.

Many of us have married, of course — some several times — but a surprising number haven't.

Awards were given out — to the one who travelled farthest to get there, for example, and to the one with the most children (seven).

I got an award for being a finalist in the Journalist-in-Space competition. A thin man in glasses got one for simply showing up. Ten years ago, it seems, he drove miles on his motorcycle, only to learn he'd missed the reunion by a week.

One man found his name on the list of those who had died since graduation. He used the band's mike up on the stage. "Hi, I'm not dead yet!" he sang out. "I feel fine!" he assured us cheerfully.

It was a cheerful night, generally speaking.

And I WAS a different girl from the one I had been 20 years ago, less of a talker now, and more of a listener. I listened to some interesting stories that night.

We were grownups who told these stories. We were widows and orphans, veterans and recovered alcoholics, husbands, mothers, and dutiful sons. What had happened to us in 20 years, then?

Life had happened to us. We wore stretchmarks; we carried scars.

But as the fellow said who took the microphone, we weren't dead yet; and take it all around, we felt pretty fine.

BEACON HILL

The House and Senate. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on three roll calls and local senators' votes on three roll calls from late legislative sessions just prior to the legislative recess on October 23.

Tax Cap (H 6429). House 127-22, Senate 25-7, accepted the House-Senate conference committee report of a bill immediately repealing the 7.5 percent surtax and imposing a limit on the growth of state taxes. Governor Dukakis later signed the bill.

Supporters said this package is a reasonable alternative to the overly restrictive Citizens for Limited Taxation tax cap and noted this new version provides a tax cap but also establishes a rainy day fund for emergencies.

Some opponents said this cap was full of loopholes and claimed the CLT cap is the only one that provides real tax relief. Others said they opposed any tax cap and urged money be used for worthwhile programs.

A Yea vote is for the tax cap. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

Senator Richard Kraus voted yes.

Radiologic Techs (H 5966). Senate 27-11, rejected an amendment to a bill establishing an advisory commission to establish rules, regulations and minimum requirements for radiologic technologists. The amendment would exempt all dentists, podiatrists, physicians, chiropractors and their associates when acting under their direct supervision.

Supporters offered no arguments.

Opponents said the amendment guts the bill which is designed to insure that people who operate these machines have some standard training.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

Blue Hills (S 1343). House 123-15, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate the bill establishing the Blue Hill regional development corporation.

Supporters said the bill is an excellent one which will coordinate money and resources to help bring the Blue Hill area back to a livable state.

Opponents said the bill is poorly drafted and invites abuse in bidding and hiring.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Computers (H 6420). House 114-22, rejected a supplemental budget amendment striking a section providing $950,000 for the acquisition of computer equipment, software and other expenses for the automation of House offices.

Supporters said the Massachusetts legislative budget is already the largest in the nation and argued this $950,000 is excessive.

Opponents said this one time expense is a worthwhile investment which will modernize legislative record systems and even save money in the long run.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against the $950,000.

Saltmarsh voted no.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Star, McGee owe apology

TO THE EDITOR:

Benjamin Disraeli once said that there are three kinds of lies: lies, damn lies and statistics. If the 70 percent of junior high kids who've "tried" sex, drugs or alcohol include the youngsters who've had a sip of wine at Sunday dinner, I not only have a junior high child in this category, but a third-grader as well.

And since your headline writer changed the wording of this statistic to "sex, drugs and alcohol, I think the Star and police officer McGee owe an apology to the students at McCall for this inflammatory and potentially damaging bit of reporting.

And now how about a follow-up that shows the real facts behind this serious problem, but with some substantial information and documented sources?

DPW should try to read meters

TO THE EDITOR:

It's a minute matter but multiply 14 cents hundreds of times.

The town could save a few pennies if water meter readers tried to do what they're supposed to do.

For the second time this year alone, I've been in the house all day and nobody even knocked on the door.

But, later, there's the card with a self-addressed 14 cents on it in my door.

Shouldn't these DPW readers at least try to read the meters?

Elections USA

The election is over, the public is glad.

The winners are happy, the losers are sad;

The voters have spoken, they made their own choice,

Let's now all together, unite and rejoice.

The men we've elected, we know they are loyal.

We know that they love our American soil;

We know that they want to do what is right,

For all of America, our future is bright.

If only in Asia a change could soon be,

To allow all the Asians a chance to be free;

In Hungary, they fight for their land that they love,

They pray for some help from the "man" up above.

God knows that in Poland, they have suffered for years,

From Russian oppression, they have shed many tears;

From Moscow to Paris, from London to Rome,

Let's sing as Americans, there's no place like home.

Let's now pray to God to help those elected,

Be sorry for those who were not selected;

Let's pledge our support, regardless of creed

If we do all these things, we'll be happy indeed.

Speakers will be Donna Campbell, extended care coordinator for nursing service at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Bedford, and Marilyn Mulligan, site manager of the Alzheimer's disease program of the Community Family Adult Day Health Programs, Medford.

They will present an overview of the etiology and neuropathology of Alzheimer's Disease, addressing problems faced by nurses and other care providers, both in the community and in an institution.

"Nowhere is the impact of Alzheimer's Disease reflected more dramatically than in the nursing profession," according to Campbell. "Already the nation's fourth leading cause of death, the prevalence of Alzheimer's Disease is expected to more than triple in the next 50 years."

She will lead a discussion about the approaches to the management of problem behaviors presented by the disease from the perspective of family, community, and institutional settings and identify the costs of care as well as the financial and legal dilemmas associated with Alzheimer's Disease, which she describes as affecting the entire family.

The Community Family's Medford program is designed to provide care and support to individuals with Alzheimer's Disease and other dementias. It offers families a cost-effective alternative to nursing home placement while allowing their loved ones to remain at home for longer periods of time.

The program is open to all Nurses, regardless of where they are employed, will receive 2.4 continuing education credits. Pre-registration is required, and may be done by calling 729-9000, ext. 3010. There is a minimal fee.

Scholarship Foundation elects officers

As a nonprofit, charitable trust, the Winchester Scholarship Foundation has awarded over $600,000 over the years to worthy students who need scholarship aid. The Foundation is locally managed by volunteers and supported by donations from Winchester residents, civic organizations and businesses.

Income from invested funds and special endowments represents a portion of the income, but the major share of scholarship awards is raised by an annual fundraising drive. Awards are made by a committee of two men and two women from the community, with the Winchester High School principal serving as an ex-officio member. A professional financial aid officer from a local university also assists.

Elected trustees, who manage the endowment funds of the foundation, are Austin Broadhurst, Harris Richardson and James Willing Jr. The Foundation distributed $62,850 to 30 students in this, its 41st year.

Officers of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation were elected at the annual meeting Sept. 16 at the Winchester Library.

Daniel LaGatta was elected president, Nancy Clarke vice president, Susan Moynihan secretary and Charles Hemmingsen treasurer. Mary Barger will be chairman of the scholarship committee which also includes Dan Sereika, George O'Toole and Mary Schmeding.

Nursery school sets fair Nov. 15

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School will conduct its annual fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 15, in Chidley Hall of the First Congregational Church.

Young children will find games like ring-toss, movies, face painting, cookie decoration and spin art. Adults will find used children's clothes and toys, baked goods, craft items and raffle tickets. Lunch will be available.

Sachems survive big Stoneham threat and record 7th in a row

By DAVID DEMARCO
 Rolands were the most popular snack food for Winchester football fans Saturday afternoon. It was a nail-biting affair that left fans and players drawn and exhausted. Winchester beat Stoneham 28-22 but the outcome was very much in doubt until the final seconds. "Stoneham was a lot more up for the game. They caught us by surprise. Nobody was tackling and we just weren't ready," admitted defensive end John Mathson. The Spartans received the kickoff and drove, running outside at random. At 6:57 of the first quarter, Dave Pignone ran a sweep from the Winchester 45-yard line to pay dirt, putting the Spartans up 6-0. A mistake set up the Spartans again when quarterback John DeMarco misplayed a pitch that went for a fumble. Stoneham recovered on the Sachem 23. The turnover cost Winchester six more points. The Spartans quickly drove to the Sachem 1-yard line, setting up the score after a nice play-action pass by reserve quarterback Bob Ferraro. Ed Hickey shoved the ball over at 8:52 and a two-point conversion was good. Stoneham led 14-0 and had the Sachems further behind than ever this year.

Winchester showed poise. The Sachems knew they had to score on their next series of plays. From the Winchester 28, coach Manny Marshall called a veer right. DeMarco kept the ball and galloped 72 yards for the touchdown. That single play turned the momentum around and was the first of three consecutive unanswered touchdowns. For the first time this year, the extra point attempt was blocked. But the Sachems were back in the game, down 14-6 with 6:53 left in the half. The Winchester defense held on. (Please see SACHEMS - page 12)

Lexington will give Sachems another test

By DAVID DEMARCO
 Lexington will test the Sachems and their 7-0 football record this Saturday. This game has turned into a traditional rivalry. In 1984, both teams sought the league title and a Super Bowl berth. Lexington won but only after Winchester was stopped deep in Lexington territory, inches from a first down that could have led to a last-minute winning touchdown. A year later, the scenario was similar. The Sachems had to beat the Minutemen to earn a Super Bowl bid. But late in the game, Lexington drove 76 yards in 10 plays for the winning TD.

For two years in a row, Lexington has been the stumbling block on the Sachems' road to Sullivan Stadium. Both schools are aware of history and will carry their emotions on the field at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Lexington. Coach Bill Tighe's Minutemen are 5-2 this fall, losing to Woburn in league play and falling in the season opener to Waltham. The Lexington offense is potent with John Brezenski (6-4, 215 pounds) at tackle and Derek Coulter (6-1, 215) and Joe Donovan (6-0, 210) at guard. Center Rayford Jackson, at 228 pounds, is not exactly small either. These blockers for fullback Jeff Neville are helping him to an excellent year. Junior tailback Mark Maguire has been improving all year. The Minutemen love to keep the ball on the ground and they'll run trap plays all afternoon. Winchester will need superior play from the defensive tackles to shut down the traps while both linebackers must fill the holes in the line of scrimmage. Defensively, things haven't changed much in Lexington. The Minutemen still play a strange "61" with six men on the line, a middle linebacker over the center and four defensive backs. On passing situations, the Lexington defense plays a "50" and loves to blitz at least one linebacker on every passing play. Winchester must pick up that blitz this year. On paper at least, Lexington's passion for sending linebackers over the line should open up the look-in passing zone from five to 10 yards over the middle. Winchester's success will depend on its ability to handle the trap and dominate the defensive line. The Sachems must establish a power running game to balance its passing. Man for man, the edge must go to Winchester but the Sachems must turn an individual advantage into team superiority.

Girl kickers finish unbeaten

By DAVID DEMARCO
 The Winchester High School girls soccer team completed its seventh unbeaten season in nine years last week, downing Belmont 3-2, Woburn 4-0 and Arlington 2-0. The Sachemettes are the top seed in the tournament and will host the winner of an early-round game between Lexington and Framingham North at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 8.

It was a typical Winchester game against Belmont Oct. 28. The majority of play was in the Belmont end but Winchester couldn't get open for good shots. Although Laurie Nahigian gave the Marauderettes the lead at 8:12, it was only a matter of time until Winchester took over. Falling behind early doesn't worry Winchester fans. Persistence paid off when Melissa Skehan scored from Meghan Guarnotta at 8:34 on a high, blistering shot to the top of the right corner. The Sachemettes continued to pressure Belmont and Katie Binding put them on top at 10:01. She scored from Charlotte Reese after a flurry in front of the net. At 27:14, Lauren Suvak grabbed the third Winchester goal. The Maunaderettes made it close when Suzanne Keough caught JoAnn Shusta out of the net and put the ball in for Belmont. "This is an outstanding club. We played like Winchester can. I've been happily surprised by our efforts on corner kicks," said coach Chris Scanlon. A game two days later against Woburn may have found the (Please see KICKERS - page 12) the next series, in part because of the exceptional play of Matheson.

On its next offensive series, Winchester drove to the Stoneham 10.

The hitting was intense as the Spartans resisted mightily before yielding any yardage. But Darin Cromwell powered his way over the goal line from the one, cutting Stoneham's lead to 14-12.

On a two-point try, DeMarco found Mark Shaw open across the middle to tie the game 14-14.

The Spartans made a critical error on the ensuing kickoff, allowing the ball to bounce on the ground. Winchester's Rhett Moody recovered the ball on the Stoneham 25.

With 15 seconds left in the half, Cromwell again scored from the one, giving his team a 21-14 lead at the half.

But the game was far from over. Winchester's defensive line had been eaten up by trap plays. "They seemed to be double-teaming the nose and cracking down on the tackles," said Aaron West.

Richie Burke was outstanding, as usual, with 11 unassisted tackles and was the defensive leader. His teammates agreed. "We weren't really intense. Nobody but Burke made outstanding plays," said J.R. Morton.

Defense dominated the third quarter and neither squad scored. But Winchester backed up a few yards after each team traded the ball. Something drastic was needed as the fourth period began.

"Air DeMarco" took off. The quarterback hit Vinnie Benincasa for a 65-yard TD off a 17-power bootleg pass. With 7:24 left, coach Marshall had gone for the gold on a first-and-10.

It worked and Winchester led 27-14 with 7:24 to play. There was still lots of football left.

Stoneham was ready. The Spartans took the ball and ate up the Sachems' defensive line. Ferraro led Stoneham to the Sachem 15-yard line. With 3:38 left, he hit Pignone in the right corner to make it a new ball game at 28-20.

Stoneham faked a kick and completed a two-point conversion, cutting Winchester's lead to 28-22. A Spartan TD would tie the game and any conversion would win it.

To heighten the drama, Winchester's offense stalled and the Sachems had to punt from deep in their own territory.

Stoneham took over at midfield with a minute left. Just 57 seconds later, the Spartans were on the Winchester six-yard line with three seconds to go on the clock.

The referee then lifted the ball in the air, signifying the end of the game. Stoneham coach Tom Kasparczak was outraged, thinking his team had one more shot.

Winchester was happy, though. The Sachems wiped away their sweat, breathed deeply and gave thanks they are still among four teams in the running for Super Bowl 1986.

Second ski swap planned

The Winchester Youth Center and the Council On Youth will sponsor the second annual ski swap Nov. 22 at the McCall Junior High gymnasium. This event will be a community service project and fundraiser where both used and new ski equipment and skates can be bought and sold.

The swap is especially useful for parents with growing kids and for individuals looking for a good deal on used equipment who may also like to sell their own used equipment.

A limited selection of new equipment will also be for sale. The swap retains 10 percent on used equipment and 20 percent on new equipment; the owner gets the rest.

Owners may drop off equipment between 8:30 and 11 a.m. The sale will be from 1 to 3 p.m. From 5 to 6 p.m. receipts and equipment not sold can be picked up. Items should be pre-priced and no clothing, cable bindings, or lace boots will be accepted.

For more information, call the youth center at 721-7129.

Kickers are unbeaten

Sachettes looking toward the tournament.

Against a team that was winless all year, Winchester played a scoreless 20 minutes until Amy Binding scored from Reese and Robyn Rodgers.

The Tannerettes came back and had two great scoring chances but Winchester held a 1-0 lead at halftime. "Little Dynamo" Reese took over in the second half, scoring at 12:10 to make it 2-0. A minute later, she scored again, this time from Leslie Strazullo.

Guarnotta iced it for Winchester at 30:22.

Regardless of which team Winchester faces Saturday, look for the Sachettes to be around for another couple of weeks.

Jayvee girls enjoy improvement year

By DAVID DEMARCO

The Winchester High School jayvee girls soccer team had an exceptional season filled with lots of improvements.

The Sachettes "played tough" to defeat Belmont 3-0, said coach Paul Austin after Ingrid Spaniard got two goals and Gern Miller one on a corner kick to account for the scoring.

Winchester continued to win during the year, despite losing Julie Sexony, an early-season leader, to a badly sprained ankle.

Allison Price filled in well for Sexony as Winchester blanked Lexington 7-0. Ashley Reeves and Spaniard each had two goals while Chris Sullivan, Amy Murdoch and Katie Coakley also played well.

Sophomore Karen VerHaegen has made great strides during the season and should contribute in the future.

"I've learned a lot and know the game better," she said.

One of the best games of the year was a 2-2 tie with Wakefield last week. Laura Rutherford gave Winchester the lead at 24:00 on a high shot to the left corner.

The Warriorettes tied the game seconds later, despite a diving save by Tracy Macone, who should make an excellent varsity player next fall.

Miller put Winchester on top again but Wakefield tied it up. Neither team scored in a varsity-like second half, highlighted by an outstanding defensive play by Deb Skehan and strong play by Mary Sampson.

"A satisfied customer comes back," explains Don Ward, owner and proprietor of Ward's Gift Shop in Medford since just after World War II.

And, for the past 43 years, Ward's reputation for good service, reasonable prices, and standing behind his merchandise has kept them coming back.

Many of Ward's longtime customers have moved away but they still call to have china,

Ward's Has A Gift For Any Occasion

crystal, or figurines shipped to as far away as Florida or California. He will ship to any part of the U.S.

Located at 24 High St. in Medford Square, Ward's carries one of the largest selections of Waterford crystal in the Boston area, along with 300 patterns of china including such well-known names as Royal Doulton, Minton, Pickard, Wedgwood, and Noritake.

Ward's also features a wide selection of limited edition plates, figurines, and collector's dolls. Among the 15,000-20,000 items in the store is one of the New England area's largest selection of figurines including such names as Lladro, Hummel, Royal Doulton, Anri, Kaiser, Sebastian, Francis Hook, and Precious Moments.

Ward's has an appropriate gift for any occasion and ready to assist customers in finding that "something special" is Dorothy, the shop's manager for the past 27 years.

Dorothy, and all the staff at Ward's strive to maintain "a personal touch atmosphere" which has been one of the trademarks of Ward's since it opened its doors. Dorothy and the crew at Ward's are on a first-name basis with most of their customers.

Although he has seen Medford Square change "like all squares change over the years," Ward and his employees have earned and maintained a reputation for personal service, quality, and low prices. "In fact," says Ward, "Word of mouth is our best selling point."

Jane Marjorie Owens and Lt. Mark David Beatty exchange wedding vows

Jane Marjorie Owens and United States Navy Lieutenant Mark David Beatty were married Sept. 26 in a candlelight service at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church in Winchester. The Rev. Dr. David Purdy officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Owens of Winchester. The bridegroom is the son of Commander and Mrs. L. David Beatty, USN retired, of Rogers, Ark.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin with venise lace, bertha collar, sculptured bodice and cathedral train. The bride carried a bouquet of rose buds made from pieces of her grandmother's wedding

Paula Leach Riley of Woburn was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Carol DeBruin of Auburn, Maine, and Lesley Herzog of Pensacola, Fla.

Commander L. David Beatty was best man for his son. Ushers were Lt. Mark Fryauf and Lieutenant Christopher Kane, both of Dallas, Texas, and Lieutenant R. Gregg Morissette of Pensacola, Fla.

A reception followed at the Rooyal Sonesta Hotel in Cambridge.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and Bates College. She received a master's degree in occupational therapy from Boston University and is practicing at the Rehabilitation Institute of West Florida.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Rogers High School and Tulane University. He is a helicopter pilot serving as a flight instructor at NAS Whiting Field in Milton, Fla.

Following a wedding trip to Bermuda and New Hampshire, the couple live in Milton.

Church plans Harvest Fair Nov. 15-16

The Immaculate Conception Ladies Sodality of Winchester-Woburn will hold its annual "Harvest Fair" in the school hall on Sheridan Circle, Winchester on Saturday, Nov. 15, and Sunday, Nov. 16.

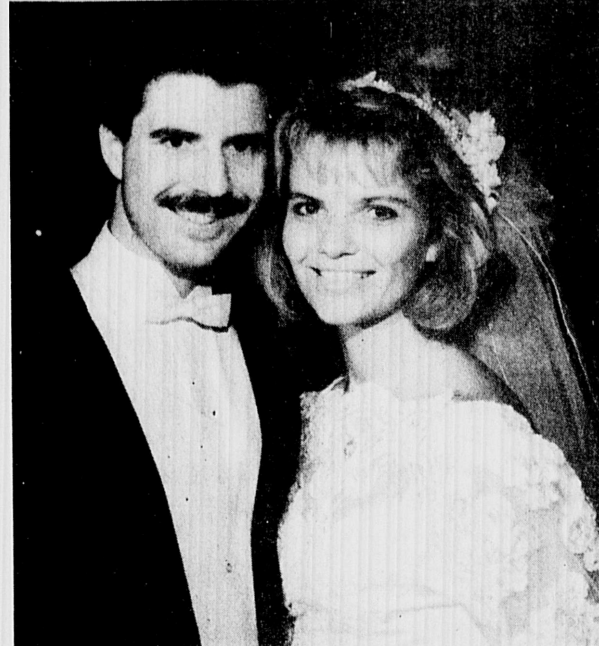

Many beautiful handmade knits and craft items have been donated, and tables featuring baked goods, attic treasures, novelties, holiday decorations and gifts will be available.

The snack bar will again feature a lobster luncheon that will be served continuously into the supper hour Saturday.

Children's games and prize drawings will add a little something for everyone. Hours of the fair are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Beatty

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Corcoran

Deborah E. Morgan and Peter J. Corcoran exchange wedding vows

Deborah Elizabeth Morgan and Peter Joseph Corcoran were married Sept. 27 at the Naval Amphibious Base Chapel in Coronado, Calif. The Rev. James A. Boyd, commander in the United States Navy, officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Lyle Morgan of Phoenix, Ariz. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Corcoran of Winchester.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a morilee full-length gown of white shimmer taffeta with a bodice of alencon lace, covered with sequins and seed pearls. Her cathedral train had inlays of alencon lace. She carried a free flowing cascade of Japatt orchids with touches of red night lilies accented by Lady Diana roses with Stephanotis.

Mrs. Heather Morrison of Phoenix was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Kay Malone of Phoenix, Holly Tallis of Upper Nyack, N.Y., Janet Johnson of Phoenix and Leslie Dale of San Diego, Calif.

Ring bearer was Jonathan Morrison of Phoenix, nephew of the bride.

Bridesmaids wore long gowns of peach shimmer taffeta and carried flowers similar to the bride's bouquet.

Best man was James Laing of San Diego, Calif. Ushers were John F. Corcoran Jr. of Chatham, brother of the bridegroom, Douglas Morgan of Phoenix, brother of the bride, John Moore of Pelham, N.Y., and David Saliba of Winchester.

A reception was held aboard a yacht cruising San Diego Bay. A wedding trip is delayed.

The bride graduated from Arizona State University and worked as a paralegal in San Diego. She is presently in a graduate program for elementary teaching.

The bridegroom graduated from Winchester High School and Boston College. He served six years as lieutenant in the United States Army. He is a lieutenant in the United States Navy Reserve and is a research analyst with a firm in San Diego.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. David Craig

Lisa Lynne Thyson and David Hertig Craig exchange wedding vows

Lisa Lynne Thyson and David Hertig Craig were married July 12 at the Parish of the Epiphany. The Rev. John J. Bishop officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Noel A. and Judith M. Thyson of Winchester. The bridegroom is the son of Thomas G. Craig of Winchester and the late Helen H. Craig.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a blush pink silk taffeta that she and Marigot of Newton Center designed.

Ann Austin Thyson of Winchester was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Linda Craig of Winchester, sister of the bridegroom, Cathy Zinke of Chicago, friend of the bride, Linda Hamilton of Concord and Nancy Legvold of Boston, both friends of the bride.

They wore mint green polished cotton tea-length dresses designed by the bride.

Best man was Geoffrey Curtis of Winchester. Ushers were Andrew Cruikshank of Boston, Matthew Ward of Greensboro, N.C., Christopher Carey and James Treacy, both of Chicago, all friends of the bridegroom.

After a reception at the Mussel Point in Gloucester, the couple took a wedding trip to Bermuda.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Winchester High School and graduated in 1983 from Smith College cum laude. She is an investment officer in Corporate Finance Group at Bank of Boston.

The bridegroom graduated from Winchester High School in 1978 and Denison University in 1982. He is a commercial lending officer at Boston Five Cents Savings Bank.

The couple live in Charlestown.

Mailroom clerk Mark Houlihan, right, of Winchester talks with his supervisor, Joseph Miele, at Bank Five in Arlington. The bank is a sponsor of the two-year "transition program" at Middlesex Community College. The program is for students with learning disabilities who are unable to complete a more traditional college program. Companies like Bank Five provide guidance and structure in "real life" situations to students in the program.

SENIOR NEWS

More donations to expansion fund

The Winchester Seniors Association (WSA) fund raising committee is heartened by the continuation of donors to the building expansion fund.

During the past few months, The Winchester Star has graciously printed the lists of contributors as presented by the chairman of the publicity committee, Dr. Leonor Rich, amounting to more than 1,200 donations.

The fund raising committee of the WSA extends deep gratitude to everyone whose donations have made this tremendous project possible.

The following people have contributed in recent weeks:

Jane K. and Maurice F. Ahearn Jr.; Rita C. and Charles Alesi; Arthur H. Anderson; John W. Boynton Fund; Florence C. Brahm; A. R. and Mary M. Brink; Anthony J. DeLuca; Harold C. Dulong; James Gambino; and Henry Hornblower Fund Inc.

Also Jane W. and Charles F. Johnson; James S. and Margaret S. Keefe; Dr. and Mrs. Paul C. Keleher; Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Kohn Sr.; Edward F. and Marsha H. Lamson; Elizabeth B. Larisey; Barbara C. Leahy; Helen M. MacDonald; Alfred and Beatrice Magliozzi; and Jeffrey E. and Francine J. McClintock.

Also, Dorothy E. Osborne; Marilyn M. and Daniel J. Quigley; Joseph F. Rallo; Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Shirley; Evelyn C. Trageser; Felicity F. Tuttle; John A. and Dorothy M. Twomey; Warburton K. and Frances B. Ver Planck; Mr. and Mrs. James R. Willing; and Winchester Ltd. Jewelers Inc.

Council on aging to sponsor talk

The Winchester Council on Aging will sponsor a talk, "Older Women Surviving and Thriving," by Ruth Harriet Jacobs of Clark University at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, at Jenks Senior Center.

Jacobs was a homemaker before graduating from Boston University at 35 and a earning a doctorate at Brandeis University. She received fellowships in creative writing and national grants. She is author of "Button, Button, Who Has The Button?" a poetic drama about women and aging.

Jacobs will be the first speaker of the center's new Senior Issues Forum. She will identify the internal and external resources for older women living alone. Questions and an informal discussion will follow.

The program is open to the public and free. To register, call 721-7136. Registrants are asked to bring a sandwich; dessert and coffee will be provided.

Jenks hosts mini fair

The Winchester Seniors Association mini fair will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6, at the Jenks Senior Center.

Regina Carnilla, chairperson for the raffish items, reminds the public that there is a very beautiful 6 by 9 foot Bengali rug waiting for the holder of the lucky number. Koko Boodakian Co. generously donated the artistic piece of household furnishing.

Tickets are available at the Jenks Senior Center reception desk.

Regina Karnilla dedicated her time appearing at functions at the center with tickets for all of the raffish. She, with the valuable assistance of her husband, Al Karnilla, grossed $1400 from the Fall Fiesta Fair.

The Winchester Seniors Association expresses sincere appreciation for the diligence and support of these two people in doing so much to make the fair a financial success.

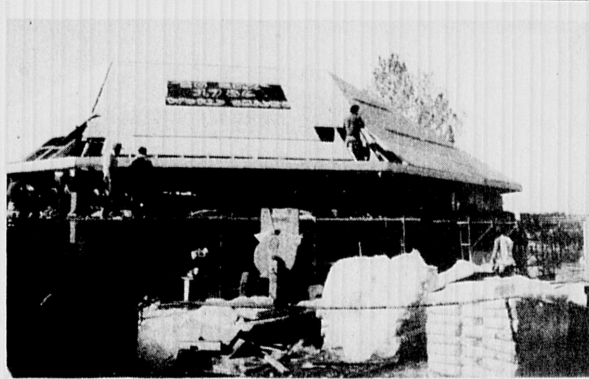

Thank you bake sale

Nov. 12 Jenks Center will host a soup and sandwich luncheon, a presentation by Jeanette Baird on "Women in the Russian Society," and a "Thank You" bake sale for the Winchester High School marching band. The bake sale will be in the lobby from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. It is now the seniors turn to show their appreciation by giving support to the Gator Bowl fund for the band's Florida trip.

Only four bands in the country were asked to participate in the program at the Gator Bowl. Seniors seek bakers for the sale.

Cakes, pies, cookies, brownies, tea loaves, bread, rolls, fudge will be gratefully received at the bake table. Marjorie Blomquist and Sylvia Saslow will run the table. Many items are necessary to make the proceeds add up to a significant amount.

Please bring baked donations to the lobby of the Jenks Senior Center by 10 a.m., in order to have it priced and displayed for sale. Cooks, both old and young, are needed.

Construction workers at the building expansion at Jenks Senior Center are Red Sox fans too. The sign, "Go Sox 1986 World Champs" proved a little premature.

Expansion is progressing

The appearance of the building addition changes daily as the builders make the best use of good weather conditions. Windows are installed, aluminum studs to support the inner walls have been put in place and the brick covering on the outside walls makes observers aware that soon the existing space will be tripled for use.

Finance committee keeps active

The finance committee of the Winchester Seniors Association has detailed, important responsibilities to be handled throughout the year. The committee functions efficiently and unobtrusively at all times, yet it is among the unsung heroes who do the job without fanfare.

Responsibilities entailed include:

preparation of the annual budget and periodic review of subsequent expenditures to establish their compliance; proposals to expend funds not included in the budget shall be reviewed by the finance committee and its recommendations submitted to the executive board for determination; management of the voluntary annual budget contribution program (VABC), endowment fund solicitations, and any other capital funds drive; and any other financial duties assigned by the executive board.

The committee consists of the following members: chairman Lawrence A. Hutchings; members, Hazen Ayer, Vincent T. Berger, Charles W. Craven, Elaine T. Delaney, Maurice T. Freeman, Alfred S. La Pointe, Francis J. Mar-duer and Janet Pavliska.

Recently added to the committee were Alfred S. La Pointe, owner of the Federal Heating and Air Conditioning Co. and Janet Pavliska, president of the Arlington Five Bank.

Cub Scouts invited to join

Winchester boys interested in joining Cub Scouts for the 1986-87 year and their parents are invited to an organization an registration meeting of Cub Scout Pack 503 at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 12.

Cubmaster Daniel Hovey said Cub Scouts who belonged to the Pack last year and boys who would like to join for the first time will be outlined and refreshments will be served.

Hovey said all boys who wish to register must be accompanied by a parent. At the meeting, plans for the coming year will be outlined and refreshments will be served.

Anyone who has a question or who will be unable to attend the Nov. 12 meeting but wishes to register may call Hovey at 721-2758 evenings or weekends.

Sundberg party attracts 21,000

Stephen Sundberg, former manager of the Winchester Theatre and a Winchester High graduate, hosted one of the largest Halloween parties in the country Friday night, Oct. 31. A total of 21,000, including 14,000 children, passed through the specially decorated haunted houses, fun rooms, ect. in several blocks of rooms of the Ramada Inn in Norman, Okla., where he is general manager.

An accurate count was kept as each child received a goodie bag of candies and cookies which were donated, free drinks and much more as the whole community pitched in to keep the youngsters safe and off the streets.

Forty policemen donated their services; the University of Oklahoma made nearby parking spaces available; the hotel offered reduced buffet prices for the adults as well as music and dancing in a party which lasted seven hours.

Sundberg phoned his father, who resides at 67 Pond St., to inform him of the tremendous success of his second annual Halloween party.

A year ago, 5,000 attended the inaugural one in Atlanta, Ga. UNICEF picked up several thousand dollars as the party's benefactor.

Two students at Curry College

Among the 330 students enrolled in the freshman class at Curry College in Milton are Susanne Debra Russo of 93 Harvard St. and Jon Cameron Sevigny of 10 Sargent Road.

Hospital to open child infirmary

"Mommy, I don't feel good." As the winter flu and cold season approaches, many working parents worry about their lack of alternative care resources should their children become ill and unable to go to school or to their day care center.

Taking time off from one's job without notice to stay home with a sick child is not welcomed by most employers. Not only is it costly but it increases the workload of other employees.

The nursing department at Winchester Hospital will offer StayCare, a sick child day care infirmary program for mildly ill children who meet certain non-contagion requirements (no rash, no known communicable disease) starting Dec. 1.

Parents who will potentially use the program must pre-register their children and bring them to the hospital for a tour of the pediatric unit. They will sign a medication and service release, giving permission for emergency treatment should it be necessary, and should present a current immunization record, all of which will be kept on file.

The program will operate around the clock Monday through Friday to accommodate parents who work days as well as evenings and nights. Lengths of stay can range from four hours to a maximum of 10.

For more information, call 729-9600, ext. 3041.

'Gigi' to open Friday night

Robert Hallisey and Wendy Klug, playing Gigi's suitor and Gigi, listen at left as Elena Landerman, playing her mother, is informed that her daughter is sought as a wife, not a mistress. Tia Van Loan, right, playing Gigi's grandmother, is the informer in the Winchester Players' production of "Gigi," slated at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday this week and next at the Unitarian Church's Metcalf Hall Theatre. Call 721-1714 for ticket reservations.

Native American culture to be featured at library

"Along a Moccasin Trail," an American Indian program of the Southwestern Tribes, will be presented by the Winchester Public Library's junior library at 3:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 21.

The program, for children four and older, will feature the song-dances, costumes and crafts of the Indian tribes of Arizona and New Mexico.

Princess Metasonya (Clear Sky), Daily Kun (Star), Orange Blossom and War Arrow will don the costumes of the buffalo, eagle, and shield dances, among others, and the air will resound with the sound of stirring Pueblo music and drumbeat.

Seating for this program is limited. Free tickets will be available in the junior library on a first come, first served basis beginning Monday, Nov. 17.

Estate planning Attorney Charles Roberts will present a seminar about estate planning at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19 at the Winchester Public Library. Because of the meteoric rise in real estate values over the past few years, many people find their estates suddenly much larger than they thought. Careful estate planning is much more important than ever.

Roberts' presentation will include tax aspects. The program, in the library meeting room is free and open to all.

Town rejects pleas of housing board, funds housing consultant job

(Continued from front page) and committees involved in housing," Welch said. "I fail to see how any additional committee could hurt. It might help."

Housing authority members had a different view. Mary Meader, chairman of the WHA, said the state, not the town, has been "unreasonably restrictive" toward the town's effort to build seven units of low-to-moderate income family housing.

Five units have state approval but transportation secretary Frederick Salvucci rejected a duplex on the Woburn Loop railroad right-of-way, saying the land could be needed for transportation in the future.

State officials in charge of housing programs have refused to start work on the first five units. Instead, they threaten to cut off state "discretionary funds" to the town unless all seven units are ready to go by the end of the current town meeting.

Town manager Chad Maurer said such funding would amount to more than $3 million in the near future, mostly for water and sewer projects. Meader pointed to the WHA's overall progress and outlined its efforts to win approval for construction on the Loop. She said the authority has seven units of Section 707 rental assistance housing and recently won 25 certificates for federally-subsidized housing.

But a WHA letter to Gov. Michael Dukakis, written Oct. 1, has gone unanswered, she said. "Let's get the plans we have now going before we get into long-range planning," Meader said.

Town meeting member Mary Pronski asked what the WHA's long-range plan is. McCarthy said hiring a professional consultant would be "throwing good money after bad."

He said the town is going to be asked to build more housing for low-to-moderate income people.

"But this is not for Winchester residents," he said. "We have a minority quota of 13 percent."

McCarthy said he is not aware of 40 people in town who would be eligible for such housing.

"Ninety percent of the undeveloped land in the town is owned by the state," McCarthy said. "The state could solve the housing problem but the state has not cooperated with this town."

McCarthy said the town has given up park and school land for the first seven units of Section 705 low-to-moderate income housing.

"But the commonwealth doesn't give a damn about poor people or housing. It's just politics, that's all," he said.

McCarthy then said the WHA might build a multi-story building on the Loop.

David Mortensen, chairman of the special town meeting committee, took the floor in response. His committee originated the proposal for professional help.

"Long-range planning is certainly not done on the floor of town meeting," he said.

"I can't tell you the emotion I feel now. This is the first time I've heard about any housing authority long-range plans."

"And you just heard a representative of the housing authority say there's no need for low-to-moderate income housing in Winchester," he said.

Mortensen reminded town meeting that a February 1985 agreement between the town and the state Executive Office of Communities and Development not only committed the town to seven units of Section 705 housing but also to begin long-range planning for housing.

"For someone to say there's no need for low-to-moderate income housing when 20 percent of the population of this town qualifies is, I suggest, irresponsible," Mortensen said.

Mortensen said his committee favors trying to win permission to build on the Loop but said special legislative action is "some months away."

He said town officials knew last spring they could not build on the Loop. The state had made it position clear, he said, but the town voted to try anyway.

"The town deserves better planning to control its future, not to go from crisis to crisis," Mortensen said.

Ann Matarese said the town doesn't need another committee.

Welch said selectmen had never heard of any proposal for a high-rise on the Loop. He noted statistics showing an aging population.

In 1970, 25 percent of the population was school-age and eight percent over 60. Ten years later, 18 percent was school age and 18 percent over 60. If the trend continues, you'll see the degradation of the school system," Welch said. "We desperately need a long-range planning."

McCarthy returned to the microphone. He said the state makes housing policies "to suit the state's needs, not the people's."

He also said towns built so much elderly housing that it "caught up to the need, so the state lowered the age definition so the need has expanded."

Frank, vice chairman of the town meeting committee, said the town must plan. "The housing authority has a plan for a high-rise, which is inconsistent with the scattered-site plan this town has had since day one," he said.

And it proposes to build on a piece of land we have no legal right to build on. If anything speaks to the need for planning, it's the housing authority's plan.

Frank said the housing authority "has not engaged in planning and it's patently obvious they do not intend to engage in planning."

By a standing vote of 110-24, town meeting rejected pleas of the housing authority and voted to create a new committee with $22,000 for outside help.

Town pursues bill to free Loop from state

With little debate, town meeting members voted Monday to continue efforts to build two units of housing on the Woburn Loop.

Without dissent, the meeting voted to petition the legislature for a special "home rule" bill that would exempt the Woburn Loop from review by state secretary of transportation Frederick Salvucci.

The town's effort to build seven units of low-to-moderate income housing stalled when Salvucci refused to allow buildings on the former railroad right-of-way, arguing that it may be needed for future transportation.

A previous bill submitted by Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh would exempt all former railroad right-of-ways owned by Massachusetts towns from review by Salvucci. State Sen. Richard Kraus opposed that bill but promised to support the new "home rule" action for the Woburn Loop only.

DESERT LEAPER
Akodon aulestes

The desert leaper stores fat in its tail. It can survive for up to 3 months without food. It eats mainly the leaves and shoots of desert shrubs and reserves most of its resources needs this way.

When repelled with feet, the desert leaper moves in a series of jumps with its forelimbs. It can move its chest 50% forward in a four-legged fashion.

The leaper can lose 50% of its body weight without losing its effects.

Both male and female have heavy eyelids and retractable eyelids as protection against sand.

Evolving:

Science Museum show forecasts peek 'after man'

By Jack Garvey

Speculators, scientists, philosophers, prophets, odds-makers, dreamers, loan-sharks, gamblers, urban planners, pollsters, meteorologists, children who ask "what if?" and any and all other curiously minded folk who would like a look at the distant future, may take one at the Future Zoo exhibit on display now through Jan. 4 at Boston's Museum of Science.

Future Zoo is based upon the controversial 1981 book, After Man: A Zoology of the Future, by Scottish paleontologist Dougal Dixon. The exhibit uses Dixon's working illustrations for its life-like animals that may evolve in 50 million years.

Calling evolution a "process of improvement," Dixon cites such things as "the delicate sculpting of a monkey's foot, enabling it to grasp objects as well as climb trees" to admit to the "near impossibility" of predicting evolution. "For how can you improve upon perfection?"

However, Dixon also cites "the ruinous effect that man is having on the precise balance of nature" to justify his projections for the creatures on display at Future Zoo.

The premise, then, is that once man is finished with self-destruction, and the destruction of animals dependent upon him, evolution will "get back to work, repairing his damage."

Since Dixon reasons that the lesser animals will fare better during and after man's decline, many of two-dozen creatures at Future Zoo are "descendants" of present-day squirrels, rabbits, rodents, monkeys, baboons, lizards and the like, although some of them will evolve to the size of lions or hippos.

Some of Dixon's animals have fanciful, but descriptive names such as: rootsucker, wwater hornhead, spine-tailed squirrel, pur rip bat, oakleaf toad, porpin (as in penguin and porpoise), bootie bird, sand flapjack, raboon, striger, hiri-hiri, flightless auk, desert leaper, mud-gulper, slobber, and flunkey, to name a few.

There's also the woolly

'Fascinating,' says Morris

"The only danger...is that some of you may reach the point where you suddenly feel saddened by the thought that the animals meticulously depicted in it do not exist now. It would be so fascinating to be able to set off on an expedition and watch them all through a pair of binoculars, moving about on the surface of today's earth."

Desmond Morris
Introduction to After Man

gigantelope, which may or may not be the inspiration for the Basselope in recent Bloom County comic strips.

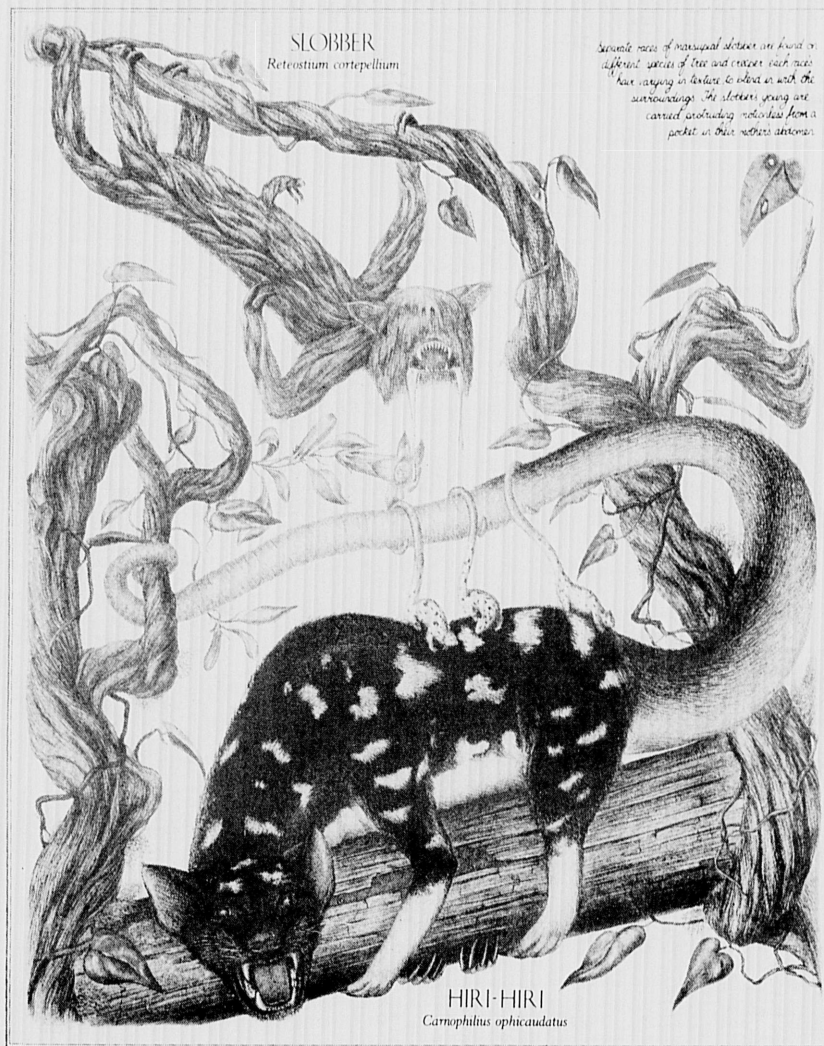

Other species of the future come in varieties, depending on what part of the world they will inhabit in 50 million years. For example, there are the desert rabbuck, mountain rabbuck, arctic rabbuck and common rabbuck. They range from three to nearly six feet tall, but all have coats of fur to camouflage them in their particular environment.

As entertaining as the concept of Future Zoo is, Dixon based his projections on sound and proven evolutionary and ecological principles.

For instance, today's horse has been traced from the hyracotherium of 60 million years ago, which became the merychippus of 25 million years ago and an equus of two million years ago. In the same process today's basic back-yard mole could be a kangaroo-sized desert leaper of the future.

If that sounds preposterous, stop and consider that the hyracotherium was no bigger than an Irish setter.

The animals at Future Zoo may be imaginary, but as Desmond Morris, a naturalist and author of The Naked Ape, points out, "they illustrate vividly a whole range of important biological principles."

In his introduction to After Man, Morris continues: "The way in which (Dixon) has perfectly balanced his vivid dreamings with a strict scientific discipline... (makes) his animals so convincing and, incidentally, so superior to the often ridiculous monsters invented by the cheaper brands of Science Fiction."

The exhibit's models were built by a Japanese firm and are on a tour of American cities. The animals are encased in dioramas built and colored to duplicate their future habitats.

Visitors enter the exhibit through a time-tunnel, which sets the stage for a trip into a future environment.

A desert leaper stands as a sentry to the exhibit, and it appears, as well, in the exhibit with moving parts, such as the museum has us-

Raboon, turmi, striger on display

As Simon and Garfunkel tell us, it's all happening at the zoo. Apparently, however, they never visited Future Zoo where their lyrics and rhymes might have included animals such as:

Raboon
Gigantelope
Mud-Gulper
Desert Leaper
Chirit
Chiselhead
Shurrack
Desert Shark
Swimming Monkey
Turmi

Oakleaf Toad
Rabbuck
Striger
Horrane
Reedstilt
Pur Rip Bat
Trueal
Testadon
Hiri-Hiri

And Khiffah, described as "equipped primarily for defense," a trait no doubt inherited from today's orangutan, the skeptical character in Simon and Garfunkel's song.

What To Learn

Dixon narrates future animals' evolution path

ed to make its dinosaurs more life-like.

A video display shows several of Dixon's animals in motion while broadcasting their sounds.

The desert leaper may have been selected for the particular honors because Dixon describes it in two forms: well-fed and emaciated. While the models show it in its wrinkled, emaciated form, the video will show, as well, a fully-fed desert leaper with a tail nearly as thick as its torso.

Moreover, the leaper has distinct running motions for its two conditions. Replete with food, it takes a series of leaps with its short forelegs folded at its chest. Emaciated, it runs on all fours.

In the front-center of Future Zoo is a globe set about four feet high on a pedestal to show the world as it will exist, according to Dixon, in the year 49,998,014. Again, Dixon bases his predictions for the future on scientific findings of the past. Applied to geography, this brings us to the theory of continental drift:

"Plate tectonics, the force responsible for continental drift, (will drive) the continents of Eurasia, Australia and North America together and (will turn) South America into an island." A western slice of Africa, meanwhile, will secede from the mainland to form a large island-called "Lemuria"--in what is now the Indian Ocean. Africa's northern shore will fuse with southern Europe to form a mountain range in what is now the Mediterranean Sea.

The globe is based upon several maps in After Man which show the locations of tropical forests and grasslands, deserts, tundra and polar regions, coniferous forests, temperate woodlands and grasslands, and islands. These are the environs represented by the dioramas.

While considering the globe, visitors to the Museum of Science's current exhibit will hear a tape-recording of Dixon's narration on life cycles of evolution.

Dixon, who turns 40 in March, has been a full-time writer and editor for six years. In addition to his work in the Earth Sciences, he is the father of two children, ages 10 and six, and author of several children's books. This helps explain why Future Zoo, despite its scholarly foundations, will interest the young.

Dixon's description of his book is perhaps the most fitting description of what visitors of all ages will become at Future Zoo:

"... a time-traveller from today

Man's effect to extreme

"One trend that is foreseeable...is the ruinous effect that man is having on the precise balance of nature. I have taken this not unjustifiably to an extreme, with man having extinguished the species that are already on the decline and having wreaked terrible destruction on their natural habitats before dying out himself and allowing evolution to get back to work, repairing his damage and filling in the gaps left behind. The raw materials for this reparation are the kinds of animals that do well despite, or because of, man's presence and which will outlive him--those that man regards as pests and vermin. These are more likely to survive than are the highly modified and interbred domestic animals that he develops and encourages to suit his own needs. The result is a zoology of the world set, arbitrarily, 50 million years in the future, which I have used to expound some of the basic principles of evolution and ecology. The result is speculation built on fact. What I offer is not a firm prediction--more an exploration of possibilities."

Dougal Dixon

Author's introduction to After Man: A Zoology of the Future

The tree drummer's feet are covered with sensitive bristles that can detect the slightest movement in the bark beneath.

The cloven hoof and claw are used in conjunction to grasp branches who has voyaged the world of that time and has studied its fauna. Such a traveller will have some knowledge of today's animal life and so he can describe things with reference to the types of animals that will be familiar to the reader."

That's when the curious traveller and all those other risk-takers will be able to go back home and tell about a most unexpected, but scientifically probable look into the future--if not of man, at least of the earth.

The Museum of Science is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesdays through Sundays. On Fridays it is open until 9 p.m.

What To Do

Front and back views of a pillar and scroll torsion alarm clock that was made by Eli Terry and Sons, Plymouth, Conn., in 1825. The clock is on exhibit at the Museum of Our National Heritage. (Photo courtesy of Museum of Our National Heritage.)

Like clockwork: Museum show eyes timepieces

The extensive clock collection of the late Willis R. Michael (1894-1969) contained many unusual timekeepers and clockwork mechanisms.

Among the various mechanical means of measuring time that have been invented through the ages, Michael was fascinated by clocks that did more than merely tell time. His collection included clocks that would activate an alarm at a predetermined time or could entertain with automatically programmed animation.

Clocks from his collection are featured in the exhibit, Alarms And Automata: Clocks From The Museum Collection, at the Museum of Our National Heritage. The exhibition opened Sunday, Nov. 2 and runs through May 31.

Alarm clocks first appeared in Europe at the end of the 14th century as special mechanisms attached to monastic clocks.

Their main purpose was to alert the clock keeper to strike bells at canonical hours—matins, lauds, vespers, etc.—calling monks to their devotions.

Alarm clocks first appeared in Europe at the end of the 14th century as special mechanisms attached to monastic clocks. Their main purpose was to alert the clock keeper to strike bells at canonical hours.

The cumbersome weight-driven clocks were adapted to simple alarm-striking functions by a level restraining a saw-toothed crown wheel.

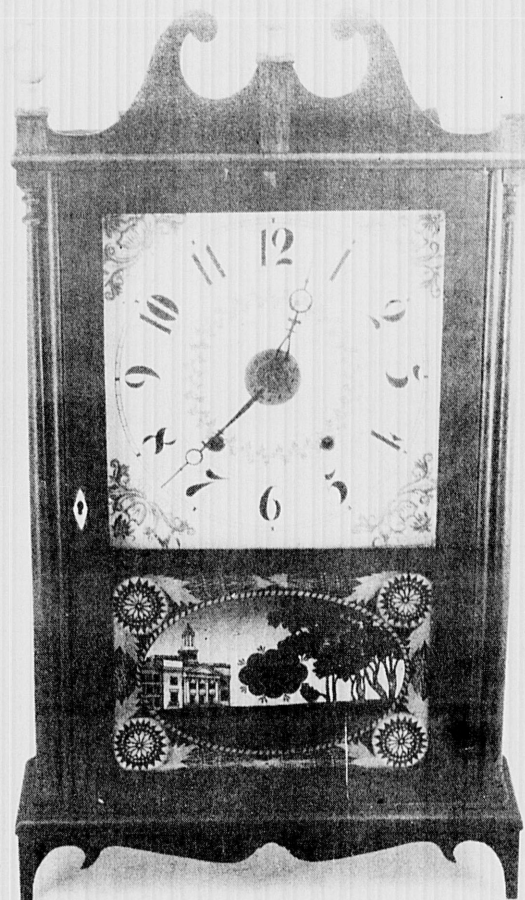

The crown wheel was powered by a separate weight that oscillated a verge staff with the alarm hammer. The single hour hand tripped the lever on each hourly rotation.

By the mid-15th century, division of the date into 24 equal parts extended the clock's regulation of domestic life beyond monastic walls. A secular need arose to preselect any hour at which the alarm could be released.

The improved alarm clock of this period had a 24-hour dial and a peg, inserted in holes around the toothed wheel carrying the hour hand, which would catch the lever that tripped the alarm release.

A second train, or series of toothed wheels, was also connected to the clock's basic timekeeping mechanism. This automatically provided impulse and power for striking the passage of each hour.

A third independent train for the alarm, featuring an indexed central alarm disc, was introduced in portable spring-driven timepieces of the 16th and 17th centuries. The indexed disc fit tightly over the hour hand and was fixed to a notched release disc behind the dial. Alarm time on the indexed "set" disc was aligned with the hour hand.

Both discs were carried around by the hour hand until the notch aligned with a spring-loaded lever. As the lever dropped into the notch, its opposite end tripped the alarm. American clockmakers of the 19th century continued to use the dependable central alarm disc with variations, sometimes placing the alarm mechanism outside the plates of the timepiece movement.

Clocks with automata, or self-operating mechanical figures, were inspired by the jointed cult figures of antiquity.

Subsequent application of ingenious hydraulic, pneumatic, and mechanical mechanisms by the Greeks, Romans, and Persians made such human and animal figures appear to move by themselves.

Clocks with automata were installed in cathedrals, belfries, and on the facades of municipal buildings as early as the 14th century.

With hammer in hand, these early animated mechanical figures, or "Jacks," provided public amusement as they enacted automatically the striking of bells tolling the hours. Smaller clocks with automata were also owned by individuals.

Coiled springs replaced weights in the 16th and 17th centuries, which reduced the size of the clocks. Craftsmen were thus able to use this compact, more convenient power source to create great varieties of complicated automata.

The German towns of Augsburg and Nuremberg became centers for the production of such mechanical marvels.

By the mid-17th century, automata were acting out mythological stories, fantasies, and religious themes to the sound of musical accompaniment.

The Museum of National Heritage, located in historic Lexington at the junction of Massachusetts Ave. and Marrett Rd. (Route 2A), is open seven days a week. Admission and parking are free. Hours are Monday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Sunday, noon-5 p.m. For more information, call the museum at 861-6559.

Charity returns to Broadway

REVIEW

Charity Hope Valentine is back on Broadway, back where she belongs, and the ol' gal never looked better.

She's still plying her trade as a taxi dancer at the Fan-Dango Ballroom and, along with Helene and Nicki and the rest of the gang, wowing audiences nightly at the Minskoff Theatre, W. 45th St.

Sweet Charity is the same wide-eyed, somewhat simple-minded, madcap "spiritual virgin" we were introduced to 20 years ago—the good-natured, innocent dance hall hostess passing herself off as a "social consultant," who "runs her heart like a hotel, with guys checking in and out all the time." She's still the persistent romantic who wants only to be loved and forever hopeful that that elusive commodity is just around the corner.

Actually, this energetic, bubbly, sentimental farce is better the second time around. The show has been tightened: it's taut and moves like wildfire. There's a stunning picturization. That the music and script have been slightly reworked is of little import.

Sweet Charity underscores the brilliance of Dorothy Fields' lyrics, Cy Coleman's often underrated score, and Neil Simon's serviceable book, and is further enhanced by Robert Randolph's spectacular lighting and his fragmentary scenery.

at divergent angles and at odds like the turmoil in Charity's life, and Patricia Zipprodt's glittery costumes. From the overture on, Ralph Burns' orchestrations as conducted by Fred Werner are scintillating.

But it is the rare genius of Bob Fosse that surges through. Brilliantly re-directed and re-choreographed by Fosse, and well-deserving of its four 1986 Tony Awards, Sweet Charity is a rousing, raucous, rollicking, wonderful good time crowned by Fosse's stamp of individuality—his vibrant, volatile, electrifying and explosive choreography!

There's no better example of Fosse's clever, innovative and distinctive style than his sullenly sexy Big Spender, with its syn-copating burlesque beat and soft staccato, opening with the silhouette of the line of girls hanging over the dance railing, then breaking into a routine with bodies moving in ways never humanly intended. It's great fun and great staging.

But there's more. Sweet Charity features the abundant and unflagging talents of five-foot, one-inch TV star Debbie Allen (Fame) as the sassy, spunky, spirited, sympathetic (albeit less vulnerable) Charity, the role originated by Gwen Verdon, who reconstructed the show's original choreography for Debbie.

Poured into the familiar black body-hugging sheath, shoulder bag and five-inch heels, heart-shaped tattoo and dangling hoop earrings, the fluid, versatile, dynamic Allen sizzles on all four burners, kicks up a storm, and is a joy.

She shines in the captivating sequence featuring the bouncy If My Friends Could See Me Now, creates a gorgeous dramatic moment as she anguishes over her deception with her boyfriend Oscar in the poignant Where Am I Going, and excels once again in the happy and infectious I'm A Brass Band.

Rich Man's Frug spotlights the amazing body control of the dance ensemble in contortionistic positions.

Mark Jacoby, as the celebrated Italian movie star Vittorio Vidal, makes the most of his two scenes in the first act, showboating a beautiful tenor voice in Too Many Tomorrows, and, as a straight man for Charity when he observes, "Your religion is love," to which Charity responds, "Well, I'll tell you one thing... I go to church a lot!"

Michael Rupert is ideal as the shy accountant Oscar who suffers from acrophobia and claustrophobia, and who finds purity in Charity, and Carrie Nygren is perfect as Vittorio's blonde, statuesque fiancée.

The basic changes in the musical are a shorter and reworked version of the gospel/rock Rhythm Of Life, new music for I'm the Bravest Individual, and the music used in the film version for the title tune.

Nunsense stays theatre season

Harlem Dance theatre plays at Hub

The extraordinary Dance Theatre of Harlem offers three performances at The Wang Center for the Performing Arts, Nov. 21 through 23.

For its Boston engagement, Dance Theatre of Harlem will offer two different programs with choreography by Billy Wilson, Glen Tetley, John Taras, Geoffrey Holder, George Balanchine, and John McFall.

The Dance Theatre of Harlem's Hub engagement, which opens on Friday, Nov. 21, for three performances only, includes: Nov. 21, 8 p.m., Concerto in F, choreography by Billy Wilson and music by George Gershwin; Voluntaries, choreography by Glenn Tetley and music by Francis Poulenc; Stars & Stripes, choreography by George Balanchine and music by John Philip Sousa. The program for Saturday, Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 23 at 3 p.m. includes: Douglia, choreography and music by Geoffrey Holder; Toccata, choreography by John McFall and music by Bohuslav Martinu; Firebird, choreography by John Taras and music by Igor Stravinsky.

Tickets priced at $28.50, $25.50, $20.50, and $15.50 are available at The Wang Center box office and at all Ticket Master outlets. To order tickets by phone, call 1-800-682-8080. Special discounts are available to groups of 10 or more by calling the Wang Celebrity Series at 482-2595.

Nunsense extended through Nov.

Due to popular demand Nunsense, the hilarious, irreverent musical comedy currently playing at the Boston Shakespeare Theatre, has been extended through Nov. 30.

Nunsense, which opened Oct. 15, has been received so enthusiastically that the producers have decided to extend the show's run.

The winner of four 1986 Outer Critics' Circle Awards, Nunsense recounts the adventures of the Little Sisters of Hoboken, who stage a talent show to raise money to bury four of their number currently in the convent freezer, victims of botulism.

Nunsense runs Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 6:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. Tickets are $21.50 and $17.50 Tuesday through Thursday and Sunday, and $25.50 and $23.50 for all Friday and Saturday performances. For information, call 267-5600. To charge tickets by phone, call ChargeTix at 542-8511.

A cabaret of new works

PS 122 Field Trips, a travelling cabaret-style show featuring some of New York's most talked about performance artists, choreographers and musicians, is presented at Suffolk University Theatre on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 14 and 15, at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

The Field Trips includes two separate programs of new work commissioned by the New England Foundation for the Arts, and developed this fall at Williams and Bennington Colleges.

Each show includes live performances, films and multi-image slide installations and is hosted by singer/comedienne Gayle Tufts.

Show A (Friday at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 9:30 p.m.) includes monologues and songs by Tufts, a Brockton native, who is also a member of the performance group The School of Hard Knocks.

Show A features performance artists Mark Anderson and Mimi Goese, filmmaker John Jesuran and choreographer Susan Rethorst, musical performances by instrumentalist/composer Bill Obrecht and a slide installation by Robert Flynt.

Show B (Friday at 9:30 p.m. and Saturday at 7 p.m.) includes solo dance works by Ishmael Houston-Jones and Ann Carlson.

Sizwe Bansi is theatre triumph

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Because the play is set in South Africa, reviewers of Sizwe Bansi Is Dead, the current attraction at The Theatre in Newburyport, sometimes miss the author's point.

The plot revolves around a black man, Sizwe Bansi, who loses his right to stay in Port Elizabeth and is ordered back to his homeland by the government.

By sheer luck, he and his only buddy, Buntu, find a dead man on the street after a drinking binge. The dead man has an internal passport and a lodging permit allowing him to stay in Port Elizabeth forever.

Buntu urges Sizwe to seize the dead man's passbook and destroy his own. "Sizwe Bansi is dead," Buntu declares. "You are Robert Zwelenzema."

Buntu learned survival in the white man's world long ago. But Sizwe doesn't want to give up his name, the integrity he has left.

Only two actors play all three characters, including a black photographer who first protected his own integrity by mistranslating the orders of his white bosses at a Ford plant to his black brothers.

On the surface, the play forces white Americans to confront apartheid as it affects individuals and their families. Too often, racism is conceived in terms of the masses; its real effect is on individuals.

But the 15-year-old play by Athol Fugard is also about the compromises each person makes for survival. What will we give to survive? Each character in Sizwe Bansi Is Dead has his answer. Fugard wants the audience to answer too.

Stephen Burrell, who plays two characters, and Mansur, who is Sizwe, are the entire cast.

Both are excellent and make the play's point in a consistently amusing, sometimes hilarious, way.

Anger, certainly a part of the character's lives, is apparent but is not the dominant theme.

Staging by director Robert Heinlein is sparse but adequate. The intimate atmosphere of the 60-seat theater allows actors to confront the audience throughout the production. If you're uncomfortable with that, avoid the first two rows.

But see this play — not because it's about South Africa and trendy but because its questions are universal and eternal.

Sizwe Bansi runs Thursday through Sunday at 8 p.m. (7 p.m. Sunday) at The Theatre in Newburyport, 75 Water St. Reservations necessary. 462-3332 or 465-2983.

Dances incorporate the political and improvisatory style for which he is well known.

Carlson's performance solo is the second in a series of works which she performs with a live animal, a moving piece in which she dances with a kitten to Beethoven's Quartet #15, Opus 132.

Performance artist, political satirist and eccentric comedian, Paul Zaloom brings his In America to Show B. It is a rapid-fire piece about prison, education, farming and eating in America, performed with props.

Throughout both shows is Robert Flynt's evolving slide installation suite Transparent Routes/Hidden Drives.

Suffolk University Theatre is located at 55 Temple St. on Beacon Hill in Boston. All seats are $7. For tickets and information call 720-1988.

Handel & Haydn Society in concert

Artistic director Christopher Hogwood conducts the Handel & Haydn Society Chorus and Orchestra in the second concert of the 172nd season, Friday, Nov. 7, at 8 p.m. at Symphony Hall in Boston.

In a unique collaboration, the Studebaker Movement Theatre Company will perform original choreography to Stravinsky's light-hearted "commedia dell'arte" ballet Pulcinella.

Inspired by the music of the Italian Baroque composer Giovanni Pergolesi, Pulcinella will be coupled with a performance of Pergolesi's well-known Stabat Mater.

Tickets are $28, $22, $15 and $10, and are available at the H & H box office. Phone orders may be placed through CHARGIT at 542-3600. The Symphony Hall box opens ninety minutes before performance time, and student rush rickets (subject to availability) will go on sale for $7 one hour before performance time.

4 to 6 p.m.	Sixth sign following
6 to 8 p.m.	Seventh sign following
8 to 10 p.m.	Eighth sign following
10 to Midnight	Ninth sign following
Midnight to 2 a.m.	Tenth sign following
2 to 4 a.m.	Eleventh sign following

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — As confusion settles, you'll have the chance to go back and correct a previous mistake. You're in the driver's seat and can make progress but don't neglect the details. Changes occurring now will benefit you in the long run.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Pressures should ease and your popularity is high — make contacts. An open and frank discussion may be necessary to restore harmony in a relationship. Offer help to someone in need but not money if it strains your finances.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Protect your interests and don't fall into a depression if someone disappoints you. Handle a touchy situation with calm and use your outstanding powers of persuasion. Try not to force issues — things will be resolved with time.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — An opportunity could present itself with support and the backing needed — grab it! People in power positions will notice you and a raise in pay is possible. Business and pleasure mix well and finances may suddenly improve.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — A surprise gift could arrive and others around you are more cooperative. Look your best, advertise and promote yourself. You could gain a more powerful position. Take the lead, express your ideas and your prestige increases.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — The key to handling a significant relationship is cooperation — defer to your partner. Be a detective and dig deep for information you need but be discreet. Keep your own counsel, prioritize your values and set personal goals.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Use your organizational skills, take the lead and others will be impressed. Resist feelings of jealousy and you'll learn a lot from a very progressive person. Discuss finances with mate or partner and set up a savings program.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Hold onto your logic and don't go overboard emotionally now. You could have an opportunity to take the lead in a work situation — do it! Stay clear of intrigue, get all the facts and don't play cloak-and-dagger games.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Family members may bring their troubles to you — help those who are willing to help themselves. Your intuition is trustworthy and can lead to gain in a speculative venture. Quit procrastinating and finish that project!

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Try a new approach to old problems, use your originality and be daring. Be open to interesting, intelligent people who help you expand your horizons. Enjoy sentimental family celebrations in your newly beautified home.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Spending money on things you don't really need won't make you feel any better and may endanger your financial security! Read carefully anything you sign now. Home life is accented and you may be considering a change of residence.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Come out of your shell and express yourself enthusiastically. Good time to begin a self-improvement program. A financial deal that looks too good to be true probably is — get good advice and remember you get what you pay for!

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

Michael Dowling of Boston is one of nearly 400 artists of local, national and international prominence who are participating in an art auction this Saturday to benefit The AIDS Action Committee. Dowling's painting shown here, You Can't Go Back, is oil on canvas.

ARTcetera heads events

Boston's art community has rallied to organize and support the largest charity art auction in New England this Saturday at 7 p.m. at Boston City Hall.

More than 400 works of art and art-related items, valued at nearly $400,000 will be sold at ARTcetera '86, the gala fundraising event by the AIDS Action Committee (AAC) to help in its fight against Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS). Governor Michael Dukakis and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn, honorary co-chairs of the event last year, have declared Nov. 8 ARTcetera '86 Day.

Last year's auction raised $117,000 for the AAC and was significant not only for its financial success, but also because it was the first AIDS fundraising event to receive widespread political support.

This year's organizers hope to double the money of ARTcetera '85. Proceeds of ARTcetera '86 are earmarked for the Necessities of Life Program of the AAC, which provides emergency loans to people with AIDS to cover housing, food and medical needs.

The art establishment — artists, gallery owners, museum curators and directors — has given not only their names in support of ARTcetera '86, but have donated their talent, time and energy to ensure its success.

This year's honorary board includes 42 of the most respected and admired members of the city's art community. Barbara Krakow, owner of Barbara Krakow Gallery and David Bonetti, art critic of the Boston Phoenix, are co-chairs.

The evening's festivities begin at 5:30 p.m. with a champagne preview. Robert Woolley of Sotheby's, New York, and Stephen Fletcher of Robert W. Skinner Inc. of Bolton and Boston are the auctioneers.

Advance reservations are required. Call 482-5822.

Colorful constructions

Lincoln — through Nov. 28. Donald Dreifuss introduces viewers to his personal mythology of painted constructions, a jungle world where spirits of animals become an exuberant, polychromed reality, in his solo show at Clark Gallery located in the mall at Lincoln Station. The public is invited to the opening Saturday from 4 to 6 p.m. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Call 259-8303.

Stroh is guest coordinator and cataloguer of the Downe collection. 1976-1986 Ten Years Of Collecting Contemporary American Art: Selections From The Edward R. Downe Jr. Collection opens at the Wellesley College Museum Nov. 13 and will be on view through Jan. 18, 1987. Such well known contemporary artists as Eric Fischl, Neil Jenney, Susan Rothenberg and Jennifer Bartlett are included in this comprehensive exhibition, the first showing of a major New York collection. Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission free. Call 235-0320, extension 2051.

Big, expressive, abstract

Cambridge — through Nov. 30. Van Buren/Brazelton/Cutting Gallery, 290 Concord Ave., presents the large paintings of Jo Ann Rothschild. Richly colored, spatially expressive and expressively gestural, the works may be viewed from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday. The public is invited to a reception honoring the artist Friday from 5 to 7 p.m. For information call 354-0304.

At the ICA

Boston — through Nov. 30. The Institute of Contemporary Art, 955 Boylston St. exhibits Endgame: Reference and Simulation in Recent Painting and Sculpture and CURRENTS. Endgame features two inter-related groups of artist from the United and Canada whose works respond to a culture dominated by mass media. CURRENTS presents paintings by Clifton Peacock and a photo-textual installation by Rosamond Wolff Purcell and Stephen Jay Gould. Boston artist and educator Ron Rizzi presents a gallery talk in conjunction with the Endgame exhibition at 2 p.m. Sunday. The ICA is open Wednesday through Sunday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursdays and Fridays 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Admission free from 5 to 8 p.m. Fridays. Call Arts Information Line: 266-5151.

UPDATING THE MARKET

You may have heard of the nearly unbelievable increase in property values recently. Prices of most homes west of Boston actually increased about 2% per MONTH during the last year!

Professional appraisers all agree, however (and Realtors substantiate this) that this record-breaking inflation of house prices has slowed down since the start of this past June.

Presently, property values are staying relatively even. What does this mean to you? If a house like yours sold for $180,000, yours is not likely to sell for more—at this time.

Keep in mind, however, that real estate trends change rapidly! We make it our business to keep abreast of all changes that affect your property value, from inflation factor to mortgage rate, to the number of homes presently for sale that might compete with yours. Even if you've had a market analysis recently, ask us for an update.

Louise Ruma-Ivers is the immediate past President of the Greater Boston Women's Council of Realtors, and a past Director of the Marketing Institute for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. She is a member of the Arlington Historic Districts Committee.

Dot Stein is a Vice President of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and a Director of its Multiple Listing Service. She was a long-time Arlington Town Meeting member, and a member of the Arlington School Committee.

Historic Shores Give Berth To An Incomparable Community.

A spirited parkside community is about to be launched on the banks of the Mystic River. Boasting superb views over the river, an expansive and verdant park next door and the Boston skyline beyond, this site is rich with the proud history of Medford's shipbuilding era.

The 89 townhouses at Shoreside Green are uniquely sited around beautifully landscaped greens opening out to the park and river's edge. Several blocks away from Medford Square and just minutes drive to I-93 or the Wellington Circle T Station, Shoreside Green offers unusual access to both Route 128 and downtown Boston.

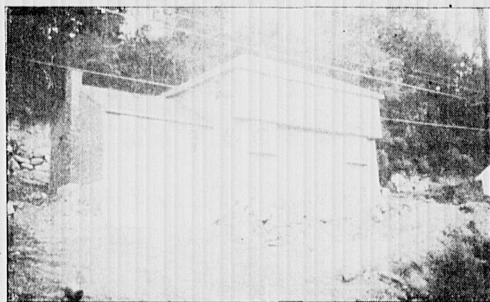

The architecture provides three distinct floor plans, each with a fireplace and its own striking view from a balcony or private garden.

Unihab, Inc., a highly regarded Cambridge real estate development firm, is now preparing to offer for purchase a select number of condominium residences. Shoreside Green is designed, developed and marketed by Unihab and will be ready for occupancy this spring. For more information regarding Shoreside Green's initial offering, call (617) 396-4200.

'Twas the month before Christmas
and money was tight
I was checking the Want Ads
each day and each night.
I could file, sort mail and do some light typing too.
But I wanted to work til
Christmas was through.
I signed up at Staff Builders
and as quick as could be
They found the right job
and there was no fee.
Now I work when I want to
and have time to be free.
And I've plenty of money.
MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ME!!

"Twas the month before Christmas,
Santa sat by the fire
He needed more elves,
But didn't know who to hire
He sipped his hot chocolate with a sigh of dismay
So much work to do in so very few days!
Then what to his tired old eyes should appear,
But this week's "What's Up" section and he got an idea!
He opened it up with a jolly Ho! Ho! Ho!
He dialed 729-8100!
"The kids are so good" he said "So few have been bad!"
Saint Nick had to place a "HOLIDAY HELP WANTED" AD!
With each tiny applicant Santa's confidence grew.
As he happily conducted each elf interview!
His inventory grew as they stocked all his shelves.
His workshop now bustling with busy young elves!
Santa sat back and counted the days till his ride.
So relieved that he'd called CENTURY CLASSIFIEDS!

Audi Remanufactured Parts. Built Like New. Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit - alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts - is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts. * The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

*Ask for Autobahn or Audi Limited Warranty at Our Parts Department.

Volunteers sought for infirmary

Volunteers are needed at Winchester Hospital to assist with "Staycare," an innovative new program.

Beginning Dec. 1, the hospital will introduce a sick child infirmary program for mildly ill children whose parents are not able to be home with them.

Volunteers will assist the nursing staff by reading stories, organizing quiet play activities, helping with meals and nourishment or rocking infants.

Prospective volunteers may attend an orientation at 10 a.m. Monday, Nov. 17, in the hospital board room. Ellen Shea, pediatric head nurse, will answer questions. A tour of the pediatric unit will follow.

For further information, contact Marie Johnson, director of volunteers, at 729-9000, ext. 3094.

POLICE LOG

Police to enforce all-night parking

Winchester police chief John P. McHugh reminds residents his department will begin to strictly enforce the all-night parking law for the winter.

Article IV, section 8 of the town traffic regulations reads: Night Parking Prohibited.

No vehicle except physicians, nurses or clergymen while visiting the sick, shall be parked on any street for a period of time longer than one hour between the hours of 1 and 7 a.m. Violators will be subjected to a $5 fine for each offense.

Monday, Nov. 10

At 5:40 a.m., a Plato Terrace resident told police someone hit his 1976 Pontiac Grand Prix while it was parked in front of his home. Minor damage was done to the rear of the car.

Sunday, Nov. 9

At 4:51 p.m., police reported a car accident on Cambridge Street. Police cited a Medford resident for driving at an unreasonable speed and failure to stay in marked lanes. Police said the man lost control when he was making a left turn onto Cambridge Street from High Street. He drove his car up over a curb, hit a light pole and smashed into a parked car.

Saturday, Nov. 8

At 11:21 a.m., a Cutting Street resident told police someone smashed a rear window of his 1986 Nissan.

At 12:25 a.m., police reported a car accident on Irving Street. A Chester Street resident, driving a Ford Sedan, collided with an East Pepperhill resident, driving a Mercury station wagon. Both cars were towed from the scene.

Friday, Nov. 7

At 8:54 a.m., a Park Avenue resident told police someone stole a $200 stereo from her Volkswagen Jetta.

At 1:01 p.m., a Domino's Pizza employee told police someone stole a $95 citizens band radio and a $40 power mike from his Chevrolet Camaro. His car was parked in the rear of Domino's parking lot on Main Street.

At 3:28 p.m., a Swanton Street resident reported a broken window at her home.

At 11:08 p.m., police reported a car accident at Main Street at Symmes Corner. Police said a Chicago resident, driving a 1984 Renault Alliance, and an Allan Road resident, driving a 1983 Chevrolet Caprice, collided. Minor damage was done to both cars.

TOWN HALL OPENINGS

Vacancies exist for one member on the fair housing committee until June 1, 1988 and one member on the council on aging until March 31, 1989. Duties of the fair housing committee include ensuring objectives are reached, acting as a clearinghouse for information, assisting in securing housing and increasing public awareness of the town's fair housing commitment.

Duties of the council on aging will be to identify the total needs and resources of Winchester's elderly population, to design services in response to the needs, to educate the community and enlist its support in implementing council programs.

Please respond in writing, including a daytime phone number, to the Board of Selectmen, 71 Mt. Vernon St., town hall.

MBTA will issue senior IDs Nov. 25

An MBTA registration team will be at the Veteran's Memorial Senior Center, 144 School St., Woburn from 9:30 to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 25, to issue identification cards permitting senior citizens to ride MBTA rapid transit lines and local buses for reduced rates. With the cards, senior citizens may ride rapid transit lines and local buses for 10 cents at all times.

Citizens who have special needs certification forms completed by their physician can also obtain a special needs identification card. These cards are valid at all times and allows the bearer to ride a 60-cent subway route or 50-cent bus route for 10 cents. If the fare exceeds that amount, the cardholders pay half fare.

To be eligible for a senior citizen reduced fare identification card, which contains the name and address of the holder and a color photograph for positive identification, senior citizens must bring proof of age—65 years or older, such as a birth certificate, baptismal record, or driver's license; proof of residency such as a drivers' license, utility bill, library card, or charge plate; and a 50-cent cash fee.

Medicare cards will not be accepted as proof of age.

Senior citizens who already have a reduced fare identification card do not need to register again.

Eligibility for a handicapped citizen reduced fare identification card requires completion of the MBTA special needs certification form by a physician, with the exception of the category of eligibility for mental retardation. Applications for retarded citizens may be completed by a licensed psychologist or licensed social worker.

Certification forms can be obtained by calling 722-5834 or writing the Certification Program, c/o MBTA Sales & Marketing, 10 Park Plaza, Room 5610, Boston 02116.

Veterans with 70 percent or more disability can receive a special needs photo identification card with documentation from the U.S. Veterans Administration. Lastly, citizens with eligibility for The Ride can receive a special needs card using The Ride eligibility certification as proof.

Town won't benefit from hospital program

A new life-support system will be available to residents of most area towns Nov. 16.

Winchester will not benefit, however, even though Winchester Hospital is part of the North Suburban Medical Consortium. The group will provide pre-hospital advanced life support (ALS) to the area, including Arlington, Lexington, Woburn, Bedford, Burlington, Billerica, Reading, North Reading and Wilmington.

Patients from those towns who are going to Winchester Hospital, Choate Hospital in Woburn, Symmes Hospital in Arlington or the Lahey Clinic Medical Center in Burlington will receive "an extra level of expertise," spokesmen for the consortium say.

Winchester selectmen have refused to join the consortium at least twice, in part because representatives of the organization have not responded to their requests to visit a selectmen's meeting.

In the participating towns, the advanced life support system is activated when a resident calls the ambulance, typically in fire department headquarters. The consortium immediately dispatches paramedics, when needed, in addition to the emergency medical technicians who form most fire department ambulance crews.

When the Massachusetts Public Health Council approved the consortium's application for a Determination of Need for the development of the ALS program, it called it "one of the best planning efforts we have ever seen, given three institutions and 10 communities."

"After five years of planning, it is a pleasure to see this life-saving system being provided as a cooperative effort by these hospitals for the people in the towns we serve," said Neil Stroman, vice president for clinical services at Choate-Symmes and chairman of the consortium.

"What this means is that the consortium will provide a number of services. Paramedics are trained to administer medications (under a physician's direction) in the field and to provide education for fire department dispatchers.

"Paramedics are capable of transmitting EKGs back to the hospital emergency room and to follow established protocols in stabilizing and caring for the patient enroute to the hospital. The whole program is viewed as a supplement to the fire department EMTs (emergency medical technicians) who have provided excellent service to the communities for a long time. In no way will this diminish. In fact, it will expand their part in providing additional services to the community."

Dr. Michael S. Erdos, director of the emergency/walk-in care center at the Symmes Hospital division of Choate-Symmes, agreed.

"Very simply," Erdos said, "an ALS system provides a two-tier level of care for the potentially life-threatening need for emergency help. Calls (like the two cited above) are received by the dispatcher at the local fire department headquarters, who has two options, depending on the nature of the call.

"He can dispatch only the basic life support (BLS) vehicle with fire department EMTs as in the past; or he can simultaneously also dispatch the nearest ALS vehicle with its team of paramedics.

"Both will respond when there are certain pre-determined conditions such as chest pains or a bad motor vehicle accident. Only the BLS team would respond to a report of a high school football player with an injured ankle; however, if a player is unconscious on the field, both would be summoned. In other words, in the interest of time, both will be dispatched if the initial call warrants it."

There will be two ALS vehicles in the service area one in Arlington and one in Burlington. The occasion may arise when BLS and ALS vehicles will arrive at some locations within two or three minutes of each other.

Dr. Eleanor Hobbs, chairman of the emergency medical department at Lahey Clinic, said "the availability of pre-hospital advanced life support has an effect on the survival rates for a wide range of critical problems.

Dr. Jon Jenkins, director of the Emergency Department at Winchester Hospital, agreed.

"Essentially, the ALS system takes the physician out into the field and makes possible physician evaluation and treatment at a much earlier time. Paramedics can intubate, administer medications, and start an IV. Their training provides them with the capability to treat a whole variety of problems at the site," Jenkins said.

"Ideally," he said, "the physicians in the Emergency Room stays in constant contact with the paramedics while they stabilize the patient(s). Highly sophisticated care is very important in terms of patient survival," Jenkins said, adding, "it is unfortunate that Winchester has elected not to join the ALS system."

Physicians predict that paramedics will be trained to perform additional functions. Initially, education will center on the fire department dispatchers and EMTs and the extremely vital roles they will play in the new program. Dispatchers are key; based on the initial call, it is they who determine whether both units should be dispatched.

Equally important is educating the community to the way the system works. "Citizens cannot pick up the phone and summon the paramedics. That will be done only by the dispatcher," said Paul Fitzpatrick, who was appointed director of paramedics services last spring.

"A common misconception that people in this service area share is that if someone sees an auto accident or any kind of medical emergency, all he or she has to do is call the emergency number and someone will respond. The reality is that less than 20 percent of the Boston area is covered by paramedic teams. The goal of this whole program is to improve pre-hospital care which may in a very real way alter the outcome of a serious or life-threatening condition."

REAL ESTATE TODAY

Ann Blackham C.R.B.

INVESTMENT IN LIVING

Home ownership is unequalled in importance to personal finances of American families. In fact, the more than $3 trillion in equity represented by Americans' stake in their homes is one of the biggest sources of savings and investment in the U.S. economy. What supported the last economic recovery? Housing. What is one of the fastest growing segments of retailing in the U.S.? Home improvement. Everyone, homeowner or not, benefits directly or indirectly from the continued growth of residential real estate.

For the third year running, a Gallup Study found that real estate topped the list of investments preferred by Americans. It far outranked its nearest competitor, money market funds. Most of the respondents thought real estate was by far the best use of their money.

In addition to investment value, the tax advantages of real estate are considered to be better than anything else going. Don't take my word for it—Gallup reports what he hears.

Nurse Sue Powers of the Winchester Hospital education department tells a seventh grade home economics class at McCall Junior High the importance of good prenatal care. She warns about using alcohol, drugs or tobacco. Seventh graders also visited the public library recently to learn the technique of storytelling, important for babysitters, from children's librarian Heidi Zeibig.

Hospital emergency department dedicated to Curtin's memory

The emergency department at Winchester Hospital was recently dedicated in honor and memory of F. Gregory Curtin, Jr., M.D., surgeon and beloved member of the medical staff, who passed away six years ago.

Dr. Curtin's son, F. Gregory, III, a student at Tufts University School of Medicine, voiced the family's appreciation. He and his mother unveiled a bronze likeness of Dr. Curtin. The commemorative plaque will be permanently and prominently displayed in the emergency department on the ground floor of the new Hood Wing.

Following the unveiling, Hugh F. McCarthy, M.D., spoke about his associate and close friend. He sketched Dr. Curtin's career as a friend, confidante and counselor to the medical staff, and devoted friend and father. He also paid tribute to him as "a dedicated surgeon whom the staff and the community held in highest regard."

Austin Broadhurst, representing the hospital's board of directors, welcomed family members, friends, and physicians.

Also present were Dr. Curtin's daughter, Sally J., and his three other sons, Walter T., Christopher J., and Andrew J.

After the dedication, the nearly 70 guests moved to the Kingsbury Seminar Room for a reception. A champagne toast was proposed to the memory of Dr. Curtin and to the occasion remembering him. A charcoal sketch, which served as the basis for the bronze likeness, was presented to Mrs. Curtin. They are the work of Robert Todd.

Dr. Curtin was 46 at the time of his death. He received a bachelor of science degree in physics from Tufts University in 1956, and his medical degree from Tufts Medical school in 1960. He completed a surgical internship and residency training program on the Tufts surgical service between 1960 and 1965 at Boston City Hospital. Dr. Curtin was a diplomate of the American Board of Surgery and a fellow of the American College of Surgeons. He was an associate clinical professor of surgery at Tufts Medical School, a member of the active medical staff at Winchester Hospital and of its board of directors, and was on the staff of several area hospitals. He was associated with Middlesex Surgical Associates.

He was a member of the Boston Surgical Society, a counselor to the Massachusetts Medical Society, past president of the Middlesex East District Medical Society and a member of the American Medical Association.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

THE SETTLEMENT

It's a week before you're supposed to settle on your new home. You've arranged for the movers, the utility companies have set up an orderly transfer of your telephone, electric, water, and gas accounts, and you're planning to take a few days off, now feeling completely organized about the move. Good! Just remember that settlement dates aren't set in stone, especially in an active market. Lenders, appraisers, title attorneys, credit check services, and anyone else who's involved in real estate transactions can, for one reason or another, cause a delay of the settlement. If you keep this in mind while you're making your arrangements, you can plan to minimize the possible cost and inconvenience due to a delay.

As the settlement time approaches, your real estate agent will keep in touch with everyone involved in your transaction and stay on top of the situation, helping to prevent any unnecessary delays.

For a professional real estate agent who can help you through all of the phases of buying or selling property, call Bixby & Porter Company Realtors at 729-7000, or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson St., Winchester. We're here to serve all of your real estate needs.

Delightful family home with 2 room first floor bedroom suite, study, music room, fireplace livingroom, charming dining room, modern family kitchen & bath, deck, plus three second floor bedrooms and a bath. A great buy at $329,900.

Mt. Vernon House director honored at retirement

Winchester Mt. Vernon House resident director Mrs. Grace P. Phillips was honored at a reception Nov. 2 for 16 years of service to the home. All volunteer directors who had served during those years were invited.

The new resident administrator of the private non-profit retirement home is Eileen D. Salender the administrator's assistant for the past five years.

Plans include painting and redecorating the main living room and halls.

Salender said there are currently two vacancies in the home, which provides care, comfort, and support in a convenient downtown location for men and women 65 years and over for their lifetime.

Interested persons are encouraged to contact Salender at 110 Mt. Vernon St.

Sen. Kraus celebrates victory

Buoyed by his large margin of victory over Helen Metros, Sen. Richard Kraus (D-4th Middlesex) expressed appreciation to supporters at a party in his Arlington campaign headquarters Nov. 4.

"I am touched by your show of dedication and commitment over the past few months," Kraus told the gathering. "I'm ready to work to continue earning your respect during my third term in the state senate."

Kraus, whose district includes Winchester, Arlington, Lexington and Woburn, defeated Metros with 72 percent of the vote.

"My deepest thanks go to the people who honored me with their vote," Kraus said.

"I would like to give a special thanks to Winchester resident John Stevens, who organized the distribution of my legislative report, and more than 250 volunteers who helped distribute it," he said.

"Finally I must congratulate Helen Metros for her spirited effort," Kraus said.

Noting the likelihood of his appointment to the chair of one of the more vital legislative committees, Kraus said he is enthusiastic about beginning his fifth year in the senate.

"I am confident that I will serve the residents of Winchester honorably as I gain a louder voice in state policy making," Kraus said.

"I'm also excited about our continued progress in devising a local aid formula which makes the distribution to aid to town and cities more equitable," Kraus said. Kraus is the senate chair of the Special Commission on Local Aid.

Sen. Richard Kraus, right, enjoys a laugh with his chief aide, Abram Claude, during a campaign victory party.

Restaurants aid United Way drive

Winchester's three largest restaurants have each contributed $25 to match the donations of three leaders in the United Way drive among town employees.

The Dover Grille, Ristorante Lucia and Maximilian's Restaurant have matched the donations of town manager Chad Maurer, fire chief Robert McElhinney and firefighter Ken Duffy.

The donations will be used as gift certificates to the restaurants and will be awarded in a drawing. Those who use a contribution card to give to the United Way will be entered in the drawing later this month.

McElhinney are Duffy are the new co-chairman of the fund drive while Duffy is also president of the Winchester Municipal Federal Credit Union.

Lip-sync, parade earn funds for band's Gator Bowl

What do rock music and Halloween have to do with the Winchester High School marching band? They are backgrounds for two of the ways the Band students themselves are helping to raise funds for their trip to the Gator Bowl in December.

The first event took place Oct. 24 when the band sponsored a "lip-sync" fundraiser. The contest was conceived by band members Jennifer Perkins and Melissa Caci. It raised more than $860. Faculty advisor for the event was Rich Conway.

A "lip-sync" is an event where groups, from one person to several, mimic singing taped music and do some choreography to the song.

Judges chose two first-place winners from the 13 groups that competed. Scott Racek and Bob Hallisey, both members of the band, constituted one of the winning groups with their rendition of "Soul Man," a record by the Blues Brothers.

Tied with them were Jermaine Jones and Roberto Saez, as they performed to "Temporary Love Thing" by the Full Force.

Judges were Cheryl Howard, head of Curtin and Cue at the High School, Isabelle Perkins, and Cathy Coughlin, a recent WHS graduate and a freshman at Salem State College. The judges were selected "so we would have a variety of backgrounds, including someone who would have some close identity to the students," said co-organizer Perkins.

"We weren't certain whether this would come off at all. Try-outs were two weeks before the event, but we didn't really have any committees to help until the very last week. Then suddenly there was lots of help from the rest of the band," Caci said.

About 300 people in the audience cheered on all groups. "It was a lot of fun to put this thing together," said Perkins, "and we got some money for the Gator Bowl trip as well."

The second fundraising event occurred Oct. 19 when the band marched as a unit in the annual Woburn Halloween parade. As representatives of Winchester, students marched the five-mile parade route, playing some music they use in their football game half-time shows.

The Woburn Halloween parade is the project of the Woburn Lions Club to raise funds for its eye research activities. Most of the participating units in this parade are sponsored by a Woburn business. The Winchester band was sponsored by Cummings Industrial Parks.

For participating in the parade, the Band earned $1,000.

The march this year was not as difficult as in some prior years. "Some years it has been so hot students have nearly fainted along the route," said Priscilla Miller, director of the Band. "Other times it has been almost too cold to march at all. This year the temperature was just right."

The ranks of the Band were slightly smaller for the parade. "The fact that this parade was on a Sunday, and there were some special holidays, cut into our ranks somewhat," said Bernie Boyle, director of the rifle squad of the band. "But I think we were as impressive as any band in the parade, in spite of our smaller than normal size."

The five-mile march was just a "preparation" for the nearly nine-mile parade the band will travel in during the Gator Bowl Festival in Jacksonville. The band will appear as part of the post-season collegiate Gator Bowl football game itself in a pre-game show and in the half-time show. It will also participate in a field competition.

Donations to the Gator Bowl Trip, which are fully tax-deductible, are being received by Lucy Peck, 134 Mt. Vernon St., 729-2494.

Upcoming school events

Thanksgiving show at Lynch School

Lynch School second grade teachers Maria Ramirez and Peg Kerr have been preparing a Thanksgiving production for Tuesday, Nov. 25. Exact performance times are not set. Second grade parents are welcomed.

Decision-making program at V-O

Monday, Nov. 17 and Friday, Nov. 21, a group from Horizons for Youth will present a social studies program about Decision-Making at Vinson-Owen School. Each session will be a full-day program with the grades K-3 participating on Monday and grades 4-6 Friday.

With guidance from a leader, aide, and classroom teacher, small groups of students will be led through various problem-solving situations.

High school parent faculty meeting

The Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association will meet at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, in the staff lounge on the first floor.

Budget expenditures for the current year will be decided. In addition to normal yearly expenses, special requests for financial assistance from clubs, department heads, yearbook staff, class committees, and other groups will be considered. This meeting is open to all.

Parent-Faculty Association dues of $10 per family are being collected. Checks payable to the WHS-PFA may be mailed to Mimi Black, 20 Amberwood Drive.

Sixth grade in BSO program

Sixth grade students of the Vinson-Owen School will again participate in the Boston Symphony Youth Orchestra Programs for Young People, a series of three concerts in Symphony Hall.

Dates are Nov. 5, Jan. 21, and April 8.

Special ed group to meet

The Winchester Advisory Committee on Special Education, a committee of the Community Schools Association, will have regular meetings the second Thursday of each month. The next meeting is from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13, at the Lynch School Administrative Center. The public is invited. For more information, call Judy Manzo at 729-3160 or Anne Harris at 721-7005.

John Hopkins talent search begins

Seventh graders who score in the 97th, 98th and 99th percentile on appropriate grade-level standardized tests are eligible to participate in the Johns Hopkins University talent search program. Students who also score well on the Scholastic Aptitude Test may enroll in several special summer enrichment programs at Johns Hopkins University's Center for the Advancement of Academically Talented Youth (CTY), and other local programs.

More information is available from the McCall Junior High School main office. Applications must be postmarked by mid-November.

Eighth grade to take DATs

The Differential Aptitude Test will be administered to all eighth-grade students Nov. 13 and 26. The test is an integrated battery of aptitude tests which helps to identify areas of special strength or weakness in verbal reasoning, numerical ability, abstract reasoning, clerical speed and accuracy, mechanical reasoning, space relation, spelling and grammar.

Percentile scores are reported for each aptitude area and a composite score of the verbal and numerical test as an indicator of general scholastic aptitude is also reported.

When scores are returned, guidance counselors will help interpret their meaning. Scores will be mailed to parents in late January.

NOTES FROM THE BLACKBOARD

Readiness class visits dinosaur

Sally White and her readiness class at Lynch School visited the life-like dinosaur exhibit at the Museum of Science in Boston, Oct. 14.

While touring the recreated Dinosaur Age environment, students noticed a brontosaurus bobbing its head and another dinosaur ripped open. Students learned the dinosaurs were only models constructed of a metal frame with foam covering, and movements are created by tanks of compressed air. The dinosaurs were a little scary but this class was not easily frightened.

In addition to drawing pictures of dinosaurs, the class made a picture graph which lists their favorite dinosaurs. Triceratops was clearly the student's first choice, with tyrannosaurus rex in close competition.

Cooking with fractions

In the spirit of the harvest season, Lynch School intermediate special needs teacher Missy Kaplan and her class did some "cooking with fractions" and created a delicious apple crisp. Students used only fractional measuring cups and determined how many of each fraction would add up to a whole.

It was a good exercise in cooperation and, best of all, provided a tasty dessert after lunch! Some students brought the recipe home to try on the weekend and came back with favorable reviews of their first culinary attempt.

Lynchosaurus contest winners

A drawing contest was held during the month of October in the Lynch School library. Students created original dinosaurs called "Lynchosaurus."

Winners were: Thor Hansen, grade 4 and Mindy Dorr, grade 1, for first place; Amanda Moss, grade 4 and Jerry Lyons, grade 2, for second place;

David Duffy, grade 1, and Janka Chovanec, grade 4, for third place; and Cheryl Foley, grade 4, and Simon Rucker, grade 3, for fourth place.

$1,000 raised for community Art

Wally Gagel, McCall Junior High science teacher, noted for directing shows and musicals, showed a talent Saturday, Oct. 18, when he served as "auctioneer" for the Winchester recreation department's Community Art Association.

In 90 minutes, Gagel took in more than $1,000 for the art program. Articles auctioned came from local store owners and friends of the art program.

Gagel will make another appearance Saturday, Nov. 21, at Winchester High School as he auctions off more gifts, including a moped, from local merchants for the band's Gator Bowl fund raiser.

Pupils learn about illness

Mary Franklin's grade seven home economics classes at McCall Junior High recently had very interesting guest speakers.

Cynthia Krumme spoke to students about families' coping during times of serious illness. She ended her visit with discussion and a question period.

Back to the future

Ever seen a plucked chicken? Muraco's second graders have—at Plymouth Plantation. Material studied in class was brought to life as they stepped back in time. Architecture, dress, and even speech were all carefully recreated which gave students a real sense of life in the 1600's.

While second graders were still pondering a life without TV, Muraco's first graders embarked on a journey to the Stone Age. A trip to Boston's Museum of Science brought students face to ankle with life-size moving dinosaurs. Everyone enjoyed the exhibit and felt the only thing missing was an appearance by Fred, Wilma and Pebbles.

Vinson-Owen has curriculum night

Parents, students and teachers of the Vinson-Owen School shared a very special night at open house—curriculum night Oct. 23. Students took a very active part explaining classroom activities and curriculum.

Everyone went to the gym for refreshments, and a preview of the cookies being sold as part of the Vinson-Owen Parents' annual fund-raiser.

Vinson-Owen receives computer

Resource room students and teachers at the Vinson-Owen School are delighted to have a new Apple IIe computer, new learning tool for analyzing and evaluating software programs that will be used with the students.

Especially pleasing is that word processing techniques can now be taught.

Writing and videotaping stories

Frank Row's fifth graders at the Vinson-Owen School are producing their own feature presentation "Funny and Embarrassing Stories."

After sharing with their class an embarrassing or particularly funny event, students wrote down their tale and then were videotaped describing their story from prepared scripts.

Math Club at Lynch

Fifth and sixth graders at Lynch School are enjoying a new Math Club. The club meets after school with Mike Marino, math teacher, with help from a parent, Thelma Dakubu. Activities are all math-related.

COMMENT

On radiance and how to wear it

By TERRY MAROTTA

Fella came to our house once to take a rug out for cleaning.

The rug lies on the floor of a nice bright room where a zillion dust motes dance in the gold-bulb glow of daylong sunlight.

When he walked in the place, he took one look around and went pale.

"What have you done here?" he exclaimed in a voice half between grief and astonishment. "Your rugs are all faded!"

I looked and he was right: the rug slated for cleaning had been red, tan and navy when we'd bought it; now it was rust, cream and baby blue.

"This rug is losing radiance," he hissed.

"I'm losing radiance myself," I said. "It's OK. It doesn't hurt."

"But think of your children," he went on sternly. "Don't you want to hand these carpets down to them some day?"

"Here's what you must do," he said, not waiting for a reply. "Pull down the shades. Draw the drapes." He hustled around doing this 'til the room that had dazzled with sunlight a moment before looked ready for a seance.

"But we love the sun," I told him feebly. "We sit in this window here... even the cat..." I trailed off.

"Then at least take a sheet and cover the area of greatest exposure," he snapped. "You owe it to your rug." He scooped ours up then and whisked it out the door.

I've thought a lot about this scene since that day. The man had sold us these rugs in the first place, and had helped us care for them through the years, blowing their little noses when they got sick and taking them out for the gentlest of pummellings when they got dirty. They came back looking like baby's sweaters, fresh from the laundry, like babies themselves, sweet from the bath.

The man is a nice man, and I was sorry to let him down so. But I can't run a house his way, keeping the rugs bright by locking the sunlight out; keeping things perfect under plastic; pleasant, under glass.

I used to visit houses like this sometimes when I was little; they made me feel that silken cords were stretched across the chair arms, that velvet ropes were hung across the doors.

I vowed I'd never run my own house that way.

And I don't. We live in our house, by golly. We live all over those velvet sofas in the living room.

The upholstery man spoke to me about this just the other day.

He's been a frequent visitor these past few months. There was that Victorian sofa I'd tried to do myself ten years ago — the one that looked like a furry pink sheet with a tail sewn into it. He took that out and turned it into a rosy dream of perfection back in August.

Then this past month a small visitor set her tiny bones upon the Empire sofa and BLAM! — one Duncan Phyfe leg, ball, claw and all, shot straight out from under it; the thing started listing like the Titanic.

He walked into the room to perform diagnosis on this piece. His glance fell first upon my toddler, who was lounging like Cleopatra on the Victorian dream.

"You let your kids in this room?" he exclaimed, his voice ascending the scale of disbelief.

"Sure," I answered, as the child in question smiled sweetly and drooled a bit onto the velvet.

"On this couch?" he squeaked.

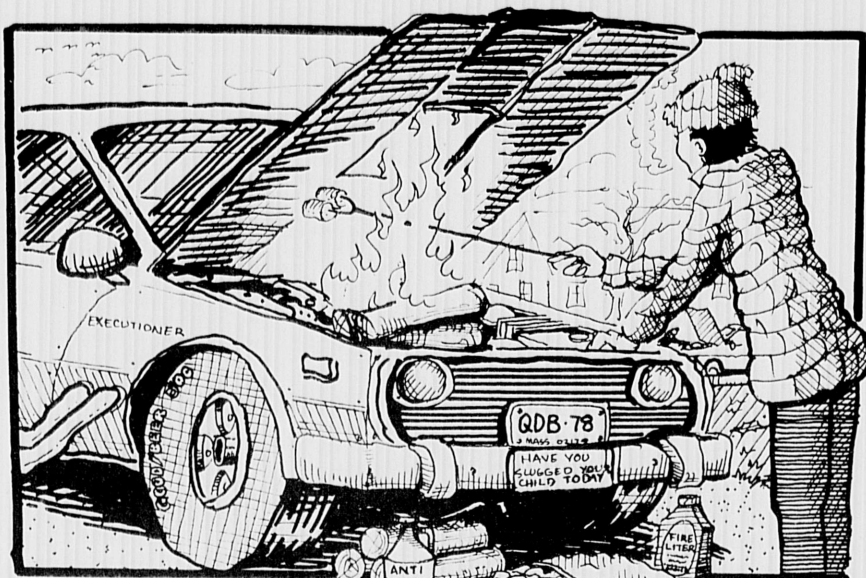

"My couch?" "It's going to lose radiance," I could all but hear him say next.

He didn't say that though. Instead he picked up the most recent casualty and started for the door with it.

"It's your house," he concluded, washing his hands of us all.

"You bet," I told him.

Some folks bequeath rugs to their kids; some, jewels. We'll bequeath to ours permission to enjoy the beauty of their surroundings; license to fade, gloriously, in the sun.

Looking for the signs of drug and alcohol abuse

By DAVID MARGOLIS and HOWARD SHERMAN

As one watches television, reads magazines or even just glances at the front page of The Winchester Star, it is apparent that drug and alcohol abuse among our young people is a serious issue.

In speaking with Winchester parents, educators and clergy, we have found that few adults are comfortable in identifying the signs of drug and alcohol abuse.

Experts agree that any change in the normal way that a child behaves is certainly a warning sign of drug or alcohol abuse. We feel that some of the important areas to watch are changes in personality, drop off in school performance, less attention to personal hygiene and changes in the friends that your teenager spends time with.

For example, a highly motivated student will gradually lose interest in school work and falling grades will reflect this lethargic attitude.

Watch for major changes in eating or sleeping patterns as well as the more easily recognized signs like slurring speech or red, bloodshot eyes. Mood swings may also point to the fact that your teenager may be abusing drugs or alcohol.

Drugs such as cocaine, crack and amphetamines will produce an initial reaction of high energy and happiness, followed by apathy, long periods of sleep and depression as the drug wears off.

Because signs and symptoms of drug and alcohol abuse vary a great deal from one individual to another, we urge parents not to jump to conclusions. Many signs of substance abuse can be caused by hormonal changes or, in certain instances, be related to normal changes of adolescence.

What can one do if confronted by these signals? Remember that peer pressures are a major factor in the abuse of drugs and alcohol by teenagers. When a person feels good about himself it is much easier to walk away from drugs and alcohol because he doesn't have to prove anything to others.

The recent series offered by Parent to Parent dealing with ways to enhance your child's self-esteem was a positive step in showing ways for a child to have a good feeling about himself without relying on drugs and alcohol.

With all the recent publicity about drugs such as crack and cocaine, please keep in mind that alcohol is still the most popular drug among teenagers by quite a wide margin.

As adults, our own attitudes about drugs and alcohol should be reviewed carefully before we sit with a teenager to discuss the issue. Remember that drugs such as aspirin, vitamins and Valium can be considered good drugs and the line between what is good and bad to put in one's own body is very thin.

Keeping open lines of communication with your teenager and presenting information about drugs and alcohol in a non-threatening way is an important beginning. Teenagers are remarkably intelligent and must be allowed to come to their own conclusion that drug and alcohol abuse is not in their own best interests.

(Margolis and Sherman are both clinical social workers working in Winchester with parents and teenagers about issues of growing up and how stress and outside pressures can lead to drug and alcohol abuses.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't feed the ducks!

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to draw your attention to the attached letter to the editor of the Boston Globe from Karen Holmes about "controlling the Canada geese population."

It appeared Nov. 1. I believe the letter is relevant to the current situation in Winchester.

I believe there are too many waterfowl in the island behind the town hall and on Wedge Pond across the road from Purity Supreme. One reason there are so many waterfowl is that people of all ages love to feed the ducks.

The by-products of this activity are droppings, feathers, polluted ponds and excess food for rats.

I think the town should ask people not to feed the ducks. In Wisconsin I saw signs saying "please do not feed the ducks as this results in the pollution of the lake."

A prohibition would not be popular with parents who obtain pleasure from taking their children down to feed the ducks. But some move is necessary towards reducing the amount of feeding.

An informative notice rather than an outright prohibition may be the appropriate action.

I wonder if other readers have any ideas or views on this suggestion.

John F. Shawcross

(Editor's note: The letter in The Globe notes that Canadian geese, still classified as "migratory" and protected by Federal law, in fact remain in Massachusetts all year. Holmes said that reducing the question to "animal rights versus hunters" evokes strong emotion without addressing issues.)

Santaniello send thanks

TO THE EDITOR:

Special thanks to all those who helped us through our time of sorrow.

Santaniello family

Casey: Thanks from Mudville

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to thank everyone in town for their effort to elect me Winchester and Stoneham's next representative.

"Everyone" is an all encompassing term, but that is how far your support has extended. To the firemen and policemen who explained department policies, to other town employees and concerned citizens who cared enough to discuss the needs of the town, I extend special thanks and sincere appreciation.

You all should be commended for taking part in a town first! For only by challenging the status quo and questioning complacency can our government truly improve. We have done this and our town will certainly be the beneficiary.

I appreciate all of you who took a chance and, in effect, gave me a chance to make a difference.

Most of all, I want to extend my greatest "Thanks" and deepest gratitude to my loving family and enthusiastic campaign workers. Cicero was never more accurate than when he stated, "Friendship excels kinship."

Even though this election did not end the way we all had envisioned, the sweat and the tears we gave to our "cause" have bonded our friendship forever. This bond will serve us well in the years and "home runs" ahead.

Sincerely,

Paul C. Casey

Guilderson gives thanks for help

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank all the people who assisted me Oct. 31, especially Mr. Richard Donovan, EMTs John Frongillo and Peter Tonello, and police officers Kevin Mawn and John Dooley.

Winchester is fortunate to have such excellent citizens and public servants.

Daniel Guilderson

Co-operative Theatre to audition children

Winchester children in grades 4-6 are invited to audition for a place in the cast of "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang," the eighth production of the Co-operative Theatre for Children.

An informational meeting for parents and children is scheduled at 3 p.m. Monday, Nov. 24, in the Lincoln School auditorium.

Children who are accepted will receive instruction in dance, drama and music from the theater, a non-profit organization. There is a tuition charge.

Pre-registration is scheduled during the Nov. 24 meeting. Children should bring a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Auditions will be conducted at 3 p.m. with sixth-graders coming Dec. 1 and fourth- and fifth-graders Dec. 2. "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" will be staged the weekends of March 21 and 28.

Further information is available from director Cathy Alexander at 729-0224.

Bartering alive and well in Winchester

By EDWARD ENGEL

Ken Meharg leans back in his chair, the wall-to-wall mirror on his right reflecting both him and the cornucopia of knickknacks scattered about his office. From cups and saucers to a fish mounted on a plaque and a baseball autographed by Oil Can Boyd, it's all Meharg's paraphernalia.

And it didn't cost him a cent. But that's understandable when you consider Meharg's business — probably the oldest business in history.

Meharg is a barterer, and he practices his bartering as a "trade broker" through his Melrose company, Unlimited Business Exchange (UBE) of New England.

"Barter is how we got Manhattan from the Indians," Meharg says. "It was here before money and during money, and it'll be here for a long time into the future.

"Now, instead of beads, we're exchanging services."

Indeed, barter is anything but an outmoded form of business. According to a March 1984 article in the "Boston Herald," approximately $6 billion in business is done on barter worldwide, and 65 percent of all Fortune 500 companies use the barter system.

Meharg's trade exchange is one of approximately half a dozen trade exchanges in the Boston area and one of 1000 across the country. UBE lets each of its 600 business members trade goods and services to generate new business, move excess inventory and fill idle time.

"All without the use of money," says Meharg.

The 34-year-old Melrose resident has been in the barter business since 1980 when he bought a franchise in Medford. But three years ago, Meharg moved to Melrose and started his own business at 315 Main Street.

In its three years, UBE has set up trades as large as a $1500 moving job and as small as a $16 book of car wash tickets. UBE members may only trade with other members.

Meharg's business is based on credit, and each member has a plastic card on which he buys and sells credit points. UBE then sends out monthly billing statements to each member.

If a carpet store owner needs some flowers (for either business or personal use), for example, he will call Meharg who will then connect him with a florist. When the florist and carpet store owner settle on a price, the carpet salesman pays not in cash, but with points from his UBE credit card. The florist later can use these points to trade for the goods and services of other UBE members.

Another way a UBE member can generate new business is through referrals. For instance, the carpet store owner could be so pleased with the florist that he refers him to the car dealership next door — this time for a cash transaction.

But just how legal is this barter business?

"Very. This is not an under-the-counter business," Meharg says. "We send 1099B tax forms to all our members."

UBE, which takes in approximately $1 million annually, stays in business through eight percent commissions charged to the seller and a $300 registration fee and $100 annual renewal fee for each member.

For these fees, each member also receives a listing of all businesses within the trade network as well as a monthly newsletter.

Bartering isn't for every business, though, Meharg admits.

"It should be, but it's not. Right now we're a little more selective in our client choice," he says.

Restaurants, advertising agencies, printing firms and entertainment services are probably the most sought after businesses in UBE, says Meharg. But UBE's client base runs from accounting firms to Ziebart rust protection services.

Of course, there is the occasional odd business, like an Arlington-based 'strip-a-gram' service and a 'bug doctor.' It's just crazy the things they trade for; things you wouldn't think of," says Meharg.

"We just sent 18 members to Disneyland through barter," he adds.

Most of Meharg's client base comes from word of mouth and the rest, he says, from trade shows, speaking engagements and television and radio appearances. And most are within a 15-mile radius of Melrose.

"We can trade all over, but I like to keep it close to home," he says.

One of those "close to home" clients is Ron Campisi of Shield System Car Wash on Main Street. For four years, he has been using UBE to trade car washes for desks and other office furniture.

Although he estimates that he only does $1000 in trade annually, Campisi says "it's a lot easier to trade in services than pay cash."

"It's given me the opportunity to pick up new customers," he adds.

Meharg says his main concern as a trade broker is educating the public about bartering — "understanding the concept and seeing it as a way to fill downtime and get rid of excess inventory."

"Six years ago, I didn't know what the word 'barter' meant, now that's all I do."

Benson gives above and beyond the call of duty

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

He has eagle eyes. Even on Winchester's quietest nights, police officer Eric Benson manages to arrest drunk drivers and other offenders of the law.

Benson says modestly, "It's all part of my job."

But the number of reports he submits weekly suggests that he doesn't take his job lightly.

When Benson is out patrolling Winchester streets, drivers ought to beware.

A six-year night shift veteran of the Winchester police department, Benson says he wouldn't trade nights for anything.

"There's more activity at night," he says, eyes aglow. But, he says, when there is a quiet evening, instead of filling up on White Hen Pantry coffee, he combs the streets looking for activity.

As he dresses for his job every day, thoughts race through his mind. "I think to myself, I'm going to see what I can find. Patrolling gets into your blood," Benson says.

Benson has arrested 11 drunk drivers since January, more than 20 percent of the town's 50 drunk driving arrests since the first of the year.

He explains how he makes his arrests.

"It could be someone going through a red light or a stop sign," says Benson. But, he says, he must have probable cause to pull someone over. Probable cause, he says, is making sure you have a legitimate reason for stopping a person, such as a motor vehicle offense.

Most of the time, Benson says, his drunk driving arrests stem from minor moving offenses.

He says he pulls most of his drunk drivers over for violating stop signs, speeding or swerving over the yellow lines.

When he asks the offender to step out of his car, that's when he decides to perform field sobriety tests. Glassy eyes and wobbly posture are giveaways, says Benson.

But he insists all arrests are "a team effort. Nothing is done by yourself."

Winchester requires officers to ride two per patrol car at night for safety reasons.

Benson sees advantages and disadvantages of working in a small suburban town. The advantage, he says: you're not always in fear of injury. The disadvantage: you get so used to pulling cars over you walk up sometimes without thinking.

Benson believes 90 percent of the job requires common sense, especially in domestic cases. "It's not a job that requires a muscle-bound person."

His definition of a good police officer is "someone who is well rounded, mature and has good common sense."

Benson, a graduate of Northeastern University with a degree in criminal justice, and a graduate of Brookline Academy, recalls his "walking days" on the Winchester force.

The first couple of months on the job in June of 1980, Benson was assigned to the walking beat.

Several other officers with whom Benson attended Brookline Academy were working for Boston police and covering house breaks, robberies and car accidents immediately after graduation.

Benson, instead, was on the periphery.

"It was good they took the wind out of my sails," said Benson.

On the walking beat, an officer has the advantage of being where he can learn from more experienced officers, he says.

Benson met his wife on the walking beat in downtown Winchester center. She worked at Brigham's Ice Cream on Main Street.

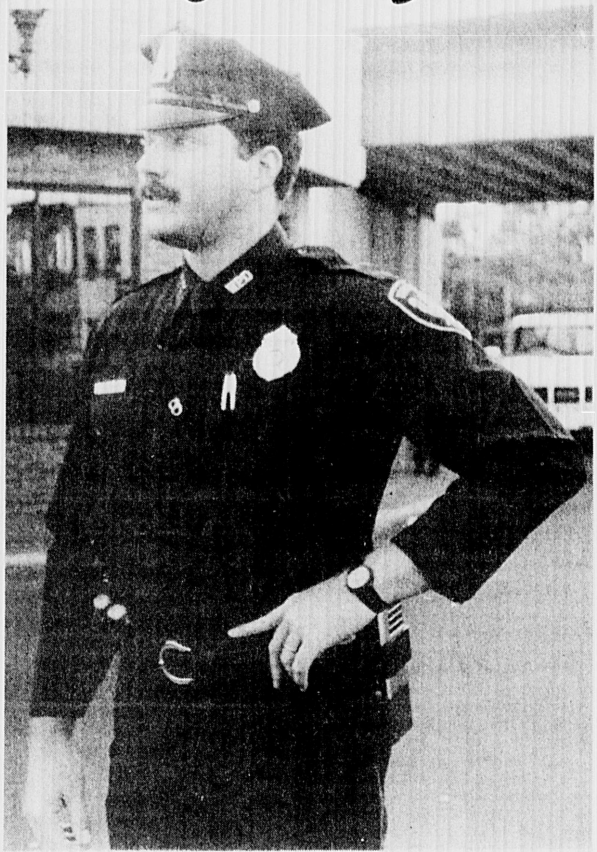

His crazy work schedule, he says, has not placed a burden on his marriage.

"It was a lot easier for our relationship because I was already on the job when we met," Benson explains.

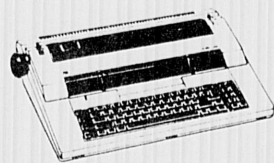

"The time we have together is precious, quality time," he says.

The academy told the group that after five years on the job, "You'll be able to handle most situations."

Benson believes it. "For the most part I am confident handling most things, but I do still have questions," he says.

High school photo club views exhibit

Winchester High School Photography Club members previewed the new documentary photography exhibit "Field and Foundry: A Working Contrast" at the Museum of National Heritage last week.

The students went to study the work of two contemporary photographers, Debbie Fleming Caffery of Franklin, La., and Charles Reich of Hartford, Conn.

These photographers' portfolios gave students a great deal of insight into the persuasiveness of the photographic media. Using the tools of the trade such as tone, format, depth of field, focus and type of camera, each photographer creates an emotional impact to support the substantive content of his work.

Caffery has documented the sugarcane industry and workers on the plantation on which she lives. She uses a hand-held 35mm camera which allows intimacy and spontaneity in her approach. There is a clear relationship between photographer and subject. Prints are large, grabbing attention, and dark tones set a somber mood. Students were moved and left wondering were the dates on the photos accurate? Or were these images from 100 years ago?

Reich photographs document the industrial factories and foundries of Waterbury, Conn. The approach is entirely different. Reich uses a large format camera with sharp focus. Pictures are contact size 8 x 10's that require viewers to step up to them, that force entry into their presence. Prints are made by the palladium process, which gives them a brown tone one associates with older things. Finally, images are very precise and distant; a statement of isolation has been created.

Members of the photo club will use what they learned as they plan their own portfolios. The "Field and Foundry" exhibit will be at the Museum of Our National Heritage through Jan. 15.

The Winchester Women's Lodge 1192, Sons of Italy, will sponsor a turkey whist party at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13, at the Sons of Italy Hall, 117 Swanton St. Admission is $3. There will be refreshments and many prizes, including turkeys, basket of cheer and door prizes.

Chairman of the affair is Angie Tuttle.

Katherine Rousmaniere

Rousmaniere joins agency

Sherman & Margolis Associates of Winchester have appointed Katherine Rousmaniere to the agency staff. A graduate of Harvard University, Rousmaniere received her master's degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and her master's degree in social work from Simmons Graduate School.

Rousmaniere, a resident of Brookline, will work with young children, adolescents and their families.

A mother of three children, 7-14, Rousmaniere said her professional training, combined with personal experience, made her more effective in assisting families.

Rousmaniere, a member of the National Association of Social Workers and a licensed independent clinical social worker, will be available both days and evenings. For more information, contact Sherman & Margolis Associates at 165 Washington St., 729-2070.

Semonian is Lasell graduate

Nancy R. Semonian of Winchester is a recent graduate of Lasell Junior College in Newton. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Semonian.

Semonian received an associate of arts degree in liberal arts. Founded in 1851, Lasell Junior College is the nation's oldest private two-year college for women.

'Beyond Hotline' discussion planned

Jeanette Baird and Pat Wells of the Winchester League of Women Voters will present "Beyond the Hotline" from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday Nov. 16, at the home of Sandy Rodgers, 5 Myopia Hill Road.

The program will discuss the why, where, and how to begin citizen action for two crisis control centers, one here and another in the Soviet Union, to be manned by technicians from both countries.

"Crisis control" focuses not on weapons but on the human factor in the decision-making process.

William Urey's book "Beyond The Hotline" is available at the Winchester Public Library for study. For more information, call President Gail O'Reilly at 729-0536.

Guild of the
bazaar

The Winchester Chapter of The Guild of the Infant Savior will hold its annual bazaar from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday Nov. 18, Crawford Memorial Church, 34 Dix St.

Many attractive and useful articles will be on sale, and there will be a bake table.

Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Robert Baum, left, of Winchester receives a plaque for six years as a United Way of Massachusetts Bay citizen-review volunteer from Robert Cowden, the United Way's top allocations volunteer. Baum's group reviews agencies' performance and decides how to spend contributions.

Sullivan to lead bank's directors

John J. Sullivan, a lifelong Winchester resident, was recently elected chairman of the board of directors for Winchester Co-operative Bank.

Other members of the board are: Sumner R. Andrews; Dudley H. Bradley II; Windsor S. Carpenter; Henry L. Clark.

Edward E. Goodwin, president and chief executive officer; Donald E. McLean; Frederick W. McCormack, clerk; Stanley E. Neill, senior vice president; Robert C. Penna; and Paul J. Whitney.

Other elected officers include: John A. Beauchamp, executive vice president; Don H. Smith Jr., vice president and treasurer; Elizabeth A. Kehoe, vice president-mortgage administration.

Jeanne L. Peterson, assistant vice president-savings department; Catherine E. Mahoney, assistant treasurer; and Joanne M. Reese, assistant treasurer.

Perrault joins Longy faculty

Anne Francoise Perrault, Winchester pianist and music teacher, was recently appointed to the faculty of the Longy School of Music, Cambridge.

Longy serves Greater Boston with concerts and diversified music programs for adults and young performers.

Perrault has performed extensively in this country and Europe, appearing as soloist, accompanist and with numerous chamber ensembles. Her area appearances have included concerts at Jordan Hall, First and Second Church of Boston, Isabella Stuart Gardner Museum, Museum of Our National Heritage, Emmanuel College and Longy School.

Before moving to Winchester, Perrault was a member of the University of Vermont music faculty, teaching piano, theory, chamber music and music history. She also served as music critic for the Burlington Free Press.

She has taught students of all levels, including several competition winners. She has served on the boards of several New England music organizations, lectured, and continues to perform primarily as an accompanist. In 1985, she adjudicated the New England Conservatory High School Concerto Competition.

Perrault has a music studio in Winchester.

Beyond War to explain goal

Beyond War, a non-profit peace organization, will conduct an introductory meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19.

Mary Lewis of 50C Lake St., will host the evening with John Riis and Jeanette Baird leading the discussion. A video will begin the program of the grass roots organization whose goal is "To work together to build a world beyond war."

Beyond War's Peace Award for 1986 will go to the four Contadora process countries, who are trying to resolve conflict in Central America without violence. Award ceremonies in the capitals of the Contadora nations, Mexico, Panama, Venezuela and Colombia will be seen at 4:30 p.m. Dec. 14 at the Berklee College of Music auditorium in Boston. For more information, call Ganson Taggart at 729-3707 or Baird at 729-0050 between 5 and 7 p.m.

Youth center offers three college tours

Seven Winchester students attended a recent tour of Tufts University sponsored by the Winchester Youth Center.

The center will conduct another college tour from 8:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 15, to Holy Cross in Worcester. Students should register by 3 p.m. Nov. 14. The bus fee is $6.

Two tours scheduled for December will be a trip to Boston University from 1:45 to 4:45 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, and a trip to Simmons College from 9:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 13. Bus fee is $5.

Tours include admissions and financial aid information.

For more information, call 721-7129.

Unitarians plan
Holiday Fair

The Winchester Unitarian Church has scheduled its Holiday Fair from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, at the church.

Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., when a show of evening and wedding gowns will begin. The fair features crafts, baked goods, books, plants and white elephants.

A children's fair is scheduled from 10 a.m. to noon and a children's movie will be shown at 1 p.m.

Proceeds benefit the church.

Ski Swap set for Nov. 22

The second annual ski swap will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Nov. 22 at McCall Junior High School gymnasium.

The swap is a fund raiser and a community service project sponsored by the Winchester Youth Center and the Council on Youth.

Those interested in selling their old equipment should drop off items between 8:30 and 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 22. Items should be priced. Clothing, cable bindings and lace boots will not be accepted.

Unsold equipment and receipts from sales can be picked up between 5 and 6 p.m. Nov. 22. The swap keeps 10 percent from the sale of used equipment and 20 percent from the sale of new retail equipment.

For more information, call 721-7129.

Snowflake Fair
slated Nov. 21-22

The Crawford United Methodist Church will conduct its Snowflake Fair from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 21, and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, at the church.

The fair will include a Christmas room, holiday pies, an international table, jewelry and white elephants, as well as offer Saturday lunches.

Halloween events
a success

The two Halloween events sponsored by the Winchester Youth Center and the Winchester High School Student Union drew unexpected crowds.

About 60 students attended the Friday afternoon party at the youth center and several hundred turned out for the costume party Saturday at McCall gym.

Jr. Great Books
training slated

A two-day training course for adult leaders in the Junior Great Books program is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Dec. 8 and 9 under the sponsorship of Lincoln Elementary School and the Lincoln School Association.

The course with places for 25 to 40 volunteer leaders at $45 each, will prepare leaders for the enrichment opportunity in the school.

Although the course is aimed at the Lincoln School community there is space for others. Junior Great Books is a program of interpretive reading and discussion for students from second grade through high school with a special textbook for every grade level.

Volunteer adult leaders center discussion on problems of interpretation. Students develop habits of reading critically, interpreting what they read, listening, carefully and supporting their conclusions.

For more information, call Joanne Benton at Lincoln School (721-7017), Robert Whitman, registrar, at 3 Willow St. (721-2704), or Carolyn Harder at 15 Hillside Ave. (729-4938).

Snowflake Fair
is Nov. 21-22

The Snowflake Fair will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 21, and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, at Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church, Church and Dix streets.

Friday night dessert and coffee will be served. A luncheon will be offered Saturday.

The Christmas Room will have decorations, wreaths and holiday items and the "International Corner" will feature gifts from around the world.

In addition, there will be holiday pies, baked goods, jewelry, and many white elephants and other treasures in "Grandma's Attic."

Healthy holiday plan offered

New ideas for appealing holiday fare will be presented by Elizabeth McCarty, clinical dietitian on the Choate-Symmes Health Services, staff in a special two-hour program at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 17 in the Symmes Cafeteria.

refundable fee of $25. The bus will leave Winchester at 6 a.m. and return at approximately 11 p.m.

Duffy enrolled at music camp

John and Jeanne Duffy of Winchester have re-enrolled their son Alec, 11, for his second summer at Camp Encore/Coda, Stearns Lake, Sweden, Maine.

Encore/Coda is a resident music and sports camp for musical boys and girls ages 7-17.

Nurses seminar set at hospital

A program entitled "Nursing Management of the Pregnant Diabetic Woman" will be presented at Winchester Hospital by the hospital's education department from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19.

Speaker Mary Foxon, staff education instructor at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, will focus on the third trimester of pregnancy and labor. Hospitalization will also be discussed.

"Since pregnancy can put extra strain on the body, some women develop diabetes as a result," said Carol Butt, maternal/child health educator at Winchester Hospital. "It is important for nurses to be informed and updated on how to care for pregnant diabetic patients."

The program is open to the community. Nurses will receive 2.4 continuing education credits. Pre-registration is required and cost is $10. Call 729-9000, ext. 3010, for further information.

SENIOR NEWS

Jenks will host mini fair Dec. 6

The Winchester Seniors Association will hold a mini fair from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6 at the Jenks Senior Center.

At the end of the fair, a number will be drawn for the beautiful 6 by 9 foot Bengali rug donated by Koko Boodakian Co. Tickets are available at the Jenks Senior Center reception desk.

Regina and Al Karnilla have been extremely successful through the months in accruing significant returns on several raffles. At the recent fair, the intake on raffles surpassed all other booth receipts and was the largest amount ever realized during the ten years when raffles played a part in the fairs.

In 1982 and 1983, Regina Karnilla served with Helen Murphy and Anne Feuss, co-chairpersons of the fair. She has been a member of the council on aging and is now an associate member.

Monthly dances, the New Year's party, and serving as chairpersons of the brunches have all been more successful because of the assistance of the Karnillas. They have been in charge of several overnight trips. Wherever there is a need for service, both of these people fit into the Jenks Senior Center scene in a very unobtrusive manner.

Their names were omitted from the November newsletter article that expressed appreciation for services rendered at the fair. The note gives recognition to both of these people for their devoted service to all aspects of the program at Jenks Senior Center.

Joseph and Ruth Graustuck are the monthly editors for the Winchester Senior Association newsletter.

The Jenks Senior Center will host a coffee at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 9, when reception desk volunteers will be able to meet volunteer drivers.

Students visit Jenks center

Bowdoin Construction Co.'s superintendent at the Jenks Senior Center, gave students of the manual arts class at Winchester High School, an informational talk concerning building construction.

It was a rich learning experience. This type of on the spot education is valuable to students learning about techniques applied to the art of building construction.

Jenks seeks volunteers

It is important to have a volunteer "clean-up committee" if soup and sandwich luncheons are to continue at the Center.

Helen Hodgdon, food coordinator at the center and Tom Rogers, assistant, are often left to do the kitchen clean-up work single-handedly after serving 150 people.

An appeal for volunteers is urgently made to all who are willing to assist with clean-up operations in the kitchen.

Contact Hodgdon, to volunteer.

Center hosts morning coffee

Morning coffee at the Jenks Senior Center will be at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 9, to enable desk volunteers to get acquainted with volunteer drivers of the transportation committee.

Often, those serving at the reception desk know the drivers only through telephone communication when appointments for service are being made.

If interested in joining either program, come to the morning coffee to hear reports from the chairpersons of both committees.

Ruth Ayres, Kim Archibald and Mary Peterson will explain the voluminous work that has been accomplished.

Seniors needed

Any seniors who have traveled to South America or lived in one of the countries, are invited to help enrich the fifth and sixth grade study of the continent.

Contact teachers Vickie Caviechi or Mike Marino (721-7013) to set up a visit with the children or supply any artifacts that will illustrate the culture and history.

Film-flams

At 10:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 21, at the Jenks Senior Center, the WSA education committee will present a movie and panel discussion on the prevalence of film-flams, con men and women and scams.

Georgeann Abbanat, assistant general counsel from the state office of the commission of banks, and Sue Hickey, director of consumer assistance, will moderate a four-man panel including well-known professional people in Winchester.

Robert Nickerson, president of the Winchester Savings Bank, Edwin Goodwin, president of the Winchester Cooperative Bank, safety officer Kevin Mawn and Lieutenant Detective Joseph Perritano of the Winchester Police Department, will provide first-hand information concerning the problem of fraudulent schemes and scammers.

The public is cordially invited to attend this valuable presentation. Coffee and donuts will be served.

Weather alert

If the "no school" whistle blows during inclement weather, all activities at the Jenks Senior Center will be cancelled for the day.

The staff will be on duty to take emergency calls.

Violin players needed

The request for musicians to share their talents at the opening of the Jenks Senior Center addition is being answered. Still needed are violins, trumpets, and clarinets. The orchestra needs instrumentalists, both old and young.

To sign up, please call the center at 721-7136.

Trip to Wayside Inn

By popular request, a return trip to Longfellow's Wayside Inn will be Dec. 10. A delicious Yankee pot roast and all the fixings including frosted fruit shrub, a tossed salad, deep-dish apple pie with whipped cream, all prepared in the inn kitchen.

The coach leaves Jenks Senior Center at 10:30 a.m. and returns at 4 p.m.

Seniors thank newsletter editors

Appreciation is extended to Joe and Ruth Graustuck for their dedicated service in editing the newsletter, doing the layout and arranging for the printing each month.

A full weekend is devoted to the preparation of the material for the printer, followed by proof-reading and other necessary chores.

The newsletter committee and the readers of the news are grateful to the Graustucks for sharing their expertise in the interest of Winchester's seniors. Their experience in the printing field has been invaluable in fulfilling the complicated tasks involved in preparation for printing.

Crime prevention tips offered

Lexington Chapter 1533 of the American Association of Retired Persons will meet at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday Nov. 18, in the dining room of Hancock Church, Lexington.

Two national programs, "Beating the Burglar" and "Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design," will be presented, followed by a social hour.

For information call 862-2832, 862-4104 or 933-1063.

Senior issue forums to begin

A series of five senior issues forums will begin Nov. 18. The forums are designed to address areas of concern to seniors. Coordinated by Marcia Wood and Barbara Ciampa, the forum series is commissioned by the council on aging as a result of the recently completed survey by Wood on the quality of life of some 75 of Winchester's elders.

The first program beginning at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, Nov. 18 at Jenks Senior Center is entitled: "Older Women, Surviving and Thriving." Bring a sandwich and join the discussion group. Coffee and dessert will be provided.

Ruth Jacobs, professor and chairperson of the sociology department at Clark University, will speak Nov. 18.

Author of four books and many articles, she has much to offer. The public is invited. The program is free. Call the center to register.

The Winchester Star

HEALTH

Blood pressure tests offered

The monthly blood pressure screening clinic will be from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Nov. 15, at the Winchester Red Cross Chapter House, 39 Church St.

No appointment is necessary and there is no charge. The clinic is open to all residents of Winchester and surrounding communities. Two registered nurses will take blood pressure and Red Cross volunteers will assist.

Hospital needs volunteers

Teenagers interested in volunteering at Symmes Hospital in Arlington should contact Eleanor Matthews, director of volunteer services.

"I would like to hear from any teenager 14 or older who can spare a few hours a week," Matthews said.

Volunteers help in many areas of the hospital, doing errands, delivering mail and flowers, freshening patients' water pitchers, and working in the coffee shop.

"The experience helps build confidence and prepares volunteers for the work world. Sometimes, it even influences them to choose a career in the health field," Matthews said.

Reach Matthews at 646-1500, ext. 1067.

Diabetes group to hear nurse

The Symmes/Choate chapter of the American Diabetes Association will hold its monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, in the cafeteria at Symmes Hospital in Arlington.

Janet Runci, diabetes Nurse Educator, will speak.

Sachemettes in North finals Saturday night

By DAVID DEMARCO

In girls soccer, the question is not whether the Winchester Sachemettes can win. It's rather whether they will ever lose.

Not even atrocious weather could deter the team Saturday when the Sachemettes shut out Framingham North 3-0 in a monsoon. The field resembled a giant sponge but the Sachemettes still played with the style and finesse they've displayed all fall.

Saturday's victory moved Winchester High School into a scheduled Tuesday game against Wakefield in the semifinals of the MIAA Division I north sectional tournament. Andover and Concord-Carlisle were to meet in the other semifinal.

The first half Saturday was slow. Winchester may have been stale after a week's layoff. The tone of the game was set early, however, when Framingham's goalie took a wild swing at Winchester's Charlotte Reece: this would be a tough game. Framingham North, like Middlesex League foe Wakefield, plays an extremely aggressive game.

But the Sachemettes were not intimidated. They maintained poise and played their game.

"We started slow and the first half wasn't good," said Meghan Guarnotta. "But in the second half, we really showed what we could do."

The Lady Spartans had several good chances to score in the first half but Winchester goalie Jo Ann Shusta made the save of the year on a breakaway by Julie Keats.

"She made an awesome save," said Katie Binding.

Had Framingham been able to develop momentum with the first goal, Winchester would have faced a greater challenge.

The second half belonged to the Sachemettes, even though neither Debbie Nowell nor Melissa Skehan was able to play because of earlier injuries.

Characteristically, the ball was in the Framingham end of the field for nearly all of the half. Guarnotta broke the tie at 4:30 when Spartan net-minder Annalia Aviza misplayed the ball. Winchester led 1-0.

Reece put the Sachemettes up 2-0 at 19:32 when she headed the ball perfectly past Aviza.

All that remained was to brave the weather and count down the minutes.

Reece scored again at 35:11 on a pass from Guarnotta.

"The weather was so bad they blew a penalty shot they should have had. Our wall blocked it," said Binding.

Kelly Dewar played an exceptional game at left half. Dewar said

Before Tuesday's game, Winchester and Wakefield battled to ties twice this fall. But ties don't happen in tournaments.

Sachems end the 'Lexington Jinx'

By DAVID DEMARCO

Not this time.

Winchester's football team would not be denied this year, as it was twice in recent years in crucial games against Lexington. In 1986, the Sachems downed the Minutemen 19-6.

It was the greatest performance by a Winchester team in recent years, many said, despite pouring rain.

The Sachems played as if possessed. From the opening second to the final tick, Winchester was all over Lexington.

Now 7-0 in the Middlesex League and 8-0 overall, Winchester sits alone atop the league standings and second only to Peabody in Division I rankings for the Super Bowl game. Walpole, the remaining unbeaten and untied squad, is third and Woburn, which tied Melrose Saturday, is fourth.

Winchester received Saturday's kickoff and went right to work. Coach Manny Marshall deserves much credit for calling the plays, especially his decision to try a pass on the first play from scrimmage.

Quarterback John DeMarco fired a bomb to Vin Benincasa for 66 yards and six points. For Winchester, there was no looking back.

The Minutemen were unable to develop an offense all afternoon. Fullback Jeff Neville and tailback Mark Maguire were totally neutralized.

Perhaps because of the rain, Lexington did not pass as often as expected, even after falling behind early. Instead, the Minutemen rushed the ball 35 times for 144 yards.

Winchester's next touchdown was set up by a 54-yard punt return by Darin Cromwell. The Sachems had a first-and-10 on the Lexington 16-yard line to begin their march.

Cromwell pushed over the goal line from the one to put Winchester up 12-0. But the Sachems knew they were not out of the weeds. Winchester led by the same score last year before losing.

Lexington got its only score of the day directly off a fumble by the usually sure-handed Cromwell. The Minutemen took over on the Winchester 26-yard line.

WHS boys win two games

By STEVE GOUDSOUZIAN

Winchester High School marched through its first two boys soccer tournament games unscathed last week, shutting out one foe 4-0 and trouncing another 6-1.

The Middlesex League champions hosted Lynn English High School in their first game Nov. 5, a dismal and cold day.

Winchester had no idea what to expect since no Middlesex team had played or scrimmaged English, a team with a record identical to the Sachems.

Lynn English started well, passing skillfully and running patterns smoothly. Lynn attacked and defended as a well-balanced team and, at first, its quick passes posed a problem for Winchester.

Gradually, the drive and determination of the Sachems took over. Halfbacks Chris VerHaegen and Paul Erbafina began to find holes when they discovered they could beat their individual defenders.

The forward line of Kenny Fowler, Mike Rice and Paul Cappadonna rushed at Lynn's defense, trying to force an error, while Sachem goalie Scott Racek and the Sachem defense regained their composure.

Fullback Mark Bortman was key for the Sachems. Playing an outstanding game, Bortman shut down the Lynn offense on his side of the field. He broke up the play and quickly set the ball back up to the offense, doing the same fine job he did all year to give the Sachems the best defense in the league.

The home field advantage proved advantageous to the Sachems. Cappadonna took a bouncing shot that skipped over the goalie's shoulder into the net for a 1-0. But the Sachems knew it was not enough.

Junior halfback Robbie Kean, whose ball control skill and team play complemented the halfback line all year, still had no goals for the season.

His chance came when he cranked an outside shot that flew over the goalie's head and hit the bottom of the crossbar. The ball came down in front of Mike Rice, who blasted it in for a 2-0 lead.

The Sachems were hungry for a third goal as the second half began. Cappadonna responded, putting in a Rice rebound for a 3-0 margin. Coach George Bouley began to substitute more freely.

Foolish mistakes and sloppy play allowed Lynn to apply pressure on the Sachems but they got their fourth and final goal when VerHaegen fired a low shot in the far corner off an indirect kick.

Friday, the eighth-ranked Sachems had to travel to Boxford to meet the top-seeded Masconomet High School squad.

Field conditions were outstanding. The field was huge, wide and long and gave Winchester even more incentive for the upset in front of a large group of traveling fans.

The Sachems made the trip worthwhile. They took control from the start as Kent McCord shut down the opponent's star forward while the Sachem fullbacks were equally effective.

Midfield controlled the ball and the game. Erbafina, dribbling to his right, fired an outside shot into the left corner.

VerHaegen followed by pounding a tipped indirect kick in the low near corner.

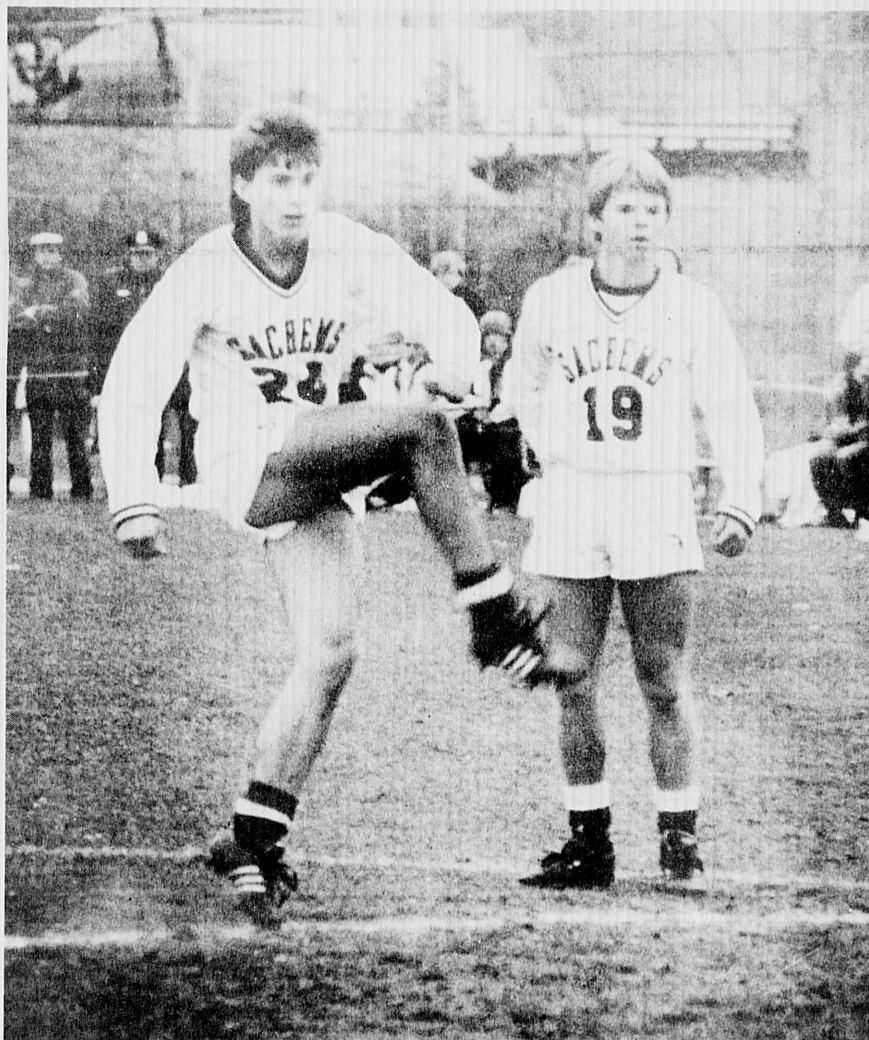

Masconomet was quickly discouraged while the Sachems started the hunt for their third goal. Rice got it and Winchester led 3-0.

Instead of giving up, Masconomet marched upfield and Rob Ketcham put in his team's very first shot of the day. Winchester led 3-1 at intermission.

But the Sachems would not let victory slip away. In the second half, Rice flicked in a header of a VerHaegen chip. Cappadonna put a loose ball home and Fowler slipped the ball past a scrambling goalie for a 6-1 win.

First crown in 14 years

By STEVE GOUDSOUZIAN

Winchester High School won its first Middlesex League boys soccer championship in 14 years this fall but it was in doubt until the final day of the season.

For the final week, the Winchester High School Sachems were just barely in first place, two points ahead of Belmont and four ahead of Lexington.

The Sachems went to Belmont hoping to clinch the league title with a win. A tie would clinch only a tie and a loss would require a victory two days later against Woburn just to tie for the title.

The Sachems started well but had to settle for a tie. Uncharacteristically, Winchester found the goal early and had good scoring chances. On a corner kick just six minutes into the game, Robbie Kean booted the ball and Chris VerHaegen kicked it in.

It seemed too easy. Little did the Sachems know they would not find the net again.

Belmont slowly raised its intensity, pressuring Winchester's offense and beginning its own attack.

Belmont was aggressive, using four forwards and crowding the middle, eagerly awaiting any opportunity.

One came. A Belmont clear was sent toward the Sachems' goal but was not immediately controlled by the Sachems. Belmont scored to tie the game 1-1.

The much-heralded Belmont offense probably expected the floodgates to open. Instead, the Sachem defense grew stronger, allowing Belmont only a couple of chances the rest of the game.

And Winchester goalie Scott Racek held firm on those couple.

The Sachems also had scoring opportunities but could not capitalize. Loose balls bounced around harmlessly; shots flew over the net or directly into the arms of a waiting goalie. The game ended 1-1 and the Middlesex League title was still beyond Winchester's grasp.

Two days later the Sachems hosted Woburn but lost the coin toss. Winchester had to play the first half into a biting wind and the setting sun.

The Sachems had trouble getting off long passes but succeeded with short passes on the turf.

On a hand ball call against Woburn, Winchester got a penalty shot. VerHaegen converted it into a 1-0 Sachem lead.

Soon, the Sachems made it 2-0 when a pass from the right side of the field was kicked into the goal by the left foot of Kenny Fowler.

In the second half, the Sachems stopped any offensive chance Woburn had. They kept the ball in their offensive zone and Woburn took no shots in the half.

The third goal, assuring a league championship, came when Kean shot the ball in front of the net and Mike Rice tried to get off a shot. His shot was deflected but right toward Fowler, who banged it past the goalie. Winchester won 3-0.

responsible for nine fumbles on the afternoon. Luckily for Winchester, seven were by Lexington ballcarriers and only one of the Sachems' fumbles proved costly.

Neville drove the final yard for Lexington to cut the Sachem lead to 12-6. The Sachem defense fought on each play and nearly held on the series. For the afternoon, however, the Sachem defense forced Lexington to punt four times.

With a halftime score of 12-6, the game was still up for grabs and a weather-caused mistake could decide it. But Winchester was so intense, it seemed the Minutemen wanted no part of the raging mania in front of them.

not let up, however, and blocked a punt on the Lexington 35-yard line to give Winchester a great opportunity. George Nowell recovered the ball and Winchester took over at the Lexington 19.

DeMarco connected with Benincasa again for a 14-yard TD pass to put the Sachems on top 19-6 with nine minutes left in the third quarter.

Tasting victory, the Sachems played the rest of the game as if the game were scoreless.

"Our defense played with such intensity that Lexington could do nothing. We finally showed what we can do. We were 'up' all the time," said Scott "Quasimodo" Cullen.

The game had no superstars; each player did something outstanding. The defensive play of Mike Vozzella, David Carter, Richie Burke and Cullen shut down the big Lexington offense for four quarters.

On offense, the play of Benincasa, snagging two touchdown passes in a monsoon, was incredible and DeMarco was a true field general, throwing as if the ball were dry.

Cromwell still had all his moves, despite uncertain footing, while fullback Danny Costello ran with people on his back more than once.

"This is the first time we've played with such intensity. We showed what we're capable of doing," Cromwell said.

Credit also must go to offensive guard Dave Ford, who played with a bad ankle against a man twice his size and succeeded as the underdog in the David versus Goliath rematch.

"I want to give credit to the fans for their support," DeMarco said. "All those people sitting in the rain cheering for us were like a 12th player on the team."

Perhaps sweetest of all, the Sachems finally rid themselves of "the Lexington curse" Saturday. No more can it be said that Winchester can't win the big game.

Sports round-up

Mark Herlihy, a sophomore at Tufts University, placed 53rd for the men's cross country team at the New England meet. He was Tufts' top runner. Junior end Jeff Stackpole caught three passes for 58 yards for Westfield State in a football loss to Plymouth State.

Michelle Powers of UMass is the leading scorer for the women's soccer team with nine goals and five assists. The team is 13-2-2 and seeded second in the NCAA tournament to open Nov. 16 in Amherst.

Colgate University freestyler Rod Green, a junior from Winchester, will be trying to break his own records during the winter swimming season.

Two more victories will assure spot in Super Bowl

By DAVID DEMARCO

Two more victories will do it. If Winchester can defeat Belmont this Saturday and Woburn on Thanksgiving Day, the Sachems will definitely visit Sullivan Stadium for the Super Bowl.

Saturday at Knowlton Stadium the Sachems will face Belmont, 3-5 this year and holding seventh place in the Middlesex League.

The Marauders are led by first-year coach John Papas.

Belmont's only real strength is quarterback Chris Wright, who throws the ball very well. Unfortunately for Belmont, he rarely has enough time to throw.

Belmont is an inexperienced team. Only Brian Gilligan on the line had any varsity experience in 1985.

Tailback Paul Santosuosso will carry the ball for the Marauders but fans should look for Belmont to throw, most often to split end Michael Jackson, early in the game.

Wright will also lead the Belmont defense as a safety. The rest of the defense is unproven.

Winchester High School seniors will play their last home game Saturday, so they should be fired up for the important contest, one the Sachems cannot afford to lose.

On paper, the Sachems should notch No. 9 this week. But they must resist the temptation to look past Belmont to Thanksgiving's "big game" at Woburn.

Impressions, Winchester's newest print shop

This year, instead of the typical, impersonal Christmas Card, you can send out holiday greetings that are truly unique and personal. In just two-three weeks, Impressions, Winchester's newest print shop, can make this year's holiday greeting, one your friends and relatives will find special, personal, and memorable.

From a photograph of your home, "we produce a pen and ink illustration on quality paper," explains owner Laureen Zarse. "The customer can add their own verse or choose from sample verses we have," Laureen adds. "Most printers just add the name to a card," she continues. "Your own home and adding your own verse makes it more personal."

You may also choose other subjects for the illustration. Whatever you choose, an enlarged 8 x 10 print suitable for framing, is available at a minimal charge.

The illustrations are done by graphic designer/illustrator, Lisa Kry. Lisa is a freelance graphic designer who attended the Connecticut College of Art and Parson's School of Design in New York.

Laureen has more than seven years of experience in the print business. Her knowledge of the business comes from doing "anything and everything for those seven years at the Star Commercial Print Shop. When it ceased to operate recently, Laureen opened Impressions.

In addition to unique, personal Christmas Cards, Impressions also does just about anything else you might need in print. From business forms, business cards, menus, or flyers, to newsletters, labels, brochures and business stationery, Impressions can do it. They also have a wide selection of personal stationery and invitations.

"We take pride in getting things out on time," Laureen explains. "We get the job out when you are told it will be done."

Whether you want to make this holiday greeting one to remember with a personal Christmas Card, or you need just about anything else in print, Impressions has the experience to get the job done professionally and get it done on time. Call Laureen at 729-1789. Impressions is open Monday-Friday 9-5.

Oxfam fast at St. Eulalia's

Members of St. Eulalia's Community will join thousands of other Americans in Oxfam America's 13th annual "Fast for a World Harvest" Thursday, Nov. 20.

There will be a special liturgy at 5:15 p.m. with breaking of bread at 6 p.m. in the Parish Hall of St. Eulalia's Church. All are invited. Participants should bring bread to share and/or cheese and fruit. Coffee and apple cider will be served.

Thursday before Thanksgiving is traditionally the day for the Oxfam Fast, one way people can demonstrate concern for the world's hungry. One can skip a meal, or fast for a day and then simply donate the food money to Oxfam America.

Oxfam America is an international agency that funds self-help development projects and disaster relief in poor countries in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, and also prepares and distributes educational materials for Americans on the issues of development and hunger. Oxfam America, based in Boston, was formed in 1970, and is one of seven autonomous Oxfams found around the world. Oxfam is a nonsectarian, nonprofit agency which neither seeks nor accepts U.S. government funds. All contributions are tax deductible.

Robert Hallisey of Winchester, playing the role of Gaston Lachaille in the Winchester Players' production of "Gigi," ponders his most recent romantic break-up. The play is scheduled at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Metcalf Hall Theatre at the Unitarian Church.

'Gigi' opens to enthusiasm, will return Friday

By JERILYN HEINOLD

Special to The Star

The Winchester Players brought a taste of Gay Paree to the state as "Gigi" opened to an enthusiastic audience Friday night. Performances will continue at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Nov. 14 and 15.

"Gigi" was the vehicle that launched the careers of Audrey Hepburn and Leslie Caron. The Players chose to present the comedy version rather than the musical because the comedy can stand on its own without interruptions for song.

Director, Ken Harvey says he's delighted to present the show. "The cast is extremely talented and works well together," he says.

Friday's audience praised the cast, set and costumes.

"This show has something for everyone—a flaky mother, eccentric aunt and a perky teenager coming of age," said Cosmo Vaudo of Somerville.

The show also gives audiences a peek at Paris in the early 1900s with its ideas quite foreign to 1986.

Cast members include Winchester residents Robert Hallisey and Wendy Klug in the starring roles of Gigi and Gaston Lachaille. Supporting case members come from Belmont, Cambridge and Wellesley.

To reserve tickets for performances at Metcalf Hall Theatre at the Winchester Unitarian Church, call the Players' answering service at 721-1714. Tickets are $5 but $4 for senior citizens and students.

OBITUARIES

Daniel Daley

Daniel Maurice Daley Jr., 64, of Winchester, died of a heart attack Aug. 25 at Symmes Hospital in Arlington.

Born in Medford, Mr. Daley was a Winchester resident for nine years. He was the husband of Marcia Elizabeth Daley of Winchester.

Mr. Daley graduated from Northeastern University. He received two master's degrees. He was an engineer and a disabled American veteran of World War II.

Among his survivors are two sons, Daniel Maurice III and Thomas Francis, and a daughter, Marcia Elizabeth.

Funeral services were conducted Aug. 30 from the Beale Geake Funeral Home in Medford, followed by a mass at St. Eulalia's Church. Burial was at St. Patrick's in Stoneham.

Helen Merrow

Helen B. (Higgins) Merrow, 90, of Winchester, died Nov. 9 at Cape Cod Nursing Home in Bourne after a short illness.

Born in Andover, Mrs. Merrow was a Winchester resident for 55 years.

She was the wife of the late Oscar E. Merrow.

Mrs. Merrow graduated from Jackson College (Tufts University) in the class of 1917.

She was a member of St. Mary's Sodality.

Among her survivors are: two sons, Richard J. and David of Kendall Park, N.J.; a daughter, Ruth Ann Phaneuf of North Muskegon, Mich.; 11 grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Nov. 13 from the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home, followed by a mass at St. Mary's Church.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Memorial donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Ruth Freeman

Ruth (Moulton) Freeman, 83, of Winchester died Nov. 7 at her home after a long illness.

Born in Portland, Maine, she was a Winchester resident for 55 years.

Mrs. Freeman leaves her husband, Maurice T. Freeman.

She graduated from Vassar College in 1925.

Mrs. Freeman was an active member of the Winton Club, the Enka Society, The Boston Museum of Fine Arts ladies committee and the Winchester Garden Club.

Mrs. Freeman spent her summers on Gislard Farm when she was young. The 60-acre farm in Falmouth Foreside, Maine, was her father's. She recently donated it to the people of Maine and to the Maine Audubon Society for its headquarters.

Reflecting her more than 50 years of attendance at the Boston Symphony Friday afternoon concerts, a string quartet from the orchestra and Lawrence Berry of the Parish of the Epiphany provided music at the funeral mass.

Among her survivors are: her four daughters, Louise F. Ahearn and Elizabeth J. Spiller of Winchester, Ruth M.F. O'Neill of Harbor Springs, Mich., and Jean T. Freeman of Manchester, Conn.; and 11 grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Nov. 10 at the Parish of the Epiphany by the Rev. John J. Bishop. Arrangements were made by the Lane Funeral Home.

Mrs. Freeman's four daughters are establishing a trust fund in their mother's memory to encourage further progress in pain research at the Pain Clinic of Massachusetts General Hospital. Donations may be made to the Ruth M. Freeman Fund for Pain Research, Kennedy 9, Department of Neurology, Boston 02114.

Lee Mitchell

Lee (M.A. LeCain) Mitchell, 75, of Boxborough, died Nov. 7 at her home after a long illness.

Born in Cambridge, Mrs. Mitchell was a long-time resident of Winchester before moving to Boxborough 20 years ago.

She was the wife of Roland E. Mitchell Sr. of Boxborough.

Mrs. Mitchell was a duplicate bridge player and received Life Master status in 1973.

Among her survivors are: her two sons, Roland E. Jr. of Milbury and Roger L. of Hawaii; two daughters, Joy-Ann Wendler of San Francisco and Faith Garcia of West Bloomfield, Mich.; eight grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were Nov. 10 at St. Isidore's Church in Stow. Burial was at South Cemetery in Boxborough. Arrangements were made by Acton Funeral Home.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 186 Main St., Marlborough 01752 or to the American Heart Association, 16 Haverill St., Andover 01810.

Angelo Ghirardini

Funeral services for Angelo W. Ghirardini, 75, will be conducted at 10:15 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 13, from the Lane Funeral Home in Winchester.

A funeral mass will follow at 11 a.m. at St. Mary's Church.

Mr. Ghirardini died suddenly Nov. 9 at his home on Chesterford Road.

Born in Dorchester, he had been a Winchester resident for more than 70 years.

He was the owner of the G. Angelo Fruit Co. in Chelsea and the Twin State Fruit Co. in White River Junction, Vt., for 50 years until his retirement five years ago.

Mr. Ghirardini was a member of the Boston Rotary Club and a past director of the New England Product Center in Chelsea. He was also a founder and a past officer of the New England Frozen Food Association.

He graduated from Worcester Academy in 1918 and attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He was the husband of the late Margaret R. (Rowe) Ghirardini and the father of Wayne F. Ghirardini of Andover and the late Rowe A. Ghirardini. He is also survived by a brother, John Ghirardini of Atlantis, Fla., and four grandchildren.

Interment will be in Newton Cemetery.

Memorial gifts may be sent to Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave., Winchester 01890.

Lee Aubrey

A memorial service will be conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 16, at the Unitarian Church for Lee Jackson Aubrey, 71, of Winchester, who died Nov. 6 at home.

Born in Winthrop, he was a Winchester resident for 37 years.

He was the husband of Mary A. (Gay) Aubrey of Winchester.

Mr. Aubrey was a vice president at the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston for 40 years. He retired 11 years ago.

He was a member of the Unitarian Church. He was a World War II veteran in the United States Army.

Among his survivors are: two daughters, Ellen Aubrey of Woburn and Gay Buswell of Barre, Vt.; three brothers, Howard W. of Westwood, Edward S. of Lexington and Francis P. of Southbury, Conn.; and one sister, Ruth Kuglin of Winchester.

Arrangements were made by the Lane Funeral Home. Burial was private at Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave.

Catherine O'Brien

Catherine A. (Cullen) O'Brien, 78, of Winchester, died Nov. 4 at Winchester Hospital after a long illness.

Born in Winchester, she was a lifetime resident.

She was the wife of the late John W. O'Brien.

Mrs. O'Brien graduated from St. Mary's High School in 1925. She graduated from Hickok School of Boston in 1926.

She was the director of the Winchester school lunch program for 25 years.

She was a retired president of the alumni association at St. Mary's High School.

She was a former grand regent of the Catholic Daughters of America and a member of the ladies sodality of the Immaculate Conception Church. She was the past president of ladies auxiliary of Aberjona Post Veterans of Foreign War 3719.

She was a member of the Democratic town committee.

Among her survivors are: two sons, John W. Jr. of Woburn and Richard of Ipswich; a daughter, Elizabeth Kimball of Winchester; three sisters, Helen Hogan of Winchester, Sister Serena Cullen CSJ of St. Matthew's in Dorchester and Sister Romula Cullen CSJ of Maria Convent in Newton; 11 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Nov. 8 from the Lane Funeral Home followed by a mass at Immaculate Conception Church. Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the Sisters of St. Joseph Bethany Fund, 657 Cambridge St., Brighton 02135.

Clarence R. Wickerson

Clarence Wickerson

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 15, at the First Congregational Church for Clarence R. Wickerson, 84, of Winchester, who died Nov. 11 at the Lahey Clinic in Burlington after a brief illness.

Born in Eastport, Maine, Mr. Wickerson was a Winchester resident for more than 44 years.

He was the husband of the late Cecilia A. (Hill) Wickerson.

Mr. Wickerson graduated from Northeastern University. He was associated with Whitman and Howard Inc. Consulting Engineers and Architects for more than 53 years as a consulting engineer, assistant treasurer, treasurer and chairman of the board of directors.

He was involved in the design and supervision of construction on many water, sewer, highway, railroad, pollution control and Army and Navy airfield projects throughout New England. He specialized in the development of new major water projects on Cape Cod for more than 40 years.

Mr. Wickerson was a life member of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers and the New England Water Works Association. He was a past member of the Massachusetts Building Congress, the American Works Association, and a past secretary and president of the Consulting Engineers Council of New England.

He was a past alternate director and director of the Consulting Engineers Council of the United States in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Wickerson served for more than seven years after his retirement as assistant treasurer for the First Congregational Church.

Among his survivors are his son, Richard Alan Wickerson, and his sister, Letty B. Batson of Milford, Ohio.

Visiting hours will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13, and from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 14, at the Lane Funeral Home.

Burial will be at Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the First Congregational Church.

Two-artist show to open

Works by Ronald Salter and Lois Hardy will be exhibited at the Winchester Art Association Gallery, 585A Main St. from Saturday, Nov. 15, to Saturday, Dec. 6.

Salter, a Winchester resident, works in both oils and watercolors and paints primarily New England landscapes. A professor at Tufts University, Salter returned to active painting as a hobby in 1983.

Also a member of the Boothbay Region (Maine) Art Foundation, Salter's favorite motifs are found in Northern Vermont and in the Boothbay Region.

"In our high-tech corporate world, with its efficiency fetish and overzealous pursuit of material values, I find much spiritual relief in the intensive contemplation of nature which landscape painting demands," Salter says.

Hardy, a resident of Malden, paints in watercolors but is also a spinner and weaver.

Flowers are her favorite subject and watercolor her favorite medium

"because the transparency of this medium best suits the images I want to produce," she says.

She won both first and second prizes in both 1985 and 1986 in exhibits of the Malden Guild of Artists. She teaches arts and crafts for the Malden Council on Aging.

The two-artist exhibit at the Winchester Art Association gallery will open with a reception from 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 15. It will be open thereafter from noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Town might get more money than housing

- Accepted funds for perpetual care of a grave at Wildwood Cemetery.

- Read a draft of a letter to the state Executive Office of Communities and Development, outlining the town's progress in housing and the agenda for the Nov. 24 session of town meeting.

- Decided to advise the town's committee on names that the historical commission is considering names for a few new streets.

- Ordered copies of a recent publication by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, "Inclusionary Housing and Linkage Programs in Metropolitan Boston," for each selectman.

- Accepted the resignation of Faith Waltham from the fair housing committee.

- Learned that the conservation commission voted to express strong opposition to re-zoning land for two final units of low-to-moderate income housing.

- Received a copy of a "request for a determination of applicability" under the state wetlands protection act from Robert R. Deward of 149 Horn Pond Brook Road.

- In addition to his request, Deward said the land at the northern end of Sylvester Avenue and land between Horn Pond Brook and Middlesex Street should be preserved as conservation land. He asked the conservation commission to "seriously consider" acquiring the land, currently town-owned.

- Both parcels are among those to be considered by the Nov. 24 town meeting as possible sites for two more units of state-mandated Section 705 low-to-moderate income housing

- Learned of a preliminary site plan review scheduled by the board of appeals for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, in the board of health clinic at town hall. The Concord Caterer wishes to renovate a portion of 10 Lowell Ave. for a retail sales operation.

- Selectmen recalled that the owner told them earlier this year he would not use the building for retail sales. They voted to check the record and will consider a response at their Nov. 17 meeting, perhaps also designating someone to deliver it to the board of appeals.

- Heard selectman Frank Sopper ask to investigate whether the orange barrels carrying "Yield to pedestrian in crosswalk" signs can be removed. Sopper asked if the town could "keep the signs and get rid of the barrels."

- Agreed to investigate a suggestion by selectman Bob Deering, who said residents of the Leonard Pond area would like to see the pond drained to a very shallow mark in the winter so children could skate there without fear of drowning.

- Welch observed that the local referendum question to allow the liquor store to remain open had passed by a very wide margin.

- "I think that's a tribute to Nick Buonopane," Welch said. The same referendum allowing the Winchester Wine and Spirits will be on the ballot twice more before the license becomes final.

Widows' abatements restored

Without a dissenting vote, town meeting members restored the so-called widow's abatement to Winchester's property tax structure.

Inserted as a special article in this month's town meeting at the request of selectman Julie Muggia, restoration of the abatement was made necessary when the state legislature changed the rules for it.

Each community must decide whether to adopt the abatement as a "local option" measure. Muggia acted after no request for the abatement was received from the board of assessors.

The major change in rules will exclude a property owner's home of three or fewer units from his financial holdings. Muggia told town meeting the exclusion became necessary when property values boomed in the Boston area and made some people of limited income owners of homes suddenly worth far more than they paid for them.

Abatements and tax deferrals, collected when a home is sold, are generally available to surviving spouses, minor children and others over 70 years old, subject to income guidelines. For Winchester, total deferrals in fiscal 1986 were about $12,000.

Reimbursements from the state are estimated at about $47,000 for fiscal 1987, Muggia said.

Scigliano to lead hospital PR

Anne R. Scigliano, formerly vice president for community relations at Choate-Symmes Health Services, has been appointed director of community relations at Winchester Hospital.

She succeeds John Burgoyne, who retired Oct. 1. Scigliano, former editor of the Lexington Minute-man, joined Symmes Hospital eight years ago as director of community relations and development. In 1981, with the consolidation of Choate and Symmes Hospitals and the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, she assumed responsibility for the total community relations program.

A graduate of Bates College and Boston College Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, she is active in Lexington town government, having served as an elected town meeting member and on numerous committees. Presently, she is a member of the Lexington board of appeals. She is also clerk and a trustee of the Lexington Savings Bank and a director of the Josiah W. Hayden Recreation Center, and development chairperson and member of the board of directors of Hospice Care Inc. Active also in professional organizations, she is director-at-large of the New England Hospital Public Relations Association, director of media and public relations for the New England Association for Hospital Development, and serves on the Advocacy Task Force of the American Society for Marketing and Public Relations. She resides in Lexington.

GOP annual meeting will hear Nelson

Radio and TV commentator Avi Nelson will be the guest speaker for the Winchester Republican Club's annual meeting and luncheon Wednesday, Nov. 19, at the Winchester Country Club.

Registration and a social hour will begin at 11:30 a.m. with luncheon scheduled at noon.

A business meeting will follow Nelson's address. A revision of the by-laws will be discussed, followed by election of new officers.

Reservations may be made through Phyllis Johansen.

College reps will visit high school

Several schools will send representatives to the Winchester High School "mini-college" programs at 2 p.m. Wednesdays in the cafeteria.

College representatives will answer all questions about their schools and programs.

Schools to be represented Nov. 19 are Boston University, Castleton (Vt.) State College, Eastern College, George Washington University, Hesser College, University of Maine, College of Mount St. Vincent and University of Rhode Island.

Schools to be represented Dec. 3 are American International College, Bradford College, Marymount College and Pine Manor College.

Firemen OK new contract

(Continued from front page) unused sick days back to the town. Sick days beyond 90 days can be sold back at $50 per day, up to 15 days in any one year.

The town's self-improvement program for firefighters has two new provisions. Reimbursement will be $15 per credit hour but firefighters must earn at least a C grade to get reimbursement.

Courses are limited to nine credits per semester and firefighter-students must be advancing toward a degree.

Loop packets will be mailed

(Continued from front page) Loop will no longer be subject to review by the state secretary of transportation before it can be used. Even more information will be available in a "supplemental packet" to those who request it, selectmen decided Monday.

The town hopes to bring proposals for disposing of the Loop, bought by the town in late 1984, to the spring town meeting.

What To Do

What's on, what's hot

Something for everyone in Boston radio market

By George Derringer

Network TV killed network radio 35 years ago but radio still has a bigger morning and afternoon audience than TV.

But times have changed in the radio industry during those 35 years. FM stations today sound more like each other than ever. AM stations turned to talk and news and the Federal Communications Commission has given AM a hand, allowing most stations to stay on at night and use more power.

Here's what's on, starting with FM.

FM stations

WMBR, 88.1 — The radio station of MIT, this is an eclectic mix of music and talk. Tune by and see if there's something you like.

A popular show is Dumbtown at 12:30 a.m. Sunday nights. It's described as "music and talk in the city of mental ineptitude."

You can also find blue, cajun and new wave music on WMBR.

WERS, 68.9 — Emerson College's station is among Boston's best. Programming is folk on the Coffeehouse from 6 to 11 a.m., Jazz Oasis from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and reggae until 6 p.m.

Evening shows vary until Niteklub with alternative rock from 11 p.m. to 2 a.m.

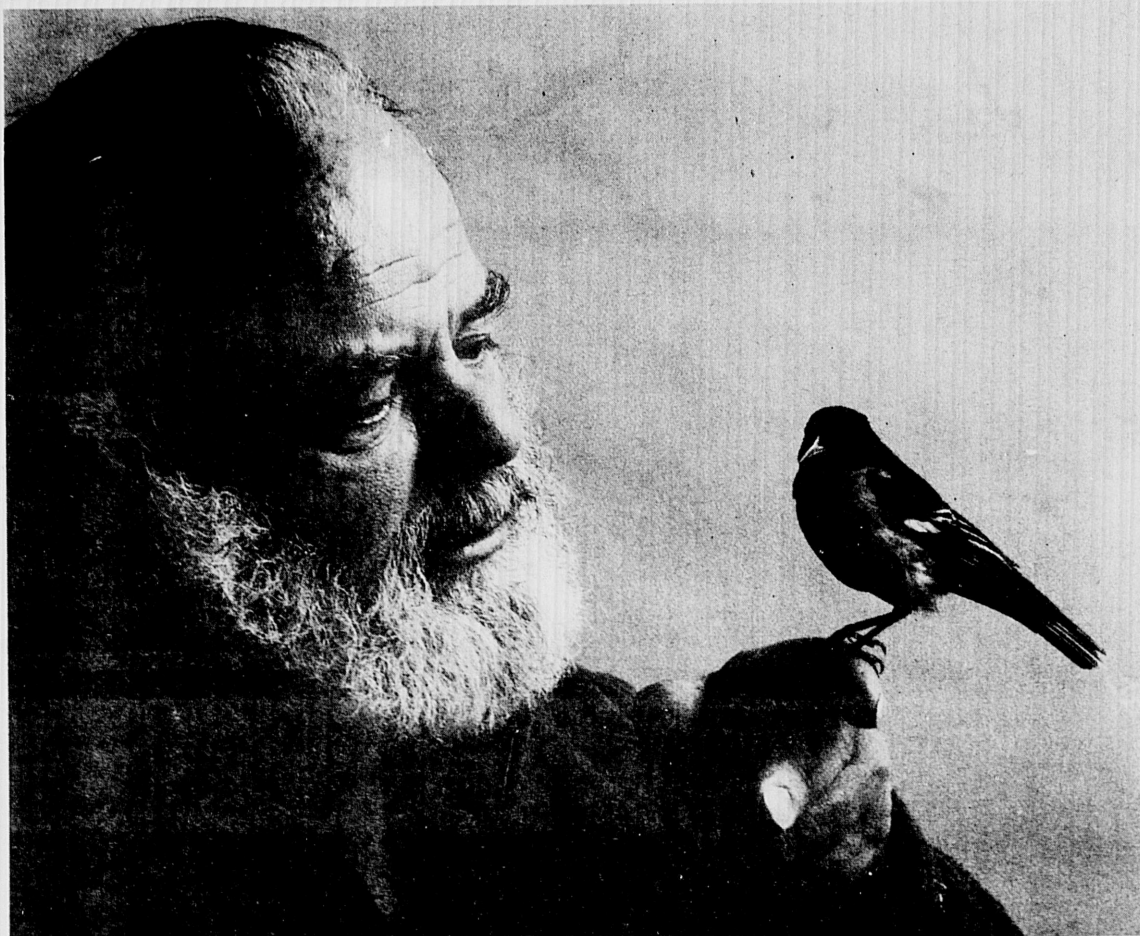

There's an eclectic mix weekends, including Women In Music from 6 to 10 a.m. Saturday. The station just won approval for a power increase.

WHSR, 89.3 — The voice of Winchester High School is very weak, not in stereo and specializes in rock.

WGBH, 89.7 — The radio counterpart of Channel 2 carries Robert J. Lurtsema's Morning Pro Musica until noon and more classical music all day. A New Day precedes Robert J. from 5 to 7 a.m.

All Things Considered, a comprehensive news and analysis show, is at 5 p.m. Eric (Jackson) In The Evening plays jazz.

Folk music, with emphasis on New England artists, occupies weekend afternoons and Garrison Keller's Prairie Home Companion is 6-8 p.m. Saturdays.

WZBC, 90.3 — Boston College's station is for rock lovers and BC sports fans.

Other shows include Caribbean Forum at 5 p.m. Saturday and The Holistic Community at 5 p.m. Wednesdays.

WBUR, 90.9 — Boston University's station sounds like WGBH most of the time, carrying classical music all day. It also carries All Things Considered from 5 to 7 p.m. Unlike WGBH, it carries that program's morning counterpart, Morning Edition, from 6 to 9 a.m.

Kids America, for ages 6-12, is on 7-8 p.m. seven days a week.

All Night Long plays jazz from about 11 p.m. until the wee hours. Weekends, an excellent local public affairs show called Weekend Edition fills the mornings.

WMFO, 91.5 — The voice of Tufts University specializes in jazz and blues.

WUMB, 91.9 — This station, at the University of Massachusetts in Boston, carries a big dose of folk and acoustic music.

Acoustic Sunrise, a folk show, is on 6 to 9 a.m., when senior citizens enjoy As Young As You Feel, mostly big band music, until 11 a.m. More folk music fills the day until From The Source, a public affairs show from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Friday's slate is Circles In The Stream, a live folk music show 7 to 8 p.m., a kids' show 8 to 8:30 and Commonwealth Journal until 9 p.m.

Black Expressions air 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. except Sunday, when a Spanish show is on.

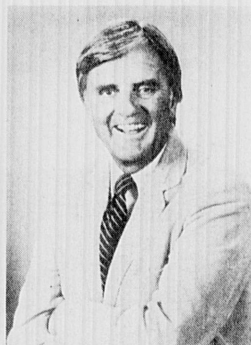

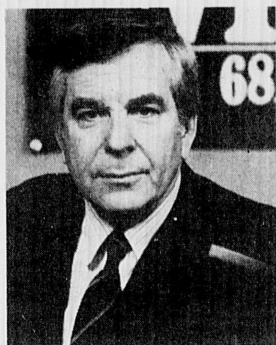

Weekends on WUMB have As Young As You Feel 6:30 a.m. Saturday and Celtic Twilight 5-9 p.m. Saturday. Sunday is all folk except Chinese 8-9 p.m. and Spanish 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

WPRO, 92.3 — Rock from Providence.

WLYT, 92.5 — WLYT is a jukebox of light hits.

WBOS, 92.9 — Too embarrassed to call itself a country music station. WBOS says it plays "America's music."

What To Do

WSNE, 93.3 — More light hits.
WCGY, 93.7 — Once called "Blue Suede Radio," WCGY plays rock and roll with an emphasis on 60s music. Hear Morin and Krantz in the morning.

WHJY, 94.1 — Rock and roll.
WZOU, 94.5 — Rock and roll for young folks who call stations things like Z-94.

WHRB, 95.3 — Harvard's station is an interesting mix of things. We've never figured out what's on when, but Jazz Spectrum runs from 6 to 10 a.m. weekdays with classical music until 10 p.m.

WBRU, 95.5 — Progressive rock from Brown University.

WATD, 95.9 — A middle-of-the-road station days, this turns into a folk and acoustic station for Something Different from 7 to midnight.

WSRS, 96.1 — Mantovani. Perfect for dentists' offices and elevators.

WJIB, 96.9 — Ditto.

WJFD, 97.3 — America's only full-time Portuguese station, it's in New Bedford.

WCAV, 97.7 — Country music from the South Shore.

WMYS, 98.1 — Rock and roll.
WROR, 98.5 — Adult contemporary, one step short of rock and roll, is done well on WROR.

The Joe and Andy Family weekday mornings is a mix of comedy and music.

WROR also features Saturday Night Live at the Oldies, lots of talk shows Sunday mornings and a rare program for the gay community at 12:30 a.m. Sunday nights.

Dr. Demento plays weird rock 8 to 10 p.m. Sunday, followed by the equally unusual Dr. Ruth's call-in sex show.

WPLM, 99.1 — Big band music and Bruins hockey.

WSSH, 99.5 — Dionne Warwick, Kenny Rogers, Barbara Streisand and Neil Diamond ad nauseum.

WBRB, 100.1 — The voice of Brandeis University in Waltham. WBRB plays truly odd stuff. That's the station's description.

WZLX, 100.7 — Classic hits is adult contemporary with an em-

Police, fire radio popular

Though almost required in rural areas, listening to the police and fire departments is popular in suburbs as well.

Listening to a police scanner is most entertaining in rural areas, where everyone knows each person whose license and vehicle registration is checked. It's fun to know who was speeding long before the newspaper prints it.

But in suburban areas, most of the conversation ("traffic") is extremely boring. Still, "hundreds" of scanners exist in Winchester, according to local police officers.

Here are the frequencies, in megahertz, for area communities. Most modern scanners can be digitally programmed to receive them. Older scanners require a separate crystal for each frequency, which means a $5 investment just to check out a frequency.

ARLINGTON — Police: 471.1625. Fire: 460.600. Town crews: 158.760.

NEWTON — Police: 470.8375. Fire: 483.4625.

WATERTOWN — Police: 470.7125. Fire: 483.7125. Town crews: 155.955.

WINCHESTER — Police: 482.8125 (Shared with Woburn). Fire: 46.20. Town crews: 45.12.

Other frequencies of interest are:

METROFIRE (all metropolitan fire departments, used to call aid) — 154.220 and 483.3125.

POLICE INTERCITY — 158.970.

BAPERN (Boston Area Police Emergency Radio Network, used by Arlington, Belmont, Newton, Watertown):

Channel One, system control — 471.7125.

What's On The Boards

'Alice' is amazing, Rappaport comes

Hirsch a boon to American humorists

When Tony Award-winner Judd Hirsch opens in Herb Gardner's I'm Not Rappaport at the Colonial Theatre on Nov. 28, Hub audiences will witness one of the more remarkable interpreters of American playwrights. Plying his favorite craft, Hirsch has given life to characters of Jules Feiffer, Bruce Jay Friedman, Neil Simon and Herb Gardner.

Hirsch, a feisty octogenarian in I'm Not Rappaport, performed on Broadway for 16 months in the show and may be the foremost comic actor of his generation. Rarely has there been a performer so successful in the theatre with contemporary American humorists.

His gallery of characters is formidable, and, of course, he is well known for his performance on television (Taxi) and film (Ordinary People). Yet he is a rare actor who truly cares about the theatre and frequently makes sacrifices to appear on stage.

He holds the astonishing record of moving three shows from off-Broadway to Broadway—Jules Feiffer's Knock, Knock, Lanford Wilson's Talley's Folly and the current Rappaport.

Hirsch debuted on Broadway as the telephone man in Barefoot in the Park and then became one of the busiest American actors in every phase of the industry.

He was last seen on stage at The American Place as Boris Trigorin in Chekov's The Seagull in 1983. Earlier he created the role of Matt Friedman in the Pulitzer Prize-winning Talley's Folly, at the Circle Rep, the Mark Taper Forum and finally on Broadway, where he was nominated for a Tony in 1980.

A member of the Circle Rep since 1972, Hirsch originated the role of Bill in Wilson's The Hot Baltimore and the multi-faceted character of Wiseman in Knock, Knock, earning him a Drama Desk Award when the play moved to Broadway. On Broadway he also starred in Neil Simon's Chapter Two.

Off-Broadway he starred in Scuba Duba, Jean-Claude van Itallie's King of the United States and Mystery Play, among others. Hirsch gained an Obie Award for his achievements Off-Broadway in 1979.

He made his television debut as Murray Stone, public defender, in the Emmy Award-winning movie The Law, playing the role in the subsequent mini-series, as well as starring in the series Delvecchio, and finally was Alex Rieger for five years in Taxi, for which he was awarded two Emmies.

Hirsch's film credits include King of the Gypsies, Ordinary People (Oscar-nominated as the Psychiatrist), Without a Trace, Teachers and Gardner's The Goodbye People.

Alice is A-Ok

Five women face the audience and announce, "My name is Alice." The names of their husbands also start with the letter A, as do their lovers. . . and their lovers' lovers! So opens A. . . My Name is Alice, which happens to be "B". . . for bubbly, "C" for clever, "D" for delightful, "E" for engaging, "F" for funny, and all the way to "Z" for zesty.

Conceived and compiled by Joan Micklin Silver and Julianne Boyd, and happily ensconced at The Next Move Theatre for what should be a most successful run, Alice is a neatly packaged collage of 22 songs, skits and monologues by 28 contributors that explores daily joys and woes, touching upon most aspects of life.

Some of the material is painted in broad strokes, some in bold hues or delicate tints, but it all adds up to a colorful kaleidoscopic canvas.

Shorn of frills—minimal props and costumes—the revue showcases material and talent, and while not every number rings the bell (and others are rescued by cast members), the tight, driving direction of Douglas Goodman and the stalwart efforts of musical director Brad Ellis keep the show moving at a merry clip.

The quintet of actresses portray an amazing array of disparate characters. Each is strong vocally and, in harmony, the blending of their voices makes sweet music.

Bobbie Steinbach proves a comedienne par excellence, breaking up the house with bits of poetic trivia that start with saccharinesweet verses and end with vitriolic darts of revenge against her former lover.

Then, in a complete turnabout, she renders the memorable Sisters, the heart-wrenching tale of two sisters, incompatible in their younger years, destined to live out their lives together after both lose their husbands. Len Schanabel's dramatic lighting is most effective.

D'Jamin Bartlett's torchy chanteuse quality shines in The Portrait, a captivating vignette of a mature woman still yearning for her deceased mother's guidance and approval, and in a riotous burlesque, The French Song, comprised totally of clichés.

Lynne Lamberis proves a veritable chameleon with her animated face. In the intimate and touching, yet delightfully comic At My Age, the disarming Lynne at 15 and the "second time around" Bobbie at 58, reveal their innermost anxieties about their first blind date.

In the hilarious Trash, spinster Lynne fancies living dangerously in the wild escapades of her paperback heroines.

Terri Yvette Taylor scores with Demigod in which a girl in a laundromat imagines her ex-boyfriend is inside the machine, getting his due, and again with an uplifting ballad of love, Pay Them No Mind, wherein a girl cautions her boyfriend to ignore critical comments and prejudicial glances.

And in Ms. Mae we share the agonies and ecstasies of an older woman (Venus Irving-Prescott) in a visit to the beauty parlor. Despite lesser, and even embarrassing material, Venus still manages to overcome.

Two other numbers of note are Pretty Young Men, wherein three women react vicariously to the thrill of male strippers, and Friends, lovingly rendered by Lynne and Terri, a poignant tale of two loyal friends and their unwavering relationship from grammar school to infirmity.

Alice is A-Ok.

Nunsense has unusual roots sent former seminarian Dan Goggin a nun's habit.

Goggin conceived a line of greeting cards starring Sister Mary Cardella, and convinced dental assistant Marilyn Farina to portray the nun on the card.

The series of cards was such a success that Farina began making personal appearances in card stores dressed as the nun. Goggin created the history of the role and the Little Sisters of Hoboken for these appearances.

In 1983, Goggin, Farina and friends created a series of unrelated sketches featuring a collection of nuns. This cabaret version of the show was to play four days at the Duplex, a Greenwich Village nightclub. It ran 38 weeks.

The revue, entitled The Nunsense Story, also tried out at Boston's Bradford Theatre. In 1985, Goggin added a story line and made it into a full blown two-act musical with a book.

Nunsense opened on Dec. 12, 1985 at the Cherry Lane Theatre in New York and immediately was recognized as the Off-Broadway sleeper of the season. The show currently running at the Douglas Fairbanks Theatre, won four Outer Critics Circle Awards: Best Off-Broadway Musical, Best Book, Best Music, and Striking Debut of an Actress (Semina DeLaurentis, Sister Mary Amnesia).

The Boston Shakespeare Company theatre is located near Copley Place, behind the Colonnade Hotel, at 52 St. Botolph St. Call 267-5600. To charge tickets call 541-8511.

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

Light and shadow create angular patterns and shapes across the strong verticals of Dover Station's architectural form in Sidney Hurwitz's hand-colored etching, Station Stairs.

Two printmakers exhibit

The works of two fine and distinguished printmakers comprise an exhibition at Francesca Anderson Gallery, 132 Newbury St., Boston, that impresses in its technical mastery and resonates with both subtlety and force in its striking imagery.

David Bumbeck's intaglio prints and Sidney Hurwitz's hand-colored etchings hang side by side, complementing one another while asserting the distinct vision and form of each artist.

Hurwitz, who lives in Newton and teaches at Boston University, depicts the urban landscape with clarity of light and shadow and a handsomely controlled value-shape relationship throughout complex planes and structures.

In North End, a myriad of verticals — chimneys, vents, poles, fences — shoots upward from rooftops into a warm white sky, stark against the rich interplay of dark to middle values below. Windows, beams, railings and surface ornamentation activate the surfaces of North Station and Station Stairs.

Yet, with all the intricacies of his motifs, there is a sense of restraint and simplification, resulting from the artist's masterful orchestration of parts to whole, that lends to the work a quiet monumentality.

Watercolor washes that color Hurwitz's etchings add to the haunting beauty of their big forms. The ink of the print that lies underneath soft grey-greens, dark purples, and warm oranges and pinks gives them a fullness that pushes deep into the surface and is densely absorbent in shadows while crisply reflective in light.

Color in Bumbeck's prints, on the other hand, is implied through a tonal distribution that vibrates with the life of its own textures.

Bumbeck's preoccupation with the figure, and especially the female figure, as subject matter is served well by the warmth and physicality of his dark-to-light range and depth. Manipulating tones to describe and give weight to the figures, Bumbeck patterns and unifies the picture plane as well through rhythmic tonal changes.

The result is a dense and full surface configuration with sensuous darks melting through to even deeper darks and lights that crackle hard against them.

Bumbeck acknowledges the tradition of his subject by paying tribute to two great draughtsmen and painters of the female figure, Matisse and Gauguin, in prints that are almost collage-like in their scale juxtapositions and wealth of imagery. Degas, too, is evoked in the female poses and postures of the beautifully put-together Soliloquy, another collage-like composition.

Bumbeck is a resident of Middlebury, Vt., where he teaches at Middlebury College. The exhibition of his and Hurwitz's work continues through Nov. 23. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. Call 262-1062.

What To Do

Eggs, arts star in fair

While looking through a National Geographic magazine in 1972, Elizabeth Sarracino became enthralled with an article about Ukrainian folk eggs.

Since childhood, she had often heard her Polish relatives speak about the traditions surrounding this beautiful art form. Today, Sarracino spends from two hours to three days designing each traditionally-inspired egg.

Her elaborately detailed creations, which she calls "Olde World Eggs," are among the hundreds of gift ideas at the annual New England Crafts Festival, Nov. 14-16, at the Northeast Trade Center in Woburn.

The Crafts Festival is a natural solution for anyone who wants to get a head-start on Christmas shopping and on innovative holiday decorating.

The 350 or more artists and craftsmen at the show will demonstrate their arts as well as sell many one-of-a-kind items.

Hand-carved Santas, individually designed gingerbread houses, baby coverlets, five-foot wooden men, handmade Swedish door harps, photography and children's clothes are among the available goods.

Many of these items have a unique history behind them.

The handmade angora sweaters made by Louise Walsh, for instance, literally begin with the rabbit.

Walsh gave up an engineering career on her 40th birthday to pursue her dream of raising rabbits. Today, she has more than 300 rabbits, which she grooms to make her sweaters.

The angora yarn is made by simply rubbing the rabbit's back as it sheds, and hand-spinning the fur into a strand of yarn. The natural fibered angora yarn creates some of the softest, most comfortable sweaters around.

The North Country wind bells of Jim and May Davidson replicate the ringing of country church bells, island pasture bells and harbor bells in their home town of Round Pond, Maine.

The couple was able to capture such sounds in their pyramid-shaped metal bells by using a special steel used in building outdoor structures.

Beside the quality of sound, the bells develop an earthen color as they age.

Hungarian-born master craftsman Emil Nagy makes his brass candlesticks using machines he designed and built himself.

The candlestick begins with a solid cylinder or brass rod which is whittled smoothly away on a machine lathe until the desired size and shape of the stem is attained.

Each candlestick, which can weigh up to 25 pounds, is signed and numbered.

Nagy produces 54 different designs in varying heights, and has named many of his designs after New Hampshire towns.

Another fascinating craftsman is Steve Sutton of Cooperstown, N.Y.

Sutton makes perfectly detailed, if immobile, carved automobiles of all makes and models and vintages.

Sutton claims to spend 80 hours per week in his workshop just to keep up with orders. His cars have been seen in galleries and shops throughout the country.

Other crafts for sale include quilts, handwoven rugs, doorstops, music boxes, ski hats and many unusual items.

The New England Crafts Festival is held noon to 8 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $3.50 for adults, free for children.

The Northeast Trade Center is off Route 128 at exit 39, near the I-93 interchange. For more festival information call 247-1055.

What's On the Boards?

unique relationship between working people, set to music by Bach, Hearn Gadbois and Jonathan Kane.

A 1986 Jacob's Pillow artist-in-residence, Ms. Miller will also perform the Boston premiere of A Haven for Restless Angels of Mercy set to a score by the Saggara Dogs with George Sempepos.

Acclaimed a "knock out mover" by the Village Voice, Bebe Miller's daring and fast-moving choreography has attracted sell-out audiences in New York. Her choreography features urban themes and characters of great empathy by performers with a raw intensity.

The New York Times calls last season's program "one of the season's highlights," while the Village Voice raves that "as far as dancing goes, it can't get any better or wiser than this."

Also on the program is Ms. Miller's Bessie award-winning piece Gypsy Pie, to the music of Mike Vargas, and Hard Heart, a solo by Ms. Miller, with text by John Cheever.

Tickets are $10 (discounts for members and students). Call 492-7578. Parking is free.

Macbeth goes surreal

An original interpretation of Macbeth is at the Mainstage of the Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle St., Cambridge, Nov. 13-15 and 20-22, at 8 p.m.

The production is a collaboration between Harvard director Lisa Freinkel and composer Fred Heiberger, and is in cooperation with the Harvard-Radcliffe Dramatic Club.

Shakespeare's Macbeth takes on new dimension in a surrealist context. The juxtaposition of dissonant images, sounds, and emotions is aimed at generating an atmosphere that is unnerving and compelling, conveying a sense of nightmare.

This is a world in which there is no distinction between interior and exterior, no confinement to a particular time or place.

This interpretation breaks with traditional mountings of the complex play. Macbeth pulses with the vitality and passion of the young warriors. It is an intensely human play, and the characters and relationships are disarmingly real.

Tickets are $5, and $4 with a student ID, and are available at the Loeb box office at 547-8300. For senior citizen and group discount contact Linda Singer at 495-2668.

Madrid dances into Boston

The colorful and spectacular Teatro Flamenco de Madrid presents An Evening with Jose Greco on Nov. 22, at 8 p.m., at New England Life Hall, 225 Clarendon St.

Under the auspices of Boston Flamenco Ballet, the show has four parts, El Sitio de Zaragoza, Como Gitanos, Tablao Flamenco and Zarzuela.

Teatro Flamenco of Madrid is a group of 15 artists, the majority natives of Spain and Latin America, and special guest artists such as Raul, Sabicas and Jose Greco join the company each season. This year's program will feature Jose Greco as actor and narrator.

Boston Flamenco Ballet is a non-profit cultural and educational organization. It is a touring company which performs in schools and theatres across the U.S. and Canada playing the spring and fall.

Tickets are from $8 to $18. Call 262-0292.

What To Do

Listeners tune in to variety

phaxis on the 60's and 70's.

WLKW, 101.5 — More music you'll enjoy while waiting for your root canal.

WFNX, 101.7 — Owned by the Boston Phoenix, WFNX competes with WBCN for the college crowd and hard rock fans. It plays more new local music than anyone else.

WCRB, 102.5 — Boston's commercial classical station.

WMRQ, 103.3 — WMRQ says it searches all albums for the best cuts and plays only "quality music." (Quality is this year's buzzword.) It's interesting and has an adult sound but isn't generally good for singing along.

WERI, 103.7 — Rock.

WBCN, 104.1 — A legend for the over-30 crowd, WBCN still has Charles Laquidara in the morning.

The station is less daring than 20 years ago and plays more familiar music but a whole new generation has grown up thinking the Doors are a contemporary group.

WXLO, 104.5 — Light hits.

WWLI, 105.1 — Light hits.

WVBF, 105.7 — Adult contemporary and comedy, WVBF sounds a lot like WROR, 98.5, but emphasizes western suburbs. There's an exception. The morning team of Loren and Wally makes fun of Boxborough. Makes sense.

WNCK, 106.3 — Light hits from Woonsocket. Where?

WMJX, 106.7 — "Magic" feels free to play a lot of things and is popular with folks in their 30s, especially the yuppie crowd. It's owned by the same folks who have golden oldies on WMEX-AM.

Bill Stephens, he of the late V-66, is the morning DJ with John Kosian in afternoon drive time. David Alan Boucher plays Bedtime Magic at 9 p.m.

WAAF, 107.3 — Rock from Worcester.

WXKS, 107.9 — Kiss-108 rocks. It's also Boston's top-rated station.

For nostalgia buffs, Arnie "Woo Woo" Ginsburg is on at 9 p.m. Sunday.

AM stations

WEEI, 590 — News radio. Some folks say it has a conservative slant since CBS sold it.

WPRO, 630 — From Providence, WPRO is one of the last AM rockers.

WRKO, 680 — Talk radio with an emphasis on sports, including the Red Sox and Celtics.

Ted O'Brien and Janet Jeghelian hold the fort in the morning while Gene Burns is on from 10 to 2 and Jerry Williams leaves his seat unbuckled from 2 to 6 p.m.

George Derringer

Sally Jesse Raphael will solve your problems by phone at mid-night. Dick Syatt hosts a hotline for not-especially-choosy singles from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

WLVG, 740 — Once called WCAS and the darling of the Cambridge counter-culture, this station now plays black-oriented gospel music. But you can still find VW Beetles with bumper stickers "This car runs on CAS."

Few of those people are listening at noon when James Dobson, a Jerry Falwell associate, preaches at noon on 740 AM.

WHDH, 850 — One of the top-rated stations, WHDH features adult popular music and Jess Cain in the morning. Tom Kennedy and Dave Supple hold down midday. Two zanies named Adams and Doyle make fake phone calls to (and from) the president from 3 to 6 p.m.

Eddie Antelman, who told us how bad the Red Sox were in May, hosts Sportstalk from 6 to 8, psychologist Tom Cottle has the next hour and Toni Grant is on from 9 to 11 p.m. Larry King's network show is on overnight.

Jim Sands plays oldies by request Saturday night and late Sunday afternoon. Antelman's back at 7 p.m. Sunday.

WROL, 950 — This daytime station features religion until Gus Saunders' "Yankee Kitchen" recipe swap in the afternoon. John Latchford's Irish music runs from 10:30 a.m. until signoff Saturdays.

WBZ, 1030 — The giant, WBZ features Dave Maynard in the morning. Talk with Peter Meade at 6 p.m. and David Brundnoy from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Larry Glick talks from 1 to 5 p.m. and a news show runs 5 to 6 p.m.

WTTP, 1060 — Talk from Natick. Old-time radio is on at 6 p.m. weekdays and 5 to 10 p.m. Saturdays. An Indian music show is on at 1 p.m. Sunday.

WILD, 1090 — An "urban contemporary" station on the air only until sundown, WILD plays what used to be called "soul music."

Regulars are Elroy in the AM, Candy Eastman from 10 to 2 and Rick Anderson until 6 p.m.

WMEX, 1150 — A reincarnation of the original Wimmex, which anyone in the area who is over 30 has to remember. The current WMEX even has period-sounding jingles and plays music of the 1950s and 1960s.

Wolfman Jack is on weekend nights.

WKOX, 1200 — Talk and information from Framingham.

WEZE, 1260 — Christian evangelical station with ads, extremely conservative talk shows and lots of preaching.

WJDA, 1300 — Big bands and South Shore news from Quincy.

WDLW, 1330 — Country music. The station has country countdowns Saturdays. Sundays are for ethnic shows with A Sense of Ireland 1:30 to 5 p.m. and World of Computers from 5 to 7 p.m.

WLYN, 1360 — Spanish and Greek programs. Weak signal from Lynn in most of our area.

WPLM, 1390 — Big bands.

WXKS, 1430 — Music of Your Life features the 30s, 40s and early 1950s.

WMRE, 1510 — A new talk station. Hillary Stevens and Ch. 38 movie man Dana Hersey are the morning team. Lotte Mendelsohn talks 10 to noon and Tony Pepper noon to 2. Pat Whitley is on from 2 to 5 p.m.

After news, Bob Gamere and Clif Keane talk sports until 8 p.m.

It's Doug Stephan 8-10 p.m. and Paul Yovino until 11.

At 11 p.m., you can hear (but not see) the Joan Rivers TV show. Bob Katzen talks all night.

WNTN, 1550 — From Newton, WNTN plays lots of things, including Irish music in the afternoon. It has excellent local talk shows in the morning.

WUNR, 1600 — Spanish most of the time, this station has more interesting programs weekend nights.

Especially good is The Last Train from 11:30 p.m. to 4 a.m. Saturday night.

Weeknights are devoted to black music.

George Derringer, editor of The Winchester Star, once worked in radio. In what now seems like a previous life, he played polkas and hosted a sports talk show in rural Minnesota, bored people with beautiful music in New York, and was producer of a talk show in Minneapolis. He was nearly fired for booking Miss Minnesota as a guest; she was much better suited for TV than talk radio.

Early bird radio, Celtic music air

By JACK GARVEY

WGBH-FM features two new programs this fall, one for early risers, the other for fans of Celtic music and culture.

A New Day, hosted by Richard Knisely, airs a refreshing blend of classical, folk and acoustic music Monday through Friday, 5 to 7 a.m. The program includes readings which Knisely gleans from current magazines and journals ranging from Yankee to New England Monthly to the New England Journal of Medicine.

Much of the music and the readings are selected to represent the season, ranging from the descriptive to the comic to the ponderous.

Knisely interviews guest artists, such as the innovative guitarist Kay Gardner who appeared on A New Day to discuss her own compositions as well as current trends in women's music.

While the change of schedule may disappoint regular listeners to Morning Edition, National Public Radio's one hour syndicated news show, they can still hear the show on WBUR-FM, as part of the philosophy of WGBH is to air material not available elsewhere on the dial.

In tone and substance, New Day is much like Morning Pro Musica which it precedes, although Knisely, unlike Robert J. Lurtsema, will play two or three numbers back-to-back before listing them.

Knisely is the former host of A Night Air which continues to run from midnight to 5 a.m. Monday through Thursday with host Janice Grey.

On Friday evenings from 6:30 to 8 is A Celtic Sojourn (pronounced, Keltic), with Brian O'Donovan, the popular former host of WERS's Coffeehouse and Music of Ireland and the British Isles.

O'Donovan, noted for his colorful Cork accent and wit, returns to the Greater Boston airwaves after a three-year hiatus.

Public radio adds fare

He says he will play random selections of Celtic music in the opening weeks, "until I get a feel for the technologies and nuances of the WGBH studio."

Afterwards, O'Donovan will model Sojourn after his show on WERS, with explanations and histories of the instruments, the songs, the styles of music, and the musical and cultural distinctions found in Ireland, Scotland, Cornwall, Brittany, Wales and the Isle of Man.

O'Donovan, too, will play three songs back-to-back, usually with a common thread through them, such as various styles of playing one instrument, lyrics about a coming winter, or laments concerning immigration.

On WERS, O'Donovan was known to research the music so thoroughly that he could reveal one such lament as the source of the word "gringo" used to describe white people by Mexicans and Indians in the southwest.

O'Donovan's popularity among Celtic aficionados is such that when he introduced the Scottish group Silly Wizard on the stage of Sanders Theater in 1984, the audience roared one of the loudest ovations of the evening.

A Celtic Sojourn replaces National Public Radio's hour-long syndication, The Thistle and Shamrock, which is still aired on other NPR stations. Sojourn will have the advantage of airing selections of Celtic groups as they arrive for performances in the New England states.

A Picture Of Uncontrolled Diabetes

Over 12 million Americans have diabetes. Sadly, half of them don't even know it, much less do something about it.

Uncontrolled diabetes slowly destroys parts of the body—often doing its most destructive work before you even realize it.

Since it's a disease that affects the body's ability to properly control sugar in the blood stream, cells, organs and tissue can be affected.

Two million Americans will discover that this year. From hospital beds.

Don't take reading this for granted.

It's important to understand that uncontrolled diabetes can cause permanent damage by irritating and ultimately causing blood vessels to thicken, clog or weaken.

Unfortunately, many of the body's most susceptible blood vessels are in the eyes. Five thousand people learn this annually. After they're blinded.

The first stages of vision complications caused by diabetes generally go unnoticed. But by the time blurred vision, white spots and decreased peripheral vision are detected, the actual damage is far more extensive. Blood vessels servicing the back of the eye venture forward obscuring light. Often they hemorrhage and cloud vision. Sometimes irreversibly.

What all this means is simple. Uncontrolled diabetes blinds. Fifty thousand Americans know this from experience.

Give diabetes an inch, and it'll take a foot.

A combination of nerve and blood vessel damage causes 20,000 foot and leg amputations annually among people with diabetes. Wrecked nerves tingle and grow numb. Feet that don't feel foster stubbed toes, cuts and bruises. Poor circulation prevents healing. First there's infection. Then gangrene. Then amputation.

Statistics show that 65 to 85 percent of those who have one leg amputated because of diabetes will have the other one amputated within two years.

Sex.

Half the men 50 to 60 years old who have diabetes shy away from that word. That's because they can't have it. Their nerves have been damaged so badly or their circulation is so poor they become impotent. Whatever the reason, it's an awful, demoralizing situation. For the men. And their wives.

But diabetes is sexually impartial. Women with it have a much higher risk of menstrual problems. And if they manage to become pregnant, they run a higher risk of miscarriage, cesarean delivery, fetal deformity and fetal death.

It's a heartbreaking disease. Literally.

The more sugar or glucose in the blood, the higher the chance for plaque build-up. Plaque build-up narrows the blood vessels and arteries. When they become too constricted they clot. The medical term for this is "atherosclerosis." The consequences are heart attacks and strokes.

The leading cause of kidney failure in America.

Uncontrolled glucose levels will eventually thicken the blood vessels in the kidneys so they can't properly filter out wastes. People who get diabetes before the age of 20 have an even chance of developing kidney disease before they reach 40. In some cases, the treatment is dialysis. In other cases, the treatment is transplantation.

Kidding yourself vs. actual control.

People who think their diabetes is controlled are often wrong. The sugar in their blood may be dangerously high and they don't know it. They dutifully diet, take insulin and exercise yet they continue to be devastated by complications.

Current scientific data suggests that control of blood glucose levels in the normal range may postpone or even prevent these complications. By monitoring their own blood glucose levels and controlling them through diet, exercise and medication and by knowing what to do in time of stress or common illness, most people can learn to live otherwise normal healthy lives with diabetes.

The next best thing to a cure.

At the Diabetes Treatment Center, we offer the leading and most comprehensive national treatment program available. Through a team approach, including a physician, nurse-educator, dietitian, exercise specialist, counselor and nursing staff, we stabilize blood glucose levels, then teach patients of all ages to maintain that level with self blood glucose monitoring, diet, exercise, medication and determination.

There are no miracles here. No quick fixes. Just patients cared for by bright, dedicated professionals who have made diabetes treatment their lives. And not just their living.

No, we can't cure diabetes, but when patients leave us, they understand their disease, they know what causes its complications and they know how to control their blood glucose level before it ends up controlling them. And that's the next best thing.

So how many minutes will you waste before giving us a call?

If you have diabetes or you're experiencing any of the complications mentioned here, or if you've been overly tired or thirsty, urinating frequently or having problems with blurred vision or infections that just won't heal, do what many others have already done. Call us now. We can help. We can treat your complications. And we can help you feel better. But even more, we can help you and your family live a better life with diabetes.

When dough becomes manageable, ease it out onto a floured surface. Knead for 8-10 minutes, adding only enough flour to keep dough from sticking. Replace dough in the cleaned, oiled bowl and cover with transparent wrap and a towel. Allow dough to rise about 1 hour, or 'til about double in volume. Punch down. Remove from bowl to a floured surface, divide into thirds and form loaves. Allow loaves to rise 30 minutes, slash each lengthwise about 1/4" and brush with oil. Bake on sheets spread lightly with cornmeal, 375° F for 40 minutes.

This dough can be frozen. The equivalent of one loaf can make 2 12" pizza crusts.

Apple Bread

1/2 cup oil
2 eggs
1/2 cup nuts
3/4 cup sugar

1 1/4 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1 1/2 cups flour
2 cups peeled chopped apples
Beat oil, eggs, sugar together. Mix dry ingredients together and stir into egg mixture. Add apples and nuts. Put in loaf pan. Bake 350° about 50 minutes.

Lemon Squares

1 stick margarine
1/4 cup conf. sugar
1 cup flour (I use 1 1/2 cups)
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
Mix and pat into 11" oblong pan. Bake at 350° 20 minutes and cool.

8 oz. cream cheese
1 cup cool whip
1 cup conf. sugar

Beat till fluffy and spread in cool crust.

Beat for 4 minutes—3 cups milk with 2 packages instant lemon pudding. Spread on cream cheese layer, top with cool whip. Refrigerate at least 3 hours. Cut in squares.

Rolled Stuffed Meatloaf

2 lbs. hamburger
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs
1 medium onion, chopped and sauteed salt and pepper
Stuffing:
1 pkg. frozen french string beans
1 cup mushrooms, sliced and sauteed

Mix first five ingredients. Place mixture on waxed paper and shape into an 8 x 14 inch rectangle. Spread beans and mushrooms over meat and roll lengthwise like a jelly roll. Place in roasting pan (or large loaf pan). Bake at 350° for 75 minutes. Remove from oven; drain off fat. Pour a can of chopped stewed tomatoes over loaf; bake 15 minutes.

Cookbook

2½ oz. jar/sliced mushrooms drained

¼ tsp. thyme leaves

Wine Sauce:

2 tbsp. margarine or butter

2 tbsp. flour

1 tsp. instant chicken bouillon granules

1 tsp. finely chopped parsley

½ tsp. garlic powder

¼ tsp. poultry seasoning

¼ tsp. pepper

1 cup milk

¼ cup dry white wine

10 oz. pkg frozen rice or homemade

Heat oven to 350° F. Lightly grease all 1½ quart covered baking dish. Bone chicken breasts. Remove skin and cut breasts in half. Place one breast, boned up side, between two pieces of plastic wrap. Using the flat side of meat mallet or rolling pin, flatten each breast until about ¼ inch thick, pull off wrap. Repeat with remaining breast.

In small skillet saute onion in margarine until tender. Add mushrooms and thyme, stir lightly. Divide mushroom stuffing into fourths, placing one fourth in center of each breast. Roll chicken breast around stuffing; secure with toothpicks. Place breasts seam side down in prepared baking dish. Bake at 350° F covered for 45 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking 15 minutes or until breasts are done and light brown.

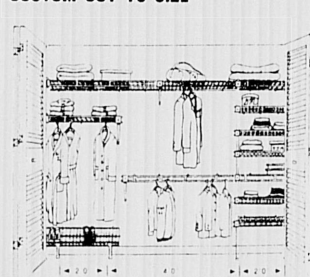

To prepare white sauce, combine margarine, flour and bouillon in small saucepan. Cook over low heat until bubbly. Add parsley, garlic, powder and poultry seasoning. Slowly add milk; heat until mixture boils and thickens, stirring constantly. Just before serving add wine.

To prepare rice. Use frozen rice or make rice by scratch. Serve breasts on bed or rice topped with wine sauce. 2 servings.

*Twas the month before Christmas
and money was tight
I was checking the Want Ads
each day and each night.
I could file, sort mail and
do some light typing too.
But I wanted to work til
Christmas was through.
I signed up at Staff Builders
and as quick as could be
They found the right job
and there was no fee.
Now I work when I want to
and have time to be free.
And I've plenty of money.
MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ME!*

Ivers & Stein Realtors

WE'LL MANAGE!!

If you own an apartment house, you will have hired a management firm to relieve you of the duties of collecting rents, arranging for maintenance and repairs, finding new tenants and paying the bills.

If you rent a condo or a single or multi-family house, however, you have to assume these time-consuming burdens yourself. If you do not live in the neighborhood, you may find these tasks quite a chore at times.

So, let us manage! Our rental manager will manage small rental properties at very modest monthly costs. When you are leaving the area temporarily and wish to rent your own home, or are the proud owner of a profitable two or three-family property you wish to keep without retaining the hassles, call our management agent, Lois Ardito.

Louise Ruma-Ivers is the immediate past President of the Greater Boston Women's Council of Realtors, and a past Director of the Marketing Institute for the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. She is a member of the Arlington Historic Districts Committee.

Dot Stein is a Vice President of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and a Director of its Multiple Listing Service. She was a long-time Arlington Town Meeting member, and a member of the Arlington School Committee.

*"Twas the month before Christmas,
Santa sat by the fire
He needed more elves,
But didn't know who to hire
He sipped his hot chocolate with a sigh of dismay
So much work to do in so very few days!
Then what to his tired old eyes should appear,
But this week's 'What's Up' section and he got an idea!
He opened it up with a jolly Ho! Ho! Ho!
He dialed 729-8100!
"The kids are so good" he said "So few have been bad!"
Saint Nick had to place a "HOLIDAY HELP WANTED" AD!
With each tiny applicant Santa's confidence grew,
As he happily conducted each elf interview!
His inventory grew as they stocked all his shelves,
His workshop now bustling with busy elves!
Santa sat back and counted the days till his ride,
So relieved that he'd called CENTURY CLASSIFIEDS!*

Boys, girls in state soccer finals

Winchester High School teams advanced to the state championship games in both boys and girls soccer Tuesday night.

The unbeaten girls' team blanked Bridgewater-Raynham 2-0 in the state semifinal, avenging an eight-overtime loss to Needham last fall in the semifinals.

Katie Binding and Meghan Guarnotta, the leading scorers for the Sachemettes throughout the playoffs, got the goals for Winchester.

Binding scored at 11:48 of the first half and Guarnotta at 33:14, assisted by Leslie Strazzullo.

Goalie Joann Shusta made 13 saves to record the shutout.

The Sachemettes will play the state championship game Saturday against the Western Massachusetts champion.

Winchester will also be in the boys state championship Saturday against either Algonquin or Walcott, depending on the outcome of a game scheduled Wednesday.

The Sachems stomped Duxbury 5-1 Tuesday evening on the strength of four goals in the second half. The game was tied 1-1 at intermission.

Robbie Kean assisted the winning goal 10 minutes into the second half with a direct kick from 35 yards out. Mike Rice headed the ball over the netminder's head for a 2-1 Winchester lead.

Rice had two goals in the second half while Chris Verhaegen and Kenny Fowler each had one.

Winchester will play the Western Massachusetts champion for the state crown Saturday.

Star deadline will be early for holiday

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, The Winchester Star will have early deadlines for news and classified and display ads.

News releases, letters to the editor and pictures will be due at the office before 4 p.m. on Friday.

The deadline for classified ads is noon on Monday, while the deadline for display ads is 5 p.m. on Monday.

The paper will reach readers' homes on Wednesday rather than Thursday.

Majority of officials say Cross St. duplex is acceptable choice

By GEORGE DERRINGER

An existing two-family house on Cross Street is the popular choice of town officials for low-to-moderate income housing.

Though no conclusion was reached Monday at a super-meeting of town boards and committees, nobody had anything bad to say about locating the last two units of state-mandated Section 705 housing at the site, part of Winchester Gardens.

Town moderator John Sullivan called the meeting to clarify issues before a special town meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the high school.

Several speakers insisted the Winchester Housing Authority conclude a written agreement or obtain a legal option to buy the property at 301-303 Cross St. before the town meeting.

Sullivan led a crowd of about 60, nearly all elected or appointed officials, through 13 possible sites for one or two units of housing, including the Cross Street site. He provided a checklist so participants could note the positions of each group regarding each site.

Three hours later, Cross Street was the only site with no negative comments. It is approved by the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD), presents no zoning or wetlands problem, is recommended by the housing authority and fits with the general philosophical position of the planning board.

A site at the northerly end of Sylvester Avenue, chosen by selectmen as the best site before consideration of an existing building, appears next in line. The site has EOCD approval and does not present zoning problems. The planning board has deferred a decision on the site.

A problem, however, is that the site is controlled by the school committee. Michael Ronayne, chairman pro tem of the committee, said it would "bow to the wishes of town meeting," however.

Every other site is opposed by at least two elected town boards.

Sullivan, aware of a continuing dispute between the housing authority and several other boards, began the meeting with praise for the housing authority's success in elderly housing.

He said the last town meeting, however, decided to appoint its own committee to study low-to-moderate income housing and make recommendations. That committee is led by chairman David Mortenson.

"There's no question the whole effort has not been without controversy, miscommunication and bruised feelings," Sullivan said.

Town engineer Jake Garcia showed slides of each of 13 sites and asked chairmen of several boards to discuss each in turn.

Cross Street was first. Garcia said it has no zoning problems. Ronayne said the school committee has taken no position about any site but "will respond at town meeting" and "won't be obstructionist."

"Does that mean the school committee won't stand in the town meeting's way?" Sullivan said.

"That is my understanding," Ronayne said.

Problems with Cross Street remain in the purchase details. The building, assessed for $162,000 and offered to the town by owner Arnold Mason for $275,000, has been appraised but the housing authority would not release the figures until after negotiations scheduled this week.

Finance committee chairman Gerry Polcari said the town could use funds from either the sale-of-land account or free cash, essentially unappropriated surplus, to buy a building. Balances in the accounts are $211,000 and $1,431,000 respectively, he said.

Polcari said he opposed using money from free cash, usually used to keep tax rates down. He said about $800,000 would be used for fiscal 1988.

Mortenson was first to say the housing authority should not recommend purchase of the Cross Street duplex with a written option.

All options will cost money

Cross Street, Sylvester get state OKs

Two more possible sites for Winchester's low-to-moderate income housing program won approval of the state Executive Office of Communities and Development Monday.

An existing duplex at 301-303 Cross St. and the portion of the Lynch School town-owned lot at the northern end of Sylvester Avenue were given approval.

In a letter to Jerry Keefe, executive director of the Winchester Housing Authority, family housing coordinator Suzanne Barclay called the Sylvester Avenue lot "a very good location which appears a relatively easy site upon which to build."

Among the 13 sites to be considered as replacements for the stalled attempt to build two units on the Woburn Loop, only six have state approval.

Previous sites to get approval from the agency requiring the town to build seven units are the northeast corner of Leonard Field on Washington Street, a lot between Hemmingway and Canal streets, a site on the Lynch School lot facing Brantwood Road near Pond Street and a site at the end of Andrews Road behind the Parkhurst School basketball court.

because the state will reimburse the housing authority only $62,000 per unit. Buying or building anywhere in town will cost more.

Two sites near the Vinson-Owen School face problems. Neither has EOCD approval and the planning board opposes both, one off Ridge (Please see CROSS, page 22)

Student smoking may be prohibited

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

The school committee will decide "sometime this semester" whether to allow smoking in the courtyard at Winchester High School or ban it entirely.

School board members tackled the smoking problem Tuesday without taking a formal vote.

Member Edward O'Connell, a long-time foe of smoking in schools, urged members to act soon.

O'Connell said, "I think we're ducking the issue. There is a tide swell in the country. I think it's a serious issue."

O'Connell told members not to procrastinate, saying he wouldn't want to see the state enforce a law.

"I don't want to see it done to us,

I'd rather see it done by us," he said.

During the state legislature's 1986 session, the house of representatives, by an 87-60 vote, defeated a bill that would have prohibited public school students from smoking anywhere on school grounds. Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh (R-Winchester) voted in favor of the prohibition. The bill is likely to be re-introduced in 1987.

O'Connell said he is concerned that schools send a mixed message.

"We tell people in our health courses that smoking is bad for you, but allow it on campus — that's intellectually dishonest," he said.

O'Connell said by designating the courtyard area for smoking, the (Please see SMOKING, page 5)

School board wants to be asked before ceding lands

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

School committee members will wait until after the special town meeting Nov. 24 to decide whether to declare a school-owned site on Sylvester Avenue as "excess" for affordable housing.

Sylvester Avenue is one of seven sites town meeting will consider for low-to-moderate income housing to replace the Woburn Loop duplex site rejected by state officials.

A special town meeting Nov. 24 will decide if the town will buy an existing duplex on Cross Street. If not, the meeting will have a choice of seven alternate sites.

The board listened to Lynch School neighbors who oppose the site.

Robert Dewald of Horn Pond Brook Road gave board members a petition signed by 300 neighbors urging members to keep the Sylvester Avenue site and not to "excess" the parcel of land to selectmen.

"This upsets me very much. We deserve some park land, land for our children," said Dewald.

Dewald said if the Sylvester Avenue site is passed by town meeting, the Lynch neighborhood will have five of the seven "affordable housing" sites in town.

"We pay taxes. We vote. We have feelings. I urge school committee not to excess land until the board of selectmen comes to you."

Dewald said by releasing this land, the town is laying the groundwork for future affordable housing sites in the neighborhood. Four other sites in the neighborhood are under consideration for affordable housing.

Neighbor Marie Landry told the committee there are no duplex sites on Sylvester Avenue.

"We really feel as neighbors, we're getting everything. We don't want it all in our neighborhood," she said.

Board member Edward O'Connell suggested building one house on the site to match the existing neighborhood.

Neighbors questioned whether the Sylvester site was approved by the state Economic Office of Communities and Development (EOCD), the group requiring Winchester to provide seven units of low-to-moderate income housing.

Town students above average in state's testing

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

Winchester schools scored above average on the whole on the Massachusetts Education Assessment Program tests.

Schools were graded by class or grade. Individuals were not graded.

Winchester's third, seventh and ninth graders took the test, which includes reading, mathematics and science, last spring.

Superintendent Charles Mitsakos said he is "pleased with the results."

Scores throughout the state ranged from 1,000 to 1,600 points. Sixty-eight percent of schools tested achieved a scaled score between 1,200 and 1,400. Only 16 percent had scores above 1,400.

Winchester mathematics scores were above 1,400, as were science scores in grades 3 and 11 and reading scores in grade 3.

Winchester's grade 7 scored 1,350 in science. Reading in grade 7 was 1,350 and in grade 11 1,390.

David Ackerman, assistant superintendent of curriculum, said, "A less than 50 point difference is not educationally significant."

Mitsakos said schools with fewer than 40 students per grade must be treated with caution because they (Please see SCORES, page 5)

Schools to be 'sensitive' to holiday observances

By MAUREEN QUINLAN

Winchester teachers will use "discretion and sensitivity" and suggestions from the religion subcommittee of the multi-cultural task force when planning holiday-related activities in December.

The task force voted unanimously Monday night to accept suggestions from the religion subcommittee and distribute them to school staffs.

The task force was formed by the school committee last June. The five-person committee met seven times to review music department guidelines for holiday programs and develop suggestions for holiday-related classroom activities.

A Nov. 4 public hearing attracted more than 40 citizens. Convenor Elizabeth Herberich said the subcommittee also received 15 letters.

Monday's meeting was attended by five parents.

Herberich said the issue concerning public school observance of religious holidays is an "increasingly sensitive one."

Members discussed whether to send the draft to school committee to make it policy or channel it as a draft through the schools.

Member Roseann Gallery said, "I would prefer to see it as guidelines, not a policy, until April."

Member David Ackerman, assistant superintendent of curriculum, said, "I'm impressed with the subcommittee's work," but he suggested an alternative, to share the suggestions as a draft with the schools.

"My experience would suggest any formal action would produce an unpredictable outcome," he said.

Member William Jervey said, "What happens in each school appears to be very different. It is incumbent on us not to make a judgment until we go in to see what's going on." Jervey said it would take school committee at least two formal meetings to make the draft a policy.

A parent said, "I think it's very rushed. I think a greater effort has to be made to make the public aware," she said before creating binding policies.

A Lincoln School parent said, "I think research is the key. You're going to create a lot of resistance and bad feelings in the community" with the policy.

Member Susan Villani, Lincoln School principal, voiced concern about the use of some of the words in the draft.

"Should" is all over the page. It's a powerful word. I can anticipate we'll get people upset," she said.

Members edited the word "should" out of most of the draft, replacing it with words such as "could" and "may" before voting.

Herberich said the committee had not discussed visiting classrooms and teachers.

"We haven't envisioned walking into schools with clipboards and carefully monitoring activities," she said.

Villani said she would be against the committee coming into the schools. Ackerman agreed. (Please see RELIGION, page 4)

Center's look is still evolving

By JANINE DIGIOVANNI

A young woman who has lived in Winchester all of her life remembers a different Main Street.

"It's another place now," she says. "There are so many restaurants and clothes stores. When my sister visits from Maryland, we don't go into Boston to shop. We stay right here in Winchester."

Cathy Alexander, executive director of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, echoes her statement.

"From my vantage point, it has truly been very satisfying to see such renewal of interest in Winchester," she says.

"It's an accomplishment that we have been able to turn around Winchester center, which was in serious difficulty. Many people are working hard in hand with the public sector."

Alexander credits two factors for the resurgence of business.

One is the renovation which began three years ago, lending a Victorian charm to Main Street with brick sidewalks, old fashioned street lights, benches and two small pedestrian malls at the corner of Thompson Street.

Existing businesses are also making changes.

Vision Care will move by Dec. 1 across Mt. Vernon Street to the space formerly occupied by Chitel's. Owner Bob Mario will sublease half of the space to another business.

Another factor is the recent opening of three restaurants in Winchester.

"The center has been revitalized in terms of new business interests," Alexander adds. "The key has been the fact we have three restaurants that have become our anchor and not only bring in locals, but people in and around Winchester."

Besides the restaurants, another specialty in Winchester appears to be women's clothing stores, running the gamut from casual to formal.

Another women's shop, Evana, will open Dec. 1. It already has branches in Scituate and Falmouth.

Alexander credits the new business in town to wise marketing research.

"I'm extremely impressed with the caliber of people who have opened businesses recently in Winchester," she says. "People no longer want to shop in malls. There is a return to the convenience of doing all of the shopping locally."

"Shopkeepers are enthusiastic and willing to accommodate customers. A good number of women have recently opened businesses, and they have key knowledge."

Tom Patriola, who opened T. Michael's Men's Store in August says, "People who are coming in to shop in Winchester are ecstatic about an alternative to the mall."

The attitudes of small shops catering to individual needs are a long way from the fast-paced world of shopping malls or downtown Boston.

Pat Bonnell, a saleswoman at Calista, talks as she wraps a purchase in delicate pink tissue. The customer is a Canadian woman who has returned to Calista five times when she has been in the area to visit relatives.

"We have people from Montreal, from New York," Bonnell says. "Husbands come in to purchase entire outfits for their wives. Under one roof you can get an entire outfit, except for shoes."

The mailing list next to Calista's front door lists visitors from throughout Massachusetts and New England.

"Winchester is a Victorian town, a town with a lot of flavor. It's close to Boston, and it's attractive to working couples and families who want the convenience of staying in town."

"They see shopping Main Street as a return to the way it used to be, 50 years ago," Alexander says.

She is also quick to add that people not only want convenience when they shop, but a high standard of quality.

"People want to shop locally," Alexander says. "But they want to make sure they're getting exceptional service and products because the prices might be slightly higher."

"The Patisserie has lines going out the door because the product is excellent. Or Sam D'Agostino gets customers by name and has a good understanding of what the customers need and want," she says.

In the December issue of Boston Magazine, an entire page has been put together advertising Winchester shopping.

"I am very optimistic for the future of the town," Alexander says with a smile. "Because we now provide a wide experience of shopping and dining experiences."

POLICE LOG

Tuesday, Nov. 18

At 1:08 a.m., police noticed a red and white Chevrolet Monte Carlo shut down on Holton Street with lights on.

A motor vehicle department check traced the vehicle's New Hampshire registration to a 1975 Buick Regal owned by a Derry resident whose vehicle was reported stolen Nov. 16.

The car was intact but officers found a black 10-gallon gasoline container and three feet of rubber tubing in the car.

The vehicle was towed to Swanton Street and officers told the owner his car had been recovered.

Monday, Nov. 17

Police are looking for a suspect who burglarized a trailer belonging to The Green Co. on its Wainwright Rd. construction site.

Police believe the crime to have occurred between 5 p.m. Nov. 16 and 9 a.m. Nov. 17.

The front door of the trailer was kicked in and a blue vinyl chair valued at $600 was removed, along with a brass lamp valued at $10.

At 10:42 p.m., police cited a Boston resident on Church Street for driving without tail lights on his blue Dodge van.

Upon further inspection, police learned the vehicle had expired California registration and the driver had neither license nor registration.

A further check showed that the driver was wanted on a Foxboro barracks state police traffic warrant.

The driver was placed under arrest for defective equipment and operating an unregistered motor vehicle on a public way.

Sunday, Nov. 16

At 8:30 a.m., police reported a car accident on Waterfield Road. A 1983 Chevrolet wagon, driven by a Raving Road resident, slipped out of park and rolled down Waterfield Road. Four orange barrels and shrubs were damaged.

At 5:01 p.m., a Squire Road resident reported someone spray painted and scratched his 1977 Toyota Celica GT.

At 10:11 p.m., a Hancock Street resident told police someone smashed the driver vent window of his 1981 Audi. Minor damage was done to the dashboard.

Saturday, Nov. 15

At 7:17 a.m., a George Road resident reported damage to her 1985 Oldsmobile sedan. Damage was done to the sun roof of the car, and a bicycle frame was thrown on the hood.

Friday, Nov. 14

At 5:38 p.m., police reported two unregistered vehicles parked on Thompson Street. One car was owned by a Surrey Road resident, the other by a Malden resident. Both vehicles were towed due to expired registration.

Lawson Road home burglarized

Police are looking for someone who broke into a Lawson Road home and severed phone wires.

At 12:20 a.m. Nov. 16, Lawson Road residents reported a burglary in their home between 4 and 11:40 p.m.

Entry was gained by prying open a locked window with what appears to have been a screwdriver. The dining room and two bedrooms were ransacked.

Four silver candlestick holders, 12 silver teaspoons, two silver sugar spoons and a woman's purse were taken.

Billerica man charged with OUI

At 3:30 a.m. Nov. 16, Winchester police officers Lewis Best and Kurt Ellis arrested David Duggan, 48, of Billerica on charges of operating under the influence of alcohol and failure to keep right on Main Street.

Police observed a car swerving and crossing over the solid line. Police pulled over Duggan's car on Main Street.

Police arrested Duggan and took him to the station.

He was later bailed and was arraigned Nov. 17 at Fourth District Court in Woburn. He is scheduled to appear again Dec. 8.

Newcomers plan Christmas party

The Winchester Newcomers Club will sponsor a Christmas party at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6.

The event, which will be catered by David Sammarco, is a good way to meet new friends and neighbors.

For more information, call 721-6495 by Dec. 1.

The most flexible Equity Line
you can open is now free to close.

Unlike other home equity loans, the Bank of Boston Home Equity Credit Line gives you three ways to pay, including one where you can pay interest-only for up to five years. And, you get a line of credit and payback term for as long as you own your home.

We Pay Your Closing Costs

If you're a Bank of Boston deposit customer on the day you close the loan, we'll pay all closing costs*—a savings of $290-$400. All you need is a checking, savings, NOW or First Rate account, a certificate of deposit or a Deposit IRA at Bank of Boston.

Save Even More on Interest

If you maintain combined deposit balances of $5,000 or more at Bank of Boston beginning on the day you close, we'll pay your closing costs* and reduce the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) on your Home Equity Credit Line—from our Base Rate plus 2% (currently 9.5% APR), down to our Base Rate plus 1.5% (currently 9.0% APR) and if you maintain $25,000 or more we'll reduce your rate even further to our Base Rate plus 1% (currently 8.5% APR). APR may vary.

All owner-occupied, one-to-four family homes and condominiums in Massachusetts are eligible for a credit line anywhere from $10,000 to $100,000 or more. Your particular amount may be up to 75% of the current appraised value of your home, minus the existing first mortgage balance.

Get full details today, but hurry, this offer ends March 31, 1987. Stop at any of our offices or call toll-free 1-800-851-LOAN.

McCall contest to fight drugs

McCall Junior High School kicked off a competition Tuesday to fight drug and alcohol abuse.

The program, "Stand Tall Against Drugs," is sponsored by the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs and the Boston Celtics.

The competition continues to March 15. It is designed to reward secondary schools that have implemented Governor's Alliance goals and to encourage participation by students, faculty and administrators.

The three schools with the highest score after a four-month competition will win the "Celtics Challenge Stand Tall Against Drugs."

Prizes available are: Boston

Celtics players and Gov. Michael Dukakis will visit their school; the April 3, 1987, Celtics game will be dedicated to them; a small delegation of students and advisors from the winning schools will attend the April 3 game and will be interviewed on radio or television and will receive a presentation at half time; a busload of students will be able to attend a Celtics practice; "Celtics Pride Winner" painter's caps will be given to every student in the school; a special $5,000 grant from the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs Fund will be made available to the school. The grant is contingent upon submission of a proposal for educational materials, teacher training, and peer leadership programs.

McCall principal Vandy French said, "I'm enthusiastic about the program."

Scoring consists of students signing a Celtic Pride Pledge never to use drugs, parents signing a fact sheet and discussing drugs with their children, and letter-writing.

McCall, with the help of its student advisory committee, will implement the program. The committee consists of 49 elected students. Ed McGrath is the faculty advisor to the committee.

French said McCall plans to track the school's progress with a chart similar to that used by the United Way.

special study committee created by spring town meeting, said he received word from Senator Richard Kraus, office that the Sylvester site was approved but he was awaiting written confirmation.

Pro tem chairman Michael Ronayne said, "We've come down now to reality."

He said the question is no longer an issue of right and wrong or of political or economical reasons. He said if Winchester does not make a decision by the end of town meeting, the state will penalize the town by taking away discretionary funds.

Member William Jervey said most of those funds are for the schools.

"We should do nothing precipitously," said Jervey.

Ronayne said, "It will be resolved at town meeting. We don't want to play that role."

There is no reason for us to announce at the moment (a decision) to excess," said Ronayne.

Neighbors asked the school committee not to give up the neighborhood's bargaining power.

In other action, superintendent Charles Mitsakos said meetings will be held to discuss rotating principals at the elementary level.

The board approved a request from the Vinson-Owen School improvement council to purchase three printers for $807 and three Orange Micro Grapplers for $237. Remaining money will be spent for audio-visual supplies. The council received $2,450 this year.

Mitsakos commended and congratulated:

• Wilbur Johnson for directing a Winchester High School play, "Skin of Our Teeth."

• William Marks and William Chase for being selected to participate in a chemistry seminar.

• Sarah Fitzpatrick, a Winchester High School student and gymnast who will represent the United States at the First Quetzal Copa in Guatemala. The gymnastic event is named after the national bird.

Shawcross gets hockey letter

Former Winchester High School athlete Lucy Shawcross has been awarded her certificate of participation as a member of the University of Rochester women's field hockey team, which won the consolation title (fifth place) at the 1986 New York State Women's Collegiate Athletic Association (NYSWCAA) Division III state tournament.

Shawcross, a freshman, played an important role for head coach Jane Possee's Yellowjackets as a reserve midfielder. Rochester outscored its opposition 25-13 with a staunch defense that posted six shutouts on the way to compiling a final 8-6-1 record. She contributed two goals to the Yellowjacket offensive attack.

At Winchester, Shawcross lettered in field hockey as well as winter and spring track. During her senior year, she captained all three squads and collected MVP honors.

Wedge Pond ducks to be rounded up

Winchester's ducks will soon have a warm home in Woburn.

The department of public works set up a cage filled with feed last week to catch white peking ducks and geese at Wedge Pond.

According to Dick Tofuri of the department, there are 12 or 13 white geese and 20 to 30 white peking ducks that the department needs to catch.

Tofuri hopes they will all be caught within the next few weeks before the pond freezes. The wild ducks who live at Wedge Pond during the warm weather are all expected to fly south for the winter.

Tofuri said for the last couple of years a town employee who lives in Woburn has taken care of the ducks through the winter. The town, Tofuri said, supplies the feed.

Elks supports fight against drugs

The Winchester Elks recently presented a check to police chief John P. McHugh and superintendent Charles Mitsakos to assist in support of the drug and alcohol awareness program conducted by safety officer Kevin Mawn in grades 3-6.

The donation provides materials for all elementary school students.

The program, featuring a high-tech robot, was well-received by students at the public elementary schools, St. Mary's School and Bartlett Elementary School.

The Elks will also hold a drug awareness night sometime in February.

The fight against drugs has been the No. 1 program of the National Association of Elks for the last two years.

300 Lynch area residents oppose nearby housing sites

More than 300 residents in the area of the Lynch School oppose plans for two more units of low-to-moderate income housing in their neighborhood.

Robert Dewald of 149 Horn Pond Brook Road organized a petition drive and visited homes in the area. The signers "state opposition to the large number of housing sites proposed for our neighborhood on the fall town meeting warrant by citizens' petitions," in the words of their statement.

The petitions, presented last week to the school committee, urge the committee not to release school land "precisely but instead to support the Winchester Housing Authority recommendation that a duplex be purchased as a substitute for the Woburn Loop site."

A spring town meeting voted to build seven units of Section 705 housing, as required by the town under an agreement with state officials, but voted to put two of them on the former railroad right-of-way near Cross Street.

The state secretary of transportation has refused permission to construct buildings on the Woburn Loop property, now owned by the town.

Petitioners say their neighborhood has already been designated as the site for three units of public housing, referring to three units proposed on Palmer Street, near the Mary Murphy elderly housing.

During a meeting of several town boards Monday night, the portion of the Lynch School property at the northerly end of Sylvester Avenue was identified as one possibility for a duplex to replace the Woburn Loop.

Town moderator John Sullivan called the multi-board meeting to identify possible sites that do not have "a potential fatal flaw."

The Sylvester Avenue site was chosen by the board of selectmen as the least objectionable alternate site at a meeting before the possibility of purchasing a duplex on Cross Street was considered.

Winchester Class of '31 plans reunion

The Winchester High School class of 1931 will have its 55th reunion luncheon at noon Friday, Dec. 5, at the Marriott Hotel in Burlington.

All members of the class are invited. No addresses for some class members were available. They include John Haley, Janet Nichols Dalrymple, Caroline Nichols Hoffman, Robert Cox, Clara Vozella, Winifred Williams Heath, Edith Tuttle, Gertrude Lynch Hart, Teresa Lynch Nestor, Franklin Flowers, Walter Berg, Jean King Lovering, Esther Puffer, the Rev. Henry J. Cassidy and John Mooney.

Anyone with information or the current address of any missing class members should contact Ruby Brown White at 935-1189 or Bruce Colpas at 444-7117.

School musicians attend workshop

Members of the Winchester public schools music department recently participated in staff development workshops in Orff Schulwerk, a method of teaching music developed by the German composer and educator Carl Orff.

Before the National Conference of the American Orff Schulwerk association, held in Boston Nov. 5-8, faculty members Paul Davis, Herman Greene, Libby Hunter, Pat McSorley, Nancy Peterson and Lynne Rahmeier, worked with Mrs. Edna Geary, Orff specialist, who presented "a developmental approach to music."

Geary, with Barbara Peacock and music director Rahmeier, teaches the Orff teacher certification program at the University of Lowell in the summer.

Orff Schulwerk involves active participation of children in singing, dancing, and playing classroom rhythm and pitched instruments.

Student scores are above state average present a smaller sample. He said Lincoln School is the only school with more than 40 students in one grade.

Of the five elementary schools, Muraco School scored the highest in all areas with Ambrose and Lincoln next and Lynch and Vinson-Owen scoring the lowest grades.

Winchester and communities across the state were classified by the Department of Education.

Winchester fell under the category "economically developed suburb," a suburb with high levels of economic activity, social complexity and relatively high income levels. Also included in the category are Woburn, Arlington, Reading, Newton, Wellesley and Belmont.

The tests created three separate averages based on kind of community, state average, and a comparison score band.

Mitsakos said the comparison score band is a soft statistic. The test asked grade 7 and 11 students to determine the educational level of their parents. Principals of third graders were requested to do the same. These results were compared to communities with similar parental occupational or educational levels.

"These are softer statistics," said Mitsakos, saying the inherent imprecision led state testers to develop a "range band" such as 1,350 to 1,420.

Ackerman said administrators and program supervisors are studying test results and reviewing specific strengths and weaknesses of subtests.

Ackerman said Winchester students generally did well in math but their skills in problem solving, spatial visualization and decimals were not as consistent.

Students did well applying reading skills but had greater difficulty processing information at some higher levels of thinking, especially at the secondary level.

Ackerman said Winchester's emphasis on "process science" in elementary grades was validated by very high scores in science inquiry.

Third graders scored between 1,430 and 1,500 on the inquiry subtest of the science section.

Special needs students scored well above average across the board in grades 3 and 11. With a state average of 1,199, third graders scored 1,346 in reading, 1,415 in math, with a state average of 1,208 and 1,333 in science compared to a state average of 1,218.

Grade 11 students scored 1,228, while the state average was 1,131. In math, students scored 1,265 compared to 1,136 and in science 1,308 compared to 1,164.

Schools may prohibit all student smoking on campus

schools are condoning the practice.

Representatives from the Winchester High School student union showed the committee samples of smoking surveys they plan to distribute to students, teachers and parents.

Member William Jervy asked when surveys will be distributed.

A student union member said all students will fill out the survey during an extended homeroom period within the next week. Twenty-five parents selected randomly from each class will be surveyed by phone and teachers will be given surveys.

Student representatives plan to bring results to the committee's Nov. 25 meeting.

The smoking issue arose in June 1985 when board members suggested prohibiting smoking on all school grounds. At that time smoking was allowed in the courtyard.

In September 1985 a survey of 520 students found that 89 percent said they did not smoke. But 73 percent said they opposed a school-wide smoking ban.

At Tuesday's meeting, no vote was scheduled.

Member Alice McCarter said, "I do have a sensitivity and concern."

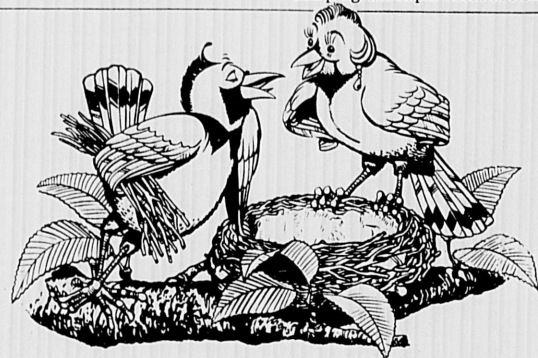

McCarter is a former smoker. McCarter said, "I'm not enthusiastic about smoking. But I want to hear what everyone has to say."

Member Steve Powers said, "Cigarette smoke is a substance abuse, in my mind I'd isolate students from teachers."

O'Connell closed discussion, reminding the audience and board members of the seriousness of the situation.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

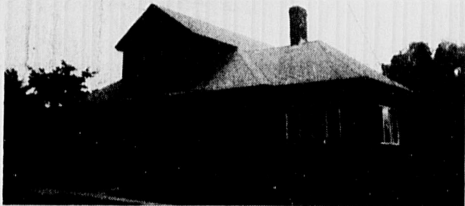

IS IT TIME TO MOVE?

Sometimes the need for a move may be obvious. For instance, your work might require you to transfer to a new city. Other times, the changes in your life and your housing needs may be less obvious. You might have twins, you may be marrying off the last child in your family, or you might have a big increase in income.

If you notice that your house is no longer serving your needs, it may be time to call in a professional Realtor for expert advice. He may suggest that you remodel your present home or find one that's more suitable to your current life-style.

If you do decide to move, what should you consider before listing your home and beginning the search for a new one? You'll want some idea of how much you can expect to get for your present home and how much you can afford to spend on a new one. You'll also need information about financing and the multitude of loan programs that are now available. Finally, you should understand the tax implications of such a move.

For all your real estate needs, contact the professionals at Bixby & Porter Company, Realtors. Call us at 729-7000, or visit our offices at 33 Thompson St., Winchester.

Bank of Boston creates new team to serve town business, residences

Lawrence J. Sands

Scott C. True

Lynn M. Thomas

Bank of Boston-Northern Region recently assembled a team of officers to serve businesses and residents of Winchester.

The Winchester team of professional includes: Tucker H. Cole, branch sales manager; Micheal J. Gilberti Jr., community business development officer; Scott C. True, commercial loan officer; Lawrence J. Sands, middle market lending specialist; Lynn M. Thomas, private banking specialist; and Jean E. Bono, municipal specialist.

Cole joined the Bank in March as sales manager of its Winchester branch. He was previously the assistant treasurer at Essexbank in Danvers. Cole is a member of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce and the Amity Masonic Lodge in Danvers. He lives in Danvers.

Assistant vice president Gilberti joined the community banking group in January to help develop Bank of Boston's service to businesses having up to $2 million in annual sales. He came to Bank of Boston in 1978; previously he managed the bank's branch in Winchester. A well known member of the community, Gilberti is a member of the Winchester Rotary Club, the Robert Morris Association and the Winchester and the North Suburban Chambers of Commerce. He lives in Burlington with his wife, Dianne, and their daughters, Renee and Sheila.

Assistant vice president True is a member of the bank's commercial lending group servicing Winchester and Woburn area businesses having $2 million to $5 million in annual sales. He joined the bank in October 1985. Previously he was an assistant vice president at the head office of Essexbank in Peabody. True lives in Waltham with his wife, Rosalie, and their daughter, Renee.

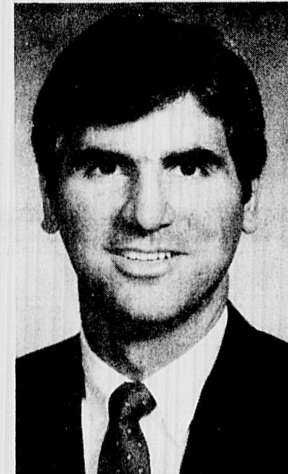

In February 1986 Sands joined the Middle Market Group which serves companies with sales between $5 million and $50 million. He previously worked at the bank's head office in Boston as a small business lending officer. Sands is a member of the Smaller Business Association of New England, the Robert Morris Association and an instructor for the American Institute of Banking. He lives in Marblehead with his wife, Sally.

Thomas represents the bank's private banking group which provides personalized service to members. Prior to joining the bank in May 1985, she was tax attorney at Arthur Anderson in Boston. Thomas is a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association and the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. She lives in Waltham.

Bono is Bank of Boston's municipal finance specialist for Middlesex County. Before joining the bank in 1980, she was the assistant manager of the municipal department for Bank of New England. She is member of the Burlington Hockey Association. She lives in Burlington with her children, Georgette, Ralph and Gene.

Unitarian fair is for families

The Winchester Unitarian Church's holiday fair this weekend has been planned with families in mind.

The event is scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, at the church.

In addition to tables offering crafts, baked goods, country things and white elephants, a cafeteria-style lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A children's fair from 10 a.m. to noon will be followed by children's entertainment while older people watch a fashion show at 1 p.m.

Proceeds will benefit the church.

ABC House starts annual fund drive

For nearly 16 years, volunteers in Winchester supported and sustained the program of A Better Chance (ABC) for educating young minority students. The local committee has begun its annual campaign to raise its operating budget.

Started in 1963 at Dartmouth, the nationwide, non-profit organization has expanded to include 137 independent and 23 public schools with Winchester's program one of the most successful. The challenge of creating better educational environments for promising minority high school students continues.

While minority families may have improved their personal financial situations, advancement has not always translated into better schools. Eight young men from New York, Illinois and Minnesota are currently living in the home dormitory setting of 2 Dix St. with the resident directors and a resident tutor. The students attend Winchester High School.

For its support, the program relies solely upon the local community. Funds are raised from special events, personal solicitations, and gifts from organizations, churches, foundations and individuals. Many hours of volunteer time, as well as goods and services, are donated each year.

Rewards of the ABC program are many: Winchester has given 44 graduates (6,000 nationwide alumni) a better chance to achieve their academic and career goals, and the high school and community have been enriched by the involvement of bright, energetic young men.

Contributions to "Winchester ABC" may be directed to Allan Rodgers, chairman of the finance committee, 5 Myopia Hill Road.

Archives have new hours

The Town's Archival Center at 15 High St. has new hours, effective immediately. The Center hours will be open 9 a.m. to noon Tuesday and Wednesday and from 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesday.

The Henry E. Simonds Archival Center functions as both an archives research/repository center and as a local history museum. It houses books, papers, photographs, paintings, maps and artifacts dealing with Winchester's history.

The staff helps citizens and interested historians from all over the U.S. research local architectural, genealogical and social history. Researchers are professionals, amateurs and students.

In recent years the Archives has participated in a local history in the classroom program offered to the second and third graders. This program is designed to make the resources at the center available to enhance the existing elementary school social studies curriculum. More information can be obtained by calling the center during its new hours.

Antiques appraisals will benefit library

Anyone who's ever wondered if he really has treasures in the attic can find out and benefit the Winchester Public Library at the same time.

The Friends of the Library will sponsor an antique appraisal day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, at the library.

Two appraisers from the Robert Skinner Gallery will offer verbal appraisals of furniture, artwork, clocks, pottery, silver, brass, pewter, wood-ware, toys and dolls — but neither coins nor stamps.

Stephen Fletcher, a vice president of the firm, has been with Skinner's for more than 20 years.

Karen Keane, the other appraiser for the Nov. 22 event, is also a vice president and is the firm's managing director.

Appraisals will cost $4 for one item or $10 for three. Refreshments will be served.

Churches set Advent series

St. Eulalia's and St. Mary's Churches in Winchester are jointly sponsoring an adult education series during Advent season.

Rev. Bill Mayer will conduct the series entitled "Why Jesus?" starting Tuesday, Dec. 2. Topics to be discussed include "The Mystery of Jesus Christ Himself," "How Human Is Jesus," and "The Gospel Viewpoint."

The series will run for three weeks in both parishes at St. Mary's Religious Education Center at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and at 9 a.m. Wednesdays. St. Eulalia's groups will meet in Manion Hall at 8:15 p.m. Wednesdays and at 9:45 a.m. Tuesdays.

Participants have the option of moving to the most convenient time and location according to their needs. To obtain further information or to register, call 729-1965 or 729-8220. These events are open to the public, free of charge.

Class of 1976 reunion Nov. 29

The deadline to get tickets for the Winchester High School class of 1976 reunion Nov. 29 will be Monday, Nov. 24.

Class members who wish to get tickets for the event at the Burlington Marriott should call Moira McGoldrick at 938-0088 this weekend.

New volunteers serve hospital

Winchester Hospital volunteer Tricia Peach, left, assists nurse Judy Orkney as part of her duties in the new program, "Volunteer-on-the-Scene," by the Friends of the Winchester Hospital.

Friends of Winchester Hospital voted this spring to take on a new service, "Volunteer-On-The-Scene" to assign a volunteer directly to a nursing unit to assist the staff.

Duties of morning volunteers include answering patient call lights, freshening water pitchers, making beds, transporting patients, running errands to the pharmacy and laboratory, and assisting patients with the noon meal.

The service was started as an eight-week pilot program on one medical/surgical unit. Volunteers were Bettie Donaghey, Dot Hoyt, Barbara Warchol, Joan Benson and Hayley Wiseman. At the end of the eight weeks, Friends were asked to take this on as another service and, when possible, extend it to other hospital units.

Current volunteers are Tricia Peach, and Dorothy Potter and Joan Benson.

This service was the subject of a recent video tape, featuring: Barbara Piki, R.N., vice president of nursing services; Marie Johnson, director of volunteer services; Judith Orkney, R.N.; and Peach. The tape was produced at Winchester Hospital and submitted to the New England Hospital Assembly as an example of a new service developed jointly by the nursing and volunteer departments.

Anyone interested in knowing more about the program or in volunteering should contact 729-9000, ext. 3094.

Visiting nurse leaders sought

The Visiting Nurse Association (VNA) of Middlesex-East, a private, non-profit organization, needs people to serve on its board of directors.

In particular, the board needs members with experience in communications and public relations, accounting and auditing, marketing, fundraising and legal work.

The VNA offers a full range of health and social services to people in the comfort of their own homes. The board is the agency's governing body, and its members make policy decisions and assist in special areas of interest. Each member attends monthly meetings and serves on one other committee.

For further information, call Jacquelyn Deegan Galuzzi, executive director, at 438-3770.

COMMENT

Common sense needed

The school department's "task force on racial, cultural and ethnic awareness" has been challenged to eliminate Christmas from public schools.

By definition and any standard of common sense, that challenge cannot and should not be met.

The task force's very job is to recognize and celebrate diversity, not pretend it doesn't exist.

The task force must ensure that our school system makes children and teachers aware of racial, cultural and ethnic differences, including religion. Differences exist in our pluralistic society.

To expect the task force to increase awareness of some differences while ignoring others is quite unrealistic.

Still, at least one speaker told the task force that trimming a Christmas tree and singing Hanukkah songs are objectionable activities for public schools.

That's wrong. America has always been a patchwork quilt of cultures and traditions far more than a "melting pot." No human being has a choice about some things. We are born members of a race and born into a cultural and religious (or non-religious) tradition.

To pretend that one race is superior makes as much sense as pretending that one cultural tradition, such as decorating pine trees at the winter solstice, is superior.

The job of the task force is to educate Winchester children, teachers and, if we're lucky, citizens in ways to appreciate differences — not to suppress them.

If anything is American, it's the diversity of its people. Variety is to be studied and celebrated.

Teachers do not need to be afraid to mention Christmas or Hanukkah or atheism, all very much parts of America.

Both they and their students must know that observance of any tradition, religious or otherwise, is a personal choice and does not reflect the value of the chooser.

Communicating that message is the job of the task force. We join our guest columnist in wishing the task force well.

Real housing at last?

Is it possible that Winchester's housing controversy, which has set neighborhood against neighborhood for several years, is coming to an end?

The signs are there, although it's not going to be cheap.

An agreement between the state Executive Office of Communities and Development and three town boards, the selectmen, planning board and housing authority, will cost plenty.

Regardless of whether town meeting votes to buy a house — for which the housing authority had better had an option in hand Monday night — or to build a new duplex, the state's generous allotment of $82,000 per unit isn't going to cover the cost.

Have you tried to build a house in Winchester for $82,000 lately? It costs even more when the government does it.

Moderator John Sullivan did his usual fine job of leading a meeting of seemingly dozens of town boards to a consensus Monday night.

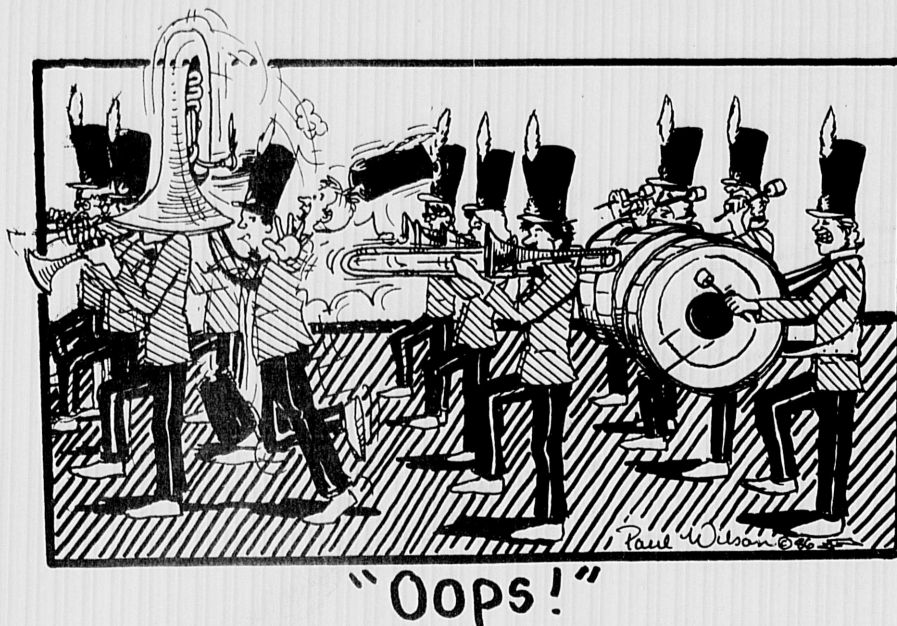

The consensus was easily: buy an existing duplex, provided we know the cost and have an option to buy it.

For better or worse, Monday's town meeting will probably find some way to end the great seven-unit housing problem Monday. We think an existing house is the best idea.

Then it will be all over, at least until the state decides Winchester needs more low-to-moderate income housing.

The housing authority should start thinking about that certainty. Now.

GUEST COLUMN

Interfaith Council believes Christmas is a religious, not school, observance

By the REV. WILLIAM HUEGEL, President

Winchester Interfaith Council

Recently a subcommittee of the Task Force on Racial, Ethnic and Cultural Awareness met to discuss the issue of religious observances in the public school. On behalf of the Winchester Interfaith Council, I want to applaud the efforts of that committee.

The clergy and religious leaders, who meet regularly to discuss such issues, have been deeply concerned about it. We expressed special concern about the singing of Christmas carols near the December holidays.

Many of us are Christian and have a deep love for the songs of adoration centered around the birth of Christ. But we have two concerns.

First of all, we are pained at the thought of children who have not been brought up in the Christian tradition feeling forced, either by expectation or by sheer embarrassment, to sing religious songs that have content contrary to their beliefs.

Our community is pluralistic. Our school celebrations must express that pluralism and avoid anything that fails to be sensitive to the feelings of others.

For the Christmas among us there is a second concern, that the coming of Jesus into the world is seen as incarnation. The notion of God having "come in the flesh," is for many of us a most holy concept. It needs to be celebrated in a holy atmosphere of prayer and worship—of liturgy, scripture and song.

When the story of Christmas is taken out of the context of our religious structures, we are concerned about its losing its essential message. When bringing gifts to the Christ child is confused with commercialism, and when the stable becomes overcrowded by Rudolph and his merry reindeer, something dreadful has happened to the Christmas story.

Our churches, not our schools, accept the awesome responsibility of "keeping the story straight."

Our Interfaith Council applauds the efforts of Lynn Rahmeir, the director of music for the Winchester school system, for her sensitivity to these issues. She has established a policy which states that music sing "should draw from diverse cultures, rather than strictly Christian, and be sensitive to the population of individual schools."

We are aware this policy has not been properly understood and carried out in every situation, but we are confident that every effort will be put forth to do so this year and in the future.

I am personally anxious that the subcommittee of the Racial, Ethnic and Cultural Task Force not see this issue merely as a Jewish, Islamic, Hindu (or whatever) concern, but also as a Christian concern—a view that seeks to be sensitive to others and which longs for the Christians among us to keep a holy story, holy.

BEACON HILL

The House and Senate. The House and Senate continue to meet informally and formal sessions are expected to resume the week of November 17.

As the 1986 session nears its end, legislators, groups and individuals all over the state are already eyeing the beginning of the 1987 session in January. The December 3 deadline for filing bills for consideration in 1987 is fast approaching.

Any group or individual in Massachusetts can file a bill. Bills must be in proper form and submitted to the House or Senate Clerk by 5 p.m. on December 3. They must be filed in conjunction with one of the state's 200 legislators. Your local legislator or any legislator can help you in drafting the bill.

Many key bills already defeated in the 1986 session are being refiled for 1987. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" reviews local representatives' votes on 10 bills which were defeated in 1986 and will likely be refiled in 1987.

Teacher Tenure (H 2766): House 122-22, defeated a bill requiring school committees to review the tenure of school teachers every five years.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted no.

Guns (H 1919): House 107-36, rejected a bill tightening regulations regarding firearm sales and record keeping. The bill requires license applicants to successfully pass a written and practical exam in the safe handling and use of firearms.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Gasoline (H 1817): House 137-6, rejected a bill prohibiting the sale of any motor fuel which contains alcohol.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Six Month Session (H 3761): House 105-32, rejected an order providing that the House call for a state constitutional convention for the purpose of considering a proposed amendment limiting the Massachusetts legislative session to six months.

A Yea vote is for the order. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Balanced Budget (H 3342): House 81-58, rejected a bill calling for a federal Constitutional Convention for the exclusive purpose of proposing a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget except in cases of national emergency.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

High School Requirements (H 1261): House 90-57, rejected a bill establishing requirements, effective in 1991, which high school students must meet in order to graduate. Requirements include a passing grade for four years of English; two each of math, social studies and science; one of fine arts or humanities and one half of computer science or business.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

MDC (H 2791): House 97-44, rejected a bill providing $100,000 for a study of the operation of the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) with a view toward eventual abolition of the agency.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Energy Audits (H 1467): House 101-36, rejected a bill abolishing the Massachusetts Residential Conservation Service. The program provides $10 home energy audits for consumers and is subsidized by a monthly assessment paid by utility customers.

A Yea vote is for the bill abolishing the program. A Nay vote is retaining the program.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Theory of Everything is great answer for problems

By TERRY MAROTTA

Not everyone understands science the way I do.

Take this new theory they have nowadays.

It's called the Theory of Everything and it's got the physicists talking math and the mathematicians talking physics.

They're finishing each other's sentences over it, lobbing learned papers back and forth across the country over it, taking turns lying down to apply cool cloths to one another's foreheads over it even.

It's that kind of theory.

They call it the Theory of Everything because it means to connect into one big law the four basic laws, or known forces, in the universe.

They are:

(1) the Law of Gravity, which causes the flesh under your chin first to sag and then to wobble, Nixon-style, in moments of animated speaking;

(2) the Law of Electromagnetism, the one responsible for static cling and the slow slithering down on your refrigerator of all those cute little magnets shaped like fruit;

(3) the Strong Force (sex); and

(4) the Weak Force (the urge to clean out your closets).

The Theory of Everything, or TOE, as we science-types refer to it, takes these four laws and gets them to fit together into one big law — to form a circle, more or less, clasp hands and play Ring-Around-A-Rosy with reality.

It used to be believed that ours was a four-dimensional universe. You could be a point, microscopic, teenier than the period at the end of this sentence, a dust mote in the mind of the Almighty. But the minute you took a walk to the corner store, let's say, BAM — you became a line and developed Length.

Then, having stocked up on Hostess Twinkies or whatever while you were in there, let's say further that you crossed the street at right angles — Bam again! — another dimension was created: Width.

If, in an excess of geometric high spirits, you jumped up in the air then to dance a jig, or fell into a pothole, absorbed as you were with those Twinkies, Presto! — there was the dimension of Height, or Depth. And of course all the while, without realizing it perhaps, you were growing older, you and your Twinkie both, getting staler by the minute.

Why? Because you were travelling along a fourth dimension, known as Time.

Einstein figured a lot of this out. And it was all true and right as far as it went. You were just AT that store with the Twinkies, in fact.

But now, as it turns out, they're beginning to think that instead of the universe being made up of four dimensions, it's made up of ten.

And instead of being infinitesimal points, it turns out the fundamental building blocks of matter and energy are infinitesimal STRINGS!

Well, I could have told them that. Anyone who's been paying even a little attention could have. Strings are everywhere.

There's all that string in the back of your kitchen drawers, for example, saved from all those parcels.

There's the string of cobwebs festooning your house, a pound of which, I read recently, will stretch all the way to Alpha Centauri and back.

There's string cheese and string beans.

There are apron strings and second strings. There are string quartets and the little string of tissue that roots the base of your tongue to the floor of your mouth to keep it from really flapping around.

You can string a person along or you can string him up.

The string theme runs through all literature and known history. There's no getting away from it. Shakespeare himself noticed it. "Harp not on that string," he said.

You can't even make a deal that comes with no strings attached. Think about it.

We scientists are on to something now, boy. This time we've got the world on a string.

It's a good morning's work, I say. Tomorrow we tackle free will and the meaning of life.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Petition of 300 against site

TO THE EDITOR:

A number of articles on this fall's town meeting warrant, placed there by citizens' petitions, are extremely disturbing to residents of the Lynch School neighborhood.

It is difficult to rationalize why every square foot of school, park and other town-owned land in the Lynch school area is being considered for housing purposes.

Why were other school and park lands excluded? On what basis was one neighborhood so ruthlessly singled out?

We feel that such citizens' petitions that deal so callously with the needs of a neighborhood do a disservice to the town as a whole.

First, the children of this neighborhood are entitled to the same quality education as any other child in town. Therefore, to place the entire Lynch school site on the warrant is outrageous and insulting aside from being discriminatory.

Not only does it show disrespect for the citizens of the neighborhood, but it is incompatible with basic human rights that form the foundation of a democratic society.

Secondly, to imply that over 1.2 million square feet of school land are available for housing is utter nonsense. Our overly important EOOD bureaucrats have now been imprinted falsely that the Town of Winchester has enormous tracts of land available for housing.

The Lynch School neighborhood has already accepted three units of low and moderate income housing in addition to the subsidized housing at the former Noonan School site.

Under a scattered site housing policy it does not seem reasonable that this one small neighborhood be asked to bear further housing burdens until all neighborhoods throughout the town willingly accept the same amount that we already have.

Finally, there is total consensus in the neighborhood that important decisions such as the housing issue cannot be resolved by citizens' petitions. Our neighborhood petition, signed by over 300 residents, indicates minimal support for the housing program as it is now being implemented.

Moreover, there is absolutely no support for clustering the housing in any one neighborhood. Therefore, it is suggested that the housing issue be placed on the ballot of the upcoming spring elections so that our elected officials can pursue vigorously a housing policy consistent with the desires of the electorate.

Sincerely,
Robert R. Dewald
149 Horn Pond Brook Rd.

Lynch area treated unfairly

TO THE EDITOR:

A comparison of the warrant articles 18 through 24 to others (articles 11 through 17 and 25 through 28) proposed by the town meeting special study committee on low and moderate income housing raises some questions about the fairness and practicality with which they were drafted.

Articles 18 and 19 identify every square foot of the Lynch school and town well field property for possible housing sites.

This is in sharp contrast, for example, with the treatment of the Vinson-Owen school property in article 12. In the instance of article 12, an area of school property is reserved for school use for an appreciable distance surrounding the school.

The treatment of the Vinson-Owen property seems reasonable and necessary as a practical matter for the operation of the school. Why cannot the Lynch school property be treated as reasonably?

From another perspective, the overall effect of articles 18 through 24 is to identify every piece of school or town property in the vicinity of Horn Pond Brook Road and Pond Street for housing sites.

When you take into consideration that some of these neighborhoods already accommodate low-income housing it is clear that they are being asked to shoulder an inequitable portion of the housing burden.

Articles 18 to 24 comply with state constraints concerning "clustering," it is only because there is no precise or useful definition of the term.

What these articles achieve is saturation of the public land in these neighborhoods with low and moderate income housing sites. This is not the effect of the other articles in other parts of town.

Books praised as Lincoln School library re-opens

Full moon darkness and bone-chilling cold hung outside the town's oldest, ongoing school building while inside 60 or so adults, ranging in age from 29 to 84, sat spellbound in Lincoln School's library and media center.

Not a whisper, rustle or cough disturbed the concentration of these adults as they listened Nov. 15 to tales of adventure, mystery and magic presented by Amy Cohn, marketing director of Horn Book magazine, a monthly literary review for children.

Reading, says Cohn, plays a critical role in the personal and academic development of youngsters.

Just as babies are born with a "hole in the head," a soft spot, so are they, metaphorically born with a "hole in their hearts," she says.

Reading fills this hole with stories of human triumphs, tragedies and other experiences. "It helps the heart," she says, "become strong."

Cohn reviewed three dozen recently published books and delighted the audience with selected readings.

The event marked the official opening of Lincoln's library and media center. Librarians Marjorie Mirabito and Muri Bradford applauded the support given by many parents and specifically thanked architect David Mayfield, father of two pre-school children.

Elegant and easy-to-prepare edibles, a sample of recipes in the Lincoln School Cookbook, completed the evening. The cookbook is available at $6 per copy from Sheila Marian at 729-8839.

Saltmarsh invites new bills

Dec. 3 is the filing deadline for bills to be considered during the 1987 legislative session, according to Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh.

Massachusetts citizens enjoy the right of "free petition," meaning any citizen may file legislation under the sponsorship of his local representative. Saltmarsh invites any constituent to contact him.

"I would be more than happy to assist in the preparation of any bills, or refer them to House Counsel for more technical assistance, if necessary," Saltmarsh says.

Four named to District Music Fest

Musicians at Winchester High School recently auditioned for Northeast District Festival performing groups.

Four students were selected to participate: Rachel Cooper, voice; Marilyn Cummings, clarinet; Michael Fieleke, mallets; and Chester Liu, cello.

The District Festival concert will be at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 17, at Salem High School. It will feature a mixed chorus, an orchestra, band, and jazz band.

Students who auditioned were required to play the selected and prepared piece for their instrument, scales including four sharps and four

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude help of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day, by the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. My prayers have been answered.

Sixth grade the place to learn the social graces

By PHYLIS HAWKINS

Where's a good place to learn social grace and etiquette in Winchester? Try the sixth grade.

Sixth graders are learning the social grace of dancing.

Ten hours of instruction teach students traditional dances such as the waltz, fox trot, and jitterbug, as well as new slow dancing and free rock style dances.

For the past 10 years Susan M. Ehrreich has been teaching in Winchester. She formerly taught for Boston Ballroom and Framingham Ballroom Dance Studios. Ehrreich also performed with the Boston Ballet Company.

Despite her professional background, or perhaps because of it, she enjoys teaching children.

"It's very fulfilling to me to see how they learn so much and acquire more self-confidence," Ehrreich says.

Ehrreich also teaches her sixth-graders social etiquette. Students practice such things as receiving lines, asking a person to dance, and making formal introductions to adults and peers. Ehrreich's talks at the beginning of each session tackle everything from proper dressing to being a good host or hostess.

Ehrreich tries to make classes fun. "When you don't know something, you step back and don't want to participate," she says.

Ehrreich relates dancing to skills students children already know, such as skiing, tennis and baseball. She makes games for students to play while practicing new dance steps. Students also learn group partners and mixers.

Students seem to enjoy the lessons. Many come back even after they are over.

"Kids come back when they are 16 or 17 and I don't recognize them. They tell me they are glad they took this class when they were younger," Ehrreich says.

Tony Pyro, 11, confesses, "Sometimes it bothers me dancing with certain girls, but there are girls I want to dance with. That's one reason I'm doing this. It is kind of a tradition. All the boys do it every year. It doesn't bother me to have to dress up."

Angel Linnell, 11, also enjoys social dancing classes.

"It's fun, you really learn stuff and I don't mind dancing with boys," she says.

Parents of the sixth grade class fund a dance class for their children. They feel it is necessary to learn dancing and social etiquette for social events children will attend later in life. Parents provide three chaperones for each session and provide refreshments for student dances. Students at Muraco School had a costume party for Halloween.

The final class session, two hours long, is similar to a dance the students will experience during junior and senior high school years.

Ehrreich's students will be ready for any kind of dancing then.

ABOUT TOWN

Quinn attends 'Career Day'

Marilyn Conley Quinn of Winchester was among more than 300 interior design students of 17 colleges in the Northeast, including 92 from Chamberlayne Junior College in Boston to attend "Career Day 1986" at the new Boston Design Center.

Titled "A Day with the Pros," the annual event was sponsored by the American Society of Interior Designers and National Home Fashions League.

Northeastern gives summer dean's list

Three Winchester residents were named to the dean's list of Northeastern University for the summer quarter.

They are Sandra M. Jordan of the Bouye College of Human Development, Marie S. Rajaram of the College of Business Administration and Mark Sullivan of the College of Arts and Sciences.

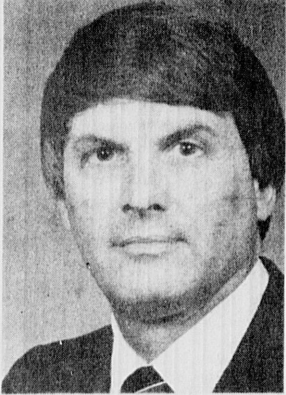

Gambill joins agency staff

Sherman & Margolis Associates has appointed John Gambill, M.D. to the agency staff as chief psychiatric consultant.

A graduate of Northwestern University, Gambill received his medical degree from the University of Minnesota Medical School and completed his residency in psychiatry at the Massachusetts General Hospital and Harvard Medical School.

Gambill, currently affiliated with Veteran's Hospital in Bedford, and a resident of Belmont, will provide expertise and consultation in the psychopharmacological aspects of depression, loneliness and anxiety.

Gambill, certified in psychiatry and neurology and a participant in the U.S.-U.S.S.R. health exchange program, has been a long-time contributor to the Psychiatric Quarterly, the Journal of Clinical Psychiatry and The Psychiatric News and is considered a leading figure in psychopharmacology.

Dr. John Gambill

Gambill, an assistant professor and research psychiatrist at the Boston University Medical School, will be available days and evenings. For additional information, contact Sherman & Margolis at 165 Washington St. 729-2070.

Santa to visit tree sale

St. Mary's School will have a Christmas tree sale in its school parking lot from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6 and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 7, and again 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

The public is invited to purchase 6'-7' sheared trees, 12' wreaths and table trees.

Santa will arrive from the North Pole Saturday to greet all but must fly back to make additional boys Saturday evening.

UNICEF sales center to move

UNICEF cards and gifts will be sold at Book Ends, 9 Winchester Terrace, through Saturday, Nov. 22, and will also begin sales in another location that day.

UNICEF cards, stationery, calendars, puzzles and games will be available at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge

Nursery from Nov. 22 to Dec. 14. Sales hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Cards may also be purchased at Henderson Stationers.

Volunteers from Church Women United staff the sales under the direction of Barbara Fickett. Proceeds benefit UNICEF programs for children in underdeveloped nations and will support the campaign for universal child immunization by 1990.

Ski Swap will be Saturday

The second annual Ski Swap will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, at McCall Junior High School gymnasium.

It is sponsored by the council on youth and the youth center.

Donors should bring ski and skate gear from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Saturday. Items should be priced. Clothing, lace boots or cable bindings will not be accepted.

Unsold equipment and sales receipts can be picked up from 5 to 6 p.m. The swap retains 10 percent of used equipment sales and 20 percent from retail sales. Only cash sales are allowed.

For more information, call 721-7129.

Class of 1971 to have reunion

The Winchester High School class of 1971 will hold its 15th year reunion 7:30 p.m. to 12:45 a.m. Friday, Nov. 28, at Woburn Country Club.

The event will feature a hot and cold buffet and a disc jockey.

For more information, contact Nannette Shanahan at 729-2865.

Body beautiful lecture planned

"Body Beautiful," a class teaching nutrition, exercise, proper make-up application, colors and wardrobe, will be offered free at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham on Monday, Dec. 1.

Linda McGarry, assistant director of the John Robert Powers School, and Julie Marcell, a registered dietitian at NEMH and former model, will direct the lecture, which will meet at 7 p.m. in the NEMH auditorium.

Registration is not required. For more information, contact Julie Marcell at 665-1740, ext. 426.

Job Bank a success

As a service of the youth center, the job bank continues to match reliable students with needy employers. The bank is open to Winchester students desiring after-school and/or weekend work. Jobs range from yard-work to babysitting to pre-professional clerking.

Employers can take part in the service by calling and scheduling an interview with a youth center representative. Students need to fill out an application. The youth center matches students to employers.

For more information, call 721-7125.

Historical Society plans social

The Winchester Historical Society's Christmas social will be conducted from 2 to 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 7 at the Museum of our National Heritage, 33 Marrett Rd., Lexington.

A gala occasion is in store for members and friends. A champagne punch reception will be held in the Clock Room where curator John Hamilton will speak informally about the museum's clock collection. Visitors may also examine the museum's current exhibitions.

Reservations may be made by sending name, address, and a check for $5 per person to the attention of the treasurer, Winchester Historical Society, 15 High St.

Former resident to screen his film about Nicaragua

Robbie Leppzer, director of the award-winning, nationally acclaimed documentary, "Harvest of Peace," will speak and show his film at 1 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 30 at the Winchester Public Library.

"Harvest of Peace" won the prize for best non-fiction film of 1986 at the San Antonio Cine Festival. The 30-minute documentary is an portrait of daily life in Nicaragua, amidst the turmoil of war.

The film focuses on the experiences of American volunteers and Nicaraguan farmworkers harvesting cotton in a citizen-to-citizen peace effort.

"I became interested in making a film about Nicaragua because I am deeply concerned that the policies of the Reagan administration are leading up into another Vietnam in Central America," says Leppzer.

"I felt it was important for me to go to Nicaragua to see what was happening there with my own eyes and make a film that would look at the situation in human terms."

Following the screening, he will speak and answer questions about his first-hand experiences in Central America.

Leppzer spent all of his formative years in Winchester, coming here at the age of five and graduating high school in the class of 1976. He will be attending his class's 10th reunion Saturday, Nov. 29.

In the fall of 1976, Leppzer moved out to Amherst to attend Hampshire College and has lived there since. His parents, Tony and Betty, still reside on Bonad Road, where he grew up.

In the past ten years, Leppzer has directed and produced numerous documentary films, videos and public radio programs for national broadcast and distribution.

Leppzer's other productions include: "Choose Life," a film about the historic one-million person march for nuclear disarmament in New York City on June 12, 1982.

In 1980, Leppzer co-produced "Rural Lives," a 13-part oral history series about western New England which was broadcast nationally over National Public Radio.

Leppzer is author of the book "Voices From Three Mile Island," published by the Crossing Press in 1980. This book, which features first-person testimonies of residents living near the ill-fated nuclear plant, was reviewed by the Library Journal as "one of the strongest books written about TMI."

Leppzer co-directed "Seabrook 1977," a feature video documentary about the early civil disobedience protests at the New Hampshire nuclear plant.

In his senior year at Winchester High School, Leppzer worked at WHSR-FM and produced the radio documentary "Wounded Knee: Roots of The Earth." The program won national first prize from National Public Radio's Young People's Radio Festival and was nationally broadcast in 1976.

Over the past five years, Leppzer has worked as a video artist-in-residence teaching in numerous elementary and secondary schools in western Massachusetts. His latest production, "A Heritage Within," is an hour-long multi-cultural children's television special.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Two in play at Belmont Hill

"On the Razzle," Tom Stoppard's adaptation of a 19th century Viennese play, is the fall production at Belmont Hill School.

Involving Belmont Hill and Winsor students including two from Winchester, the frivolous comedy will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21 and 22, in the old gym at Belmont Hill. Tickets are available at the door.

The play is the story of two country boys who sneak off to Vienna to acquire a "past" in one night for no more than two guilders.

Gregory J. Abate, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Abate, is a member of the production staff and plays the part of a horse.

Arthur C.R. Gleason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Gleason is one of the production staff.

Kim performs Bartok piece

Jeana Kim, daughter of Hyuck S. and Soo H. Kim of 82 Arlington St. and a fourth grade student at Ambrose School, performed Bartok's "Where Have You Been, My Lambkin?" during a workshop in Lexington.

Kim is a Piano 2 student of Carroll Ann Bottino of Lexington.

Co-op Theatre to host meeting

Winchester Co-operative Theatre will host a pre-registration meeting at 3 p.m. Monday, Nov. 24, at the Lincoln School.

Children in grades 4-6 and parents are invited.

An explanation of the audition process, the rehearsal schedule and the personal and financial commitment will be discussed.

Children planning to audition Dec. 1 and 2 should bring a self-addressed stamped envelope and a current school picture to the meeting.

For more information, call Cathy Alexander at 729-0224.

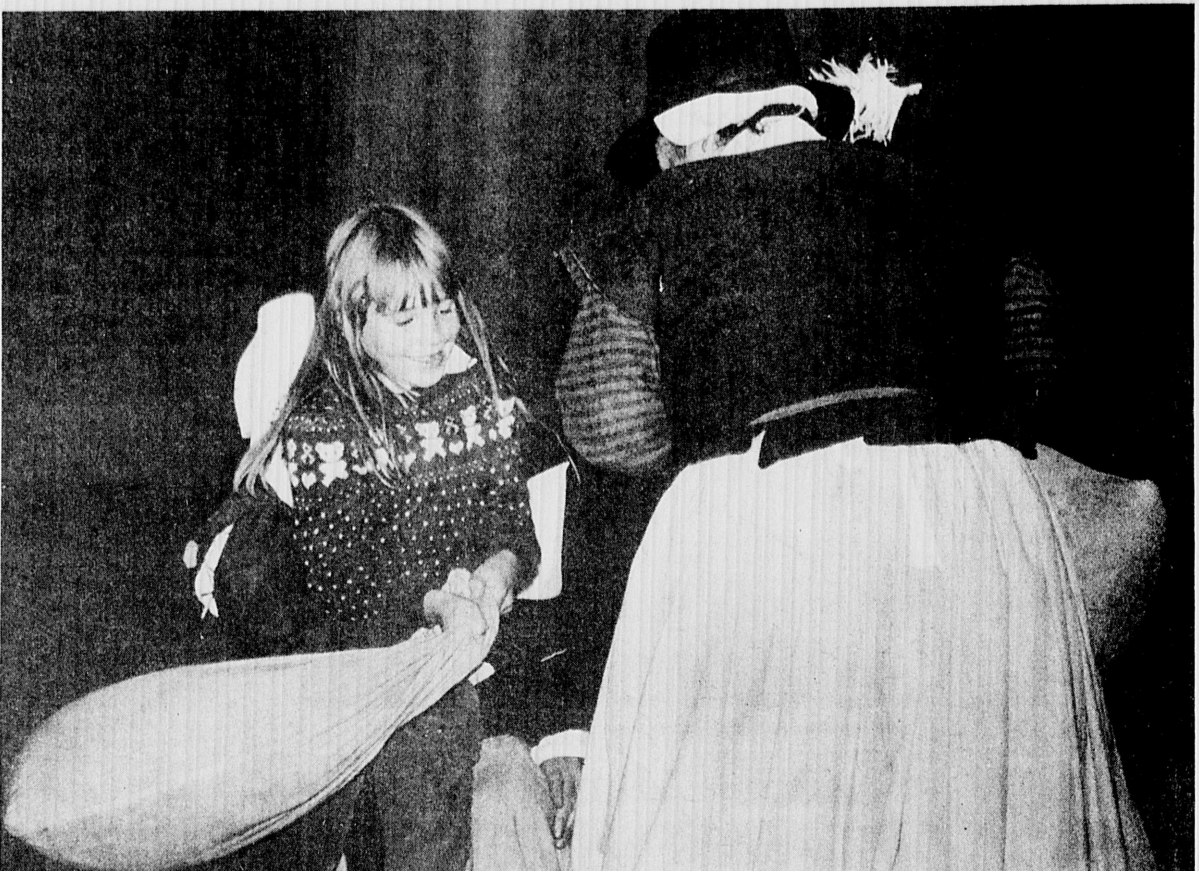

Newcomers Club plans fashion show

The Winchester Newcomers' Club will conduct a fashion show and luncheon at noon Wednesday, Dec. 3.

Fashions will be provided by Luisa of Winchester, who specializes in original creations of sportswear.

All merchandise will be on sale after the show.

For information and reservations, call 729-6495 by Dec. 1.

Ellen Wile, 8, a student at Lynch School, got a chance to participate in the theater recently when the New England Song and Dance Company visited Winchester schools. Wile put Prudence Hill, right, on the run. (Paul Drake photo)

Victory Victory Victory

By DAVID DEMARCO

Excitement continued to build last week as the Winchester High School girls' soccer team, state champion in 1982 and 1983, continued its march toward an unbeaten year and the state title.

The Sachemettes defeated Concord-Carlisle 2-1 in triple overtime Saturday at Salem State College to win the Northern Massachusetts crown for the second year in a row.

Katie Binding, the star of the chilly night, opened the scoring when the game was only 54 seconds old. Charlotte Reece made a nice pass to Binding at the corner and she tapped it home.

"It was an unexpected goal," Binding admitted.

C.C. came back quickly and actually dominated play in the rest of the first half. The Lady Patriots were very aggressive and it was evident Winchester would not win a 5-0 blowout, as it did the last time the two teams met.

C.C. had some great opportunities but was stifled by the outstanding play of goalie Joann Shusta, who has been a major force during the season. (Please See VICTORY - Page 18)

Boys win North Mass. title

By STEVE GOUDSOUZIAN

Winchester High School won the Northern Massachusetts boys soccer title with a 3-0 victory over Marblehead Saturday at Reading.

The game was shifted to Reading from its original location in North Andover because of poor field conditions. But the Reading field was hardly in good shape.

The field consisted of mud, where the snow had melted, and frozen ground, where it hadn't.

The Sachems were dominated in the early going, partly because they played without the full services of halfback Paul Erbafina, who had hurt his leg.

Erbafina has been a mainstay for the Sachems, especially in the second half of the season when defenders began to mark Winchester scorers Chris Verhaegen, Kent McCord and Mike Rice.

Marblehead's halfback line dominated midfield but the Sachems did not panic. This was not the first time Winchester experienced pressure and a slow start this fall.

Winchester defenders had great difficulty staying on their feet and Marblehead got some good opportunities in the early going. Goalie Scott Racek was equal to the task, making a fine smothering stop of a loose shot.

Winchester's defense awoke and sparked the team's turn-around. Marblehead was stopped in its tracks, unable to move the ball.

Verhaegen was ready to explode. Marblehead players never knew what hit them.

The Sachems were passing well. They broke Verhaegen out front with a lead pass. He dribbled past the first man and cut toward the left wing. At the 18-yard line, left wing Kenny Fowler was open and moving toward the goal. Fowler slipped and set a screen for Verhaegen, effectively blocking two Marblehead players.

Verhaegen shot to the near post and the ball slipped past the goalie for a 1-0 Sachem lead.

Winchester did not let up. Rob Kean took a corner kick that was misplayed by the Headers. Verhaegen took the ball on one bounce and redirected it toward the goal. Thanks to another Marblehead miscue, the ball slid in.

Ahead 2-0 at the half, Winchester was warned by coach Gene Bouley that Marblehead had come from behind several times this fall. The Sachems must be ready and not let the game slip by.

In the second half, Winchester continued to dominate. Rice got the third goal off a fine pass from Paul Capadonna and advanced to a Tuesday night meeting with southern champion Duxbury in the state tournament semifinals.

Seniors win finale

Winchester seniors won their home finale 4-0 Nov. 11, downing North Andover in the north sectional semifinals.

The game followed the girls' team's 3-0 victory over Wakefield, a game which ended as snow began to fall lightly.

The officials nearly cancelled the boys' game as snow began to fall heavily. As much as two inches stuck to the field but, in part because of players' eagerness, the officials started the game.

Playing their final game at Skillings Road, seniors displayed a fierce determination instead of their usual cockiness; they would not lose at home.

Both teams looked comical and foolish as play began. Players slipped and fell. The ball picked up wet snow and became so heavy it was impossible to kick it more than a few yards.

The game slowed to a sometimes literal crawl — in slow motion. Players dribbled, fell down, got up and still had time to beat a defender, who often hurled himself at the loose ball and wiped out everything in the way.

The Sachems were determined to beat the circumstances and the defense somehow managed to keep the ball out of Winchester territory. Eventually, the Sachems proved better in snow than North Andover.

Two goals by Rice proved hustle can overcome conditions. Rice had more problems with traction than almost everyone else on the field but each time he fell, he rose with more determination.

Verhaegen and Fowler had the other two goals for the Sachems before the game was stopped by the officials.

Despite a shortened contest, the seniors would not forget their final home game. Every snowstorm will be a reminder.

Sachems tune up for the big game

By DAVID DEMARCO

Winchester tuned up for Thanksgiving's "big event" with a 38-12 pasting of Belmont Saturday afternoon as the Sachems ran their football record to 9-0.

The Sachems will face unbeaten and once-tied Woburn in the traditional Turkey Day game.

Winchester kicked off to Belmont but the Marauders set the stage for the afternoon when they fumbled the ball away on their first possession.

Winchester recovered on the Belmont 49-yard line and marched to the Belmont seven.

At 3:25 of the first quarter, Darin Cromwell did what he does so well. Winchester led 6-0.

The Sachems got their second gift of the day on the Marauders' next possession. Poor Belmont fumbled again, putting the Sachem offense on its own 41-yard line.

On first down, Winchester went deep to Vin Benincasa. The pass was complete for 58 yards to the Belmont one. Cromwell went in again at 9:24 of the second quarter.

By now it was obvious Winchester could score at will. It was almost as if the Sachems were toying with Belmont when they fumbled the ball to the Marauders at the Sachem 35-yard line.

But Belmont quarterback Chris Wright was unable to get his team's offense moving.

The Sachems took over and drove to the Marauders' 31. Again the pass meant doom for Belmont. John DeMarco hit Benincasa for a 41-yard TD play. Winchester led 16-0 with 1:35 left in the half.

The rest of the game was as dreary as the sky, at least in terms of suspense.

Artie Gordon intercepted a pass for Winchester on the next series of downs, bringing an overworked Sachem offensive unit back on the field.

Mike "Pickle" Murray received the call on the next series. Murray ran well, setting up the Sachems on the Belmont 25. With 49 seconds left, DeMarco hit Murray to make the halftime score 24-0.

Coach Manny Marshall saw an opportunity to give younger players some varsity experience in the second half.

The Sachems took the kickoff on their own two-yard line and drove through Belmont's defense with ease.

The offense munched up seven minutes of the third quarter before Cromwell scored again, this time from the four-yard line.

With Winchester up 32-0, coach Marshall gave the first string the rest of the day off.

Brian Gilligan recovered his own team's fumble in the end zone for Belmont's first touchdown and Wright gave the Marauders their second at 3:14 of the fourth quarter.

Scott Garvey scored Winchester's last touchdown on a nice 18-yard run. Seniors playing their last home playoffs with 15 saves in the sectional semifinal and 10 against C.C.

Each time the Sachemettes' offense stalled, Shusta came up with the big save to keep Winchester in the game.

The Lady Patriots increased the pressure in the second half. At 30:57, Winchester got a bad break when a shot by Concord-Carlisle's Cyndi Damon deflected off a Winchester leg into the goal.

Sudden death became the order of the day when regulation time expired with a 1-1 score on the board.

It was the Sachemettes' turn to take control; overtime momentum belonged to Winchester.

"We did dominate the overtimes. The statistics say they had more shot than we did, but I doubt it," said Binding.

Neither team scored through two excruciating overtime periods.

As the third overtime began, the exhausted Lady Patriots ran out of gas. At 2:46, Binding scored from Meghan Guarnotta to guarantee a "tomorrow" for Winchester.

"After several tries to get the ball over the goalie's head, we finally did so and Katie headed the ball in," Guarnotta said.

"The better team came out on top," Binding said.

There was little doubt Winchester's defense was better and time itself finally wore down the Lady Patriots, despite a fine performance by their goalie.

Winchester advanced to a state semifinal game Tuesday night against southern champion Bridgewater-Raynham.

DuLong on St. Michael's team

Danielle DuLong of Winchester, a freshman at St. Michael's College in Winoski, Vt., was a member of the women's soccer team this fall.

DuLong has two goals and an assist for the Purple Knights in her first season.

"She quickly became a key player with her hustle and enthusiasm," said coach Liz Cronin. The team posted a 7-8-1 record.

We do all the basics that other drycleaners do, we just do them better.

For more than 38 years Faulkner's Cleaning has served the cleaning needs of Winchester residents and has built up a reputation for quality workmanship that has made them a trusted name in drycleaning and has made many Winchester residents lifelong customers.

Faulkner's not only drycleans all the usual items including pants suits, dresses, and coats, and cleans and presses shirts, but they also go one step further — Faulkner's inspects every article of clothing and replaces buttons or sews seams at no charge.

"We do all the basics that other drycleaners do, we just do them better," explains owner/proprietor Francis Hardy.

As far as service is concerned Faulkner's Cleaning offers something we tend to associate with past decades — door to door service. At no extra charge Faulkner's will pick up and deliver your drycleaning to your house.

Every Tuesday and Thursday their truck goes through Winchester for convenient door to door service. There is no extra charge for this convenience and customers can arrange for free pick-up and delivery by calling Faulkner's Cleaning at 665-6300.

In addition to cleaning all the usual items, Faulkner's also cleans various household items including slipcovers, draperies, and bedspreads. They are also experts at cleaning both suede and leather garments.

And, if you don't have the space around your home or apartment to store seasonal garb, Faulkner's offers storage for anything from furs to wools. Box storage is available in which you receive a large box to store your clothes which are cleaned and pressed just prior to pickup, and ready to wear when you retrieve them by calling Faulkner's Cleaning several days in advance.

For quality workmanship and the customer satisfaction which has been the trademark of Faulkner's for more than 38 years, or for convenient door to door service at no extra charge, come into Faulkner's at 437 Franklin St. Melrose, or just pick up the phone and call them at 665-6300.

Faulkner's Cleaning is open Monday through Friday, 7-5, Saturdays, 8-5.

Winchester Trails provides woods tours for school

Winchester Trails concluded fall activities last Sunday with a social gathering at the home of Evelyn Trageser. Board members hosted the event to thank guides who led walks for school children last month.

Nine walks were conducted at Long Pond and the Nike site in the Middlesex Fells, and in the Town Forest. During these adventures the children learned about how nature gets ready for winter.

In addition to walks required for third and fourth graders there were several for nursery school and Brownie groups. Trails tries to accommodate group requests if volunteers are available.

Trails members also participated recently in a Smith Pond improvement project under the direction of Anne Galli. Near the dam where ponding activities take place to look for insect life, some encroaching cattails were removed. The area on either side of the dam was built up to prevent spillage which had lowered the pond level so far that it had become unusable.

Winchester Trails tries to interfere as little as possible with nature's succession. It only does so to the extent of being able to carry on its primary activity of education. Next spring Smith Pond should be ready once again for teaching walks.

SENIOR NEWS

Jenks' front door open

Because of the risk of injury in the construction area of the Jenks Senior Center, the Bowdoin Corporation's superintendent has requested that people do not enter the addition.

Please watch the building progress from outside of the section under construction. The view is changing daily, but loose boards, nails and other possible safety hazards require extreme caution, especially at this stage of the building's development.

Bake sale
a huge success

The "Thank You" bake sale for the benefit of the Winchester High School marching band's trip to the Gator Bowl in Florida netted over $500. Appreciation is extended to Grace Dignam, chairman, Elaine Delaney, Sylvia Saslow and Marjorie Blomquist and to the EnKa potpourri group which spent several mornings in the kitchen of Grace Dignam making cookies for the occasion.

Elaine Delaney, Tina Triglione,

Pat Sandford, Edna Duffy and Norma Zettler gathered to work on the project, packaging the cookies with ribbon of the high school colors, red and black.

Gratitude is expressed to all bakers who made the sale possible, all buyers who added money to the till, to chairman Grace Dignam, whose enthusiasm was contagious, and for the wonderful spirit that abounded around the bake sale throughout the sale. Every crumb was purchased in the interest of the band. The event was a huge success.

Doll
demonstration

The Winchester Seniors Association education committee will present Mrs. Diane Dieter, who has always loved dolls of every description, at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3, in the Jenks Center meeting room.

For the past 13 years, she has been a collector. One room in her home houses over 300 dolls ranging in size from petite to three feet in height, adorned in costumes from colonial to modern.

Some dolls with a Christmas holiday theme, will be on display. Working with Dieter is her friend, Jane Boorman, who will demonstrate how dolls are made from the mold to the finished model. Both presenters have a great deal of information to offer.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion. The public is invited. Sign up at the center receptionist at 721-7136 to attend.

Get-acquainted morning coffee set

The Jenks Senior Center will host a morning "Get Acquainted" coffee for desk volunteers to meet with members of the transportation committee at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 9.

Often, the people involved know each other only through telephone communication when appointments are being made.

Reports will be presented by Ruth Ayres, chairperson of the information referral committee, and by Mary Peterson and Kim Archibald, who co-chair the transportation service.

More volunteers are needed on both committees. After visitors find out what is taking place in both committees, some may be motivated to add their service to one of them.

Introduction to computers planned

The Winchester Seniors Association education committee will present Jack McCarthy at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Dec. 12, in the Jenks Senior Center meeting room with a discussion of computers.

The speaker is one of June Cannon's enthusiastic participants in exercise classes three times weekly. He has been involved in the fields of science, mathematics, physics and electrical engineering throughout his life.

A graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the class of 1945 and Northeastern Graduate Division in 1970, his 42 years of professional background include the United States Army, New England Telephone Co., the Department of Defense and NASA. He was recently an independent electronic systems consultant to the aerospace industry.

He will be non-technical and promises not to concentrate on technical "jargon." He will survey early computer development, the present "state-of-the-art," and future expectations.

Ruth Palmer, left, and Marjorie Blomquist examine cookies for the high school marching band bake sale at the Jenks Center. Prepared by the EnKa potpourri group and packaged with red and black ribbons, the cookies were a major feature of the sale.

Ruth Harriet Jacobs, professor of sociology and chairperson of the department of sociology at Clark University in Worcester, spoke at the first seniors issues forums Nov. 18 at the Jenks Senior Center.

'Flim-flam' schemes discussed

Some "flim-flam" artists attempt to fleece older people in numerous ways. The Winchester Seniors Association's education committee program at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 21, at the Jenks Senior Center meeting room will be a panel discussion about flim-flams and a movie will provide valuable information.

Georgeann Abbanat, assistant general counsel of the Commission on Banks, and Sue Hickey, director of consumer assistance, will speak along with Robert Nickerson, president of Winchester Savings Bank, Edwin Goodwin, president of the Winchester Cooperative Bank, safety officer Kevin Mawn, and Lt. Detective Joseph Perritano of the Winchester police department will present first-hand information about fraudulent schemes.

Eleanor Matson won an afghan made by Catherine Hatch at the Jenks Center soup and sandwich luncheon.

Eleanor Matson wins door prize

The door prize at the Soup and Sandwich Luncheon was won by Eleanor Matson of New Meadows Rd. The beautiful aqua colored lap robe was made by the nimble fingers of Catherine Hatch, who has been extremely generous on many occasions in giving hand-made articles of great beauty.

This afghan was an unexpected, pleasant addition to the festivities of the luncheon and will be long remembered, specially by the winner.

HEALTH

Divorce group for kids planned

If the house on the left is Dad's, and the house on the right is Mom's, where in the 15 miles between do the children live?

This is a seven-year-old child's perception of divorce.

Helping children deal with normal reactions to stressful changes in family composition is the goal of "New Families: Divorce, Separation and Remarriage," a new program now being offered at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham.

The program explores the initial reaction to a divorce (anger, sadness, frustration), co-parents (holidays, visiting, issues at school), and adjustment to remarriage (feelings about stepparents, step-siblings, new babies, etc.).

"It's good to work with people during the time of the stressful situation before they have the actual problems," said Dr. David Fassler, a child psychiatrist at NEMH.

Fassler will co-lead the program with Alexandra Erickson, a child psychiatrist nurse experienced in both the medical and psychological aspects of child care and education.

Initial groups will begin in early December. Those interested should contact Alexandra Erickson of NEMH's human service department: 665-1740, ext. 755.

has been a Winchester Hospital employee for nearly 20 years and is evening supervisor for central registration.

The PEER program at Winchester Hospital will continue to award top hospital employees each month. The next winner will be named in December.

Burke is new community nurse

Mary Pat Burke, R.N., has joined the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East as a community health nurse.

She worked most recently for the Schenectady VNA in New York, where she provided primary nursing care to medical and surgical patients in their own homes and coordinated their overall program of health care.

She also worked for the Children's Hospital of Buffalo as a primary nurse for medical and surgical pediatric patients.

Burke holds a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the State University of New York at Buffalo, and an associate of arts degree in nutrition from Maria College in Albany, N.Y. She and her husband live in Winchester.

Mary Pat Burke

Doyle wins
PEER award

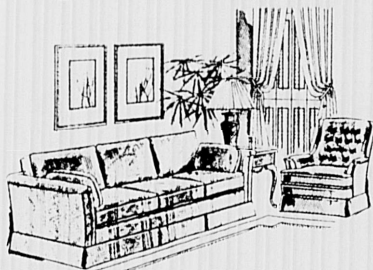

Claire Doyle of Woburn was recently selected the first recipient of the Winchester Hospital PEER (Pace-setting Employees Earn Recognition) Award.

She was chosen by a panel of her fellow employees in recognition of her outstanding job performance. Doyle

Phyllis Fernald, left, of Winchester receives a citation from Marta Frank, president of the board of Visiting Nurse and Community Health, Inc., for her "outstanding contribution." Fernald serves on the professional advisory committee of the board.

OBITUARIES

Elisa Mendelsohn

Elisa Kent Mendelsohn, nine months, of Wellesley died Nov. 16 after a lengthy illness.

She was the daughter of Dr. Michael E. and Anne B. (Kent) Mendelsohn and the granddaughter of John E. and Barbara T. Kent of Winchester and of Robert S. Mendelsohn and Ruth L. and Bert B. Rosen, all of St. Louis, Mo.

She was the great-granddaughter of Marion L. Mendelsohn of Cincinnati and Margaret L. Kent of Bronxville, N.Y.

She is also survived by many aunts and uncles and one cousin.

Graveside services were conducted Nov. 18 at Wildwood Cemetery in Winchester. Memorial gifts may be sent to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Levine Chapel, Brookline.

Lillian Spiller

Services are scheduled at 10 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 20, at the Parish of the Epiphany for Lillian (Jack) Spiller of Alvin, Texas, who died Nov. 17 at Humana Hospital in Texas. She was 83.

A former resident of Country Club Heights in Woburn, she was born in Rochester, N.Y., and was the wife of the late Charles A. Spiller.

She is survived by two sons, Charles A. of Alvin, Texas, and Robert J. of Winchester, and a daughter, Margaret S. Plunkett of LaGrange, Ill. She is also survived by nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Interment will be at Oak Ridge Cemetery in South Dennis. Memorial donations may be sent to the Cape Cod Alzheimer's Disease Association, 265 N. Main St., South Yarmouth 02664.

Funeral arrangements were by the Lane Funeral Home of Winchester.

Evie Anasis

Evie M. Anasis, 22, of West Yarmouth, formerly of Winchester, died of cancer Nov. 3 at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Miss Anasis was a travel agent in her parents' business, the Orbit Travel Agency of Boston.

She was a 1982 graduate of Dennis-Yarmouth High School and a 1986 graduate of Simmons College, where she majored in sociology and art history.

She was a member of St. George's Greek Orthodox Church in Hyannis and a member of its Daughters of Penelope and Philoptotos Society.

Among her survivors are her parents John and Elly (Papadopoulos) Anasis and her grandmother, Pauline Papadopoulos of Canton.

Funeral services were conducted Nov. 5 in St. George's Greek Orthodox Church in Hyannis. Burial was at Ancient Cemetery in Yarmouth.

George Albree

George Norman Albree, 98, of Richmond, Va., formerly of Winchester, died Nov. 14.

Born in Boston, Mr. Albree lived in Winchester from 1939 to 1982.

He leaves his wife, Grace (Allen) Albree of Concord.

Mr. Albree graduated from Governor Dummer Academy and attended Amherst and Dartmouth Colleges. An early aviator, he designed, constructed and flew the first monoplane for the United States Army.

He was known for his contributions and many inventions concerning ballistics and firearm designs. He was a life member of the National Rifle Association.

Among his survivors are: his son, John A. of Kill Devil Hills, N.C.; a daughter, Georgiana (Albree) Markel of Midlothian, Va.; two step-daughters, Shirley (Foote) Smith of Concord and Cynthia (Foote) Taylor of Bennington, Vt.; and four grandchildren.

A private graveside service will be conducted in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

Richard Scobie

Central America to be church topic

Richard Scobie, executive director of the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee (UUSC), will speak on the topic "Central America, Human Rights and UUSC" at the Winchester Unitarian Church at the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday, Nov. 23.

The Unitarian Universalist Service Committee is an independent membership organization founded in 1939 which, through a nationwide network of volunteers and its staff, works for basic social change in the U.S., especially in the areas of criminal justice and aging, and for health, women's rights, economic development and human rights in Central America, the Caribbean, India and Africa.

Scobie, the organization's executive director since 1972, earned his doctorate in social work at Brandeis University's Heller School and is author of Problem Tenants in Public Housing.

Before joining the service committee, he worked with a number of government agencies and organizations focused on social issues in the U.S. and Latin America.

The service Sunday is open to the community. For information, call 729-0949.

Christian Science Church elects new readers

The annual Thanksgiving Day service at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, will be conducted at 10 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 27, by the newly-elected readers, Mrs. Willie van Koten of 24 Vine St. and Mrs. Verity Feldmann of 5 Thronberry Rd. Christian Science churches have no clergy and laypersons are elected from the membership to conduct services. The new readers replace Mrs. Barbara Christy of 22 Pilgrim Dr. and Mrs. Betty Sampson of 8 Sheffield Rd., who recently completed three-year terms.

Mrs. van Koten, First Reader, was born and educated in Utrecht, Holland. She and her husband, Willem, and two children, Ran and Ivar, settled in Winchester when they came to this country in 1974. She is a graduate Christian Science nurse, having completed three years of training at the Chestnut Hill Benevolent Association in Chestnut Hill. For the past four years she has served as librarian at the Christian Science Reading Room on Mt. Vernon St.

Mrs. Feldmann, Second Reader, has been active in Winchester Girl Scouting and is a past president of the League of Women Voters in Burlington and past treasurer of the Winchester Chapter. She is a graduate of Boston University and is currently employed as a certified public accountant by Richard Koundakjian of Lexington. She has served the church in several capacities, including Sunday school superintendent and clerk.

The hour-long Thanksgiving Day service combines elements of the weekly Sunday and Wednesday services. All include music, hymn-singing, prayer, and a sermon composed of passages from the Bible and selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by church founder Mary Baker Eddy.

Thanksgiving Day services and Wednesday evening testimony meetings provide a period for spontaneous sharing of thanks to God.

Christian Scientists often relate briefly how prayer has brought them release from various difficulties, including sickness.

All are welcome to share this special service of prayer and thanks. Anyone needing transportation to the church at 114 Church St. may call the Christian Science Reading Room, 729-5856.

St. Mary's seeks Nov. 22-23 'Thanksgivers'

The staff of St. Mary's Parish in Winchester is asking its parishioners to be "Thanksgivers," particularly the weekend of Nov. 22-23.

A used clothing drive is scheduled for the benefit of the Jesuit Center, Sullivan Square, Charlestown. Clothing should be brought to a truck which will be in the St. Mary's parking lot from 4 p.m. Saturday to 1 p.m. Sunday. Clean clothing for all ages is requested. It will be sorted and made available in the thrift shop at the center.

Also, non-perishable items (packaged or canned foods) are requested to be brought to Nov. 22 and 23 masses to be shared with needy people in St. John-St. Hugh Parish in Roxbury. The parish distributes food each weekend to needy families.

Donations will also supplement food in the soup kitchen, "Our Daily Bread," a program in the parish.

All parishioners are encouraged to take part in these programs of social charity.

Street and one of Amherst Road. Ronayne also said the two sites were the "least desirable" of all those under the school committee's jurisdiction.

A lot at the corner of Ridge Street and Leland Road, southwest of the West Side fire station, is too small, Garcia said, and requires a variance from the board of appeals.

Garcia said the EOC had not approved the site and lost interest when it saw the land used for "agriculture." The land is the town garden.

One of two possible sites on Andrews Hill fell into the third category of options, following Cross Street and Sylvester Avenue.

A lot behind the Parkhurst School basketball court would require a road extension and needs approval from the state legislature because it is currently parkland. The site does have EOC approval, but it could contain only one unit if town meeting wishes to blend Section 705 housing with its neighborhoods.

Another site, off Agawam Road, has not been reviewed by EOC.

Both Andrews Hill and the site on Agawam Road are opposed on principle by the conservation commission and the planning board because they are parkland.

Four sites on the large lot which contains the Lynch School were considered.

The Sylvester Avenue site, located on the east side at the northerly end of the present street, was approved by EOC and recommended as the first alternate by selectmen.

A second site, south of the school near the border of Wildwood Cemetery, has not been inspected by EOC but would fall under the jurisdiction of the conservation commission because it is within 100 feet of Horn Pond Brook.

The remaining two suggested sites on the Lynch lot were nearly ruled out by Sullivan. One off Brantwood Road near Pond Street would require "spot zoning," Garcia said. It does have EOC approval but Sullivan said the current town meeting articles would not solve all the legal problems for the lot.

A site in the so-called well field, once a source of town water, was never seriously considered because of wetlands problems and anticipated requirements that towns return to abandoned sources of water in the near future.

A site on an extension Horn Pond Brook Road was opposed again by the conservation commission and planning board because of its status as parkland.

Although the site is not thought to be wetland, it is within 100 feet of the brook and would require conservation commission review. It does not have EOC approval.

Part of the former Noonan School lot on Hemingway Street has EOC approval and would be favored by the planning board. The site was rejected at the spring town meeting, however, because selectmen promised the neighborhood not to put more housing there after the Noonan Glen elderly project was located there.

A final site, the northeast corner of the Leonard Field lot, won little support despite prior EOC approval. It is also parkland.

"Any conclusions?" Sullivan asked.

Sullivan, housing authority clash on alternative's details

By GEORGE DERRINGER

The Winchester Housing Authority will let town meeting pick its own site for two units of low-to-moderate income housing if its own recommended site on Cross Street is not approved.

Housing authority chairman Mary Meader said Monday her group would let the meeting make its own decision.

"Without input from the housing authority," town moderator John Sullivan asked.

"Yes," Meader answered. "Would you follow the direction of the town meeting?" Sullivan said.

While re-zoning a parcel, town meeting is going to know if the housing authority is going to develop it.

"A $100,000 appropriation may not come easy," he said.

"The town meeting has believed the responsibility for planning housing was yours," Sullivan said.

Selectman Bob Deering asked again if the housing authority will support the site chosen by town meeting.

Meader said she wasn't prepared to answer.

"Will the state finance the units directly or must they go through the housing authority," planning board member Dan Chane asked.

"Through the housing authority. If the housing authority chooses to stiff the town meeting, we'll be stiffed," Sullivan answered.

ed after all 13 lots had been discussed. Several speakers again urged the housing authority to have a written agreement and a firm price to bring to the Nov. 24 town meeting.

"If the owner really wants to sell, I think he'd be happy to sign an agreement. He knows a decision will be made quickly," Sullivan said.

Monday's town meeting will decide how or whether to replace the two units of Section 705 housing lost when the state secretary of transportation refused permission to build them on the former Woburn Loop right-of-way.

EOC officials say they will cut off the town's access to state "discretionary funding" if the town does not live up to its commitment for seven units by the end of town meeting.

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and one codicil of said deceased may be proved and allowed and that Phyllis Havenstein of Winchester in the County of Middlesex be appointed executrix without giving surety on her bond.

Old-fashioned thanks re-created at Sturbridge

Old Sturbridge Village will host an 1830's style Thanksgiving from Nov. 22 through 30, at the living history museum which re-creates a New England town of 150 years ago.

Turkeys in reflector ovens, costumed men in a turkey shoot, and elegantly dressed couples in traditional dances are all part of the nine-day celebration.

Festivities will begin at 11 a.m. Nov. 22 with a turkey shoot. Historically dressed interpreters will break out their smoothbore muskets, rifles, and black powder to compete for a grand prize, usually a live turkey.

While forebears sometimes targeted live birds, contestants at Old Sturbridge will set their sights on and fire at paper targets, also used in the period.

Thanksgiving turkey shoots were very popular among sportsmen of the time. "Out of the way (of) folks, near some sawmill or other retired spot, the men and boys would gather with their rifles," wrote one observer who conceivably could have admired as well the marksmanship of Andrew Jackson or the writing of Nathaniel Hawthorne.

"A target was set up," he continued, "while in some horse stall or outshed a guard kept careful watch of the fowls until their turn came to be handed over for a prize. The price of a shot was a sixpence or a shilling. The one who hit the mark 'good and square' won the turkey."

Like many other leisure activities of early days, the turkey shoot was based on a practical task, or on work.

Throughout the week, visitors can smell the wonderful aroma of breads, mince pies, cranberry sauce, and Marlborough Pudding for holiday meals in the village houses. Interpreters will explain the recipes and their preparations.

On Thanksgiving Day, foods will be served and displayed.

Visitors may wander the village lanes from window to window to watch how families and individuals celebrated the day.

Visitors who want to eat as well as watch other people eat can make advance reservations for 11:30 a.m., 2, 4:30 and 7:15 p.m. at the Bullard Tavern. On the menu is the traditional turkey feast complemented with entrees ranging from oyster bisque to plum pudding and with fresh fruit bowls at every table.

The public may also attend an early American Meetinghouse service, offered at 1:15 and 3:45 p.m. Typical of those of the 1830's, this service will include psalms, sermons and prayers culled from original manuscripts.

At 4:30 p.m., interpreters in their finest dresses, bonnets, tail-coats and cravats will gather for period dances. Some families of the last century danced in their homes following Thanksgiving dinner.

Other festivities, with appeal for all ages of this modern era, will continue throughout the weekend following Thanksgiving. Visitors will be invited to try their hands at grinding corn, making cider, and crushing herbs and spices.

On the Saturdays of the prolonged week, as will happen on every Saturday from now through the end of March (excluding Dec. 20 and 27), Old Sturbridge offers a program called "Dinner in a Country Village."

Participants will need to bring some strength and culinary skill along with their appetites to the Visitor Center at 5 p.m. when an interpreter will brief them on responsibilities as well as offerings.

Everyone has a hand in the preparation of the meal at the Richardson Parsonage, a mid-18th century lean-to household of a Congregational minister.

Wood will need to be split and a roaring fire started for cooking the meal, not to mention enjoying the meal in some warmth on a New England's winter night of any century.

Vegetables must be prepared and cooked over the fire in cast iron cooking pots, while apple pies will be made before they are baked. Meanwhile, ye olde roast beef will turn on the spit in the reflector oven by the fire.

As everyone prepares this feast, while munching on cheese toast and sipping mulled cider, the interpreters will explain early 19th century hearth cooking methods, regale the guests with stories of early New England life, and lead them in 1830's parlor games.

As the world spins a curtain on the late autumnal sun, candles are lit in the house, and in their flicker the table is set for the evening meal. When the beef is perfectly browned, the fish chowder and pie bubbling, everyone sits down to enjoy the meal, and the interpreters offer comments on period table manners, topics of likely 19th century table talk, and incidental stories.

Old Sturbridge's "Dinner in a Country Village" is limited to 14 people, age 14 and over, by advanced, prepaid reservation, at $40 per person.

Fishermen knew Plimoth first

Pilgrim Trivia

• The Pilgrims did not happen upon unknown frontier. The waters off New England were fished by the English for at least 100 years before the Pilgrim landing.

• The Pilgrims did not name Plymouth. Capt. John Smith explored the New England coast in 1614 and gave his map to Prince Charles (who became King Charles). Charles put English names on the map such as Plymouth and the Charles River.

• Lobsters, clams and mussels were considered "hard rations" when the food supply was scarce. Many Pilgrims thought lobsters were fit only for pigs!

• In the Pilgrim household, the adults sat down to dinner and the children waited on them.

• Pilgrims didn't eat in courses as we know them. All foods were placed on the table at one time, including the sweetmeats (dessert) and people ate in any order they chose. Sometimes there were two courses per meal but each course consisted of salad, fish, fowl, a meat, pudding, pottage and sweets.

• Pilgrims didn't use forks. They used a knife, spoon, a large napkin, and fingers and would share plates and drinking vessels.

• There were only four married women who survived the first harsh winter (1620-1621). (Of 102 Pilgrims, about 50 died during that first winter.) The four, Elizabeth Hopkins, Eleanor Billington, Susannah White Winslow, and Mary Brewster, oversaw the food preparations for the 3-day harvest feast for the 50 colonists and Massasoit and his 90 Indian men — the feast that became known as "the first Thanksgiving."

• The Pilgrims did not eat pumpkin pie and cranberry sauce at the first so-called Thanksgiving; they did eat roast wild fowl such as duck, goose and turkey, corn meal, cod, sea bass and venison brought by the Indians.

• The turkey, native to this country, was a familiar barnyard fowl in England brought to Europe 100 years earlier by the Spanish.

• Before the Pilgrims hired her, Mayflower, a merchant vessel, was in the wine trade with France and before that in the fish trade with Norway.

• "Massasoit" in the Wampanoag language means "great leader." His real name was Ousamequin or "Yellow Feather."

• The Indians of southeastern Massachusetts who befriended the Pilgrims were the Wampanoag.

"Wampanoag" means People of the Dawn. They lived on Cape Cod, Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard and inland. Today Wampanoag continue to live in those areas. The Wampanoag Indian Program of Plimoth Plantation gives visitors insight into the history and culture of these Native Americans.

• What was the name of the baby born during the Mayflower crossing? Oceanus Hopkins.

• Mayflower's crossing took 66 days.

• When did Pilgrims first set foot on American soil? Nov. 11, 1620 on present-day Provincetown, at the tip of Cape Cod.

• First governor? John Carver.

• William Bradford's book? Of Plimoth Plantation, a history of the early years of the colony.

What To Visit

Plimoth Plantation's goodwife Jane Mitchell polishes a milkpot in time for Thanksgiving celebrations. Plimoth Plantation and Sturbridge Village plan special holiday events.

Beyond today: events

Beyond Thanksgiving, Old Sturbridge is offering walking and topic tours from Dec. 2 through Feb. 13 at no charge additional to the price of admission.

Walking tours begin each half hour from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and explore the inland residences and lives of early 19th century New Englanders.

Topic tours, offered twice daily, combine an outing in the village with hands-on activity. Visitors can sign up for topic tours at the Visitors Center.

The Center Meetinghouse and the houses in the center village are open only to guided tours during weekdays during the winter, while the farm, school, stores, mills and craft shops are open for self-guided visits daily (excluding non-holiday Mondays when the village is closed). On weekends, the entire village is open for self-guided visits.

Hog butchering

On the weekend of Dec. 6 and 7, Old Sturbridge invites the public to witness hog butchering and meat processing as they happened 150 years ago.

That out of the way, Old Sturbridge will host one of its most popular events of recent years, the candlelight evenings, on Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 9 and 10, from 6 to 10 p.m.

On both evenings, the meetinghouse and the printing office will be lighted and staffed, and the Miner Grant store will be open for holiday shoppers. The Bullard Tavern will be serving soup, stew and plates of cheeses and meats along with the usual winter beverages.

Candlelight

Candlelight evenings include magic, music and participatory demonstrations in making cider and syllabub, a drink or, with gelatin added, a dessert combining wine or liquor with sweetened milk or cream.

Due to numerous public inquiries about the candlelight evenings since last year, the Old Sturbridge Visitor, a quarterly publication for "the Friends of Old Sturbridge Village," has asked members and donors to make reservations well in advance.

In January, the candlelight evenings will resume every Friday, starting on the 9th.

Camarata

The Boston Camarata is scheduled for two meetinghouse concerts on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 18, at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Boston's internationally renowned performers of early music will present "In Ducci Jubilo: An Early German Christmas."

The Bullard Tavern will offer (Please see page 6)

A Picture Of Uncontrolled Diabetes

Over 12 million Americans have diabetes. Sadly, half of them don't even know it, much less do something about it.

Uncontrolled diabetes slowly destroys parts of the body—often doing its most destructive work before you even realize it.

Since it's a disease that affects the body's ability to properly control sugar in the blood stream, cells, organs and tissue can be affected.

Two million Americans will discover that this year. From hospital beds.

Don't take reading this for granted.

It's important to understand that uncontrolled diabetes can cause permanent damage by irritating and ultimately causing blood vessels to thicken, clog or weaken.

Unfortunately, many of the body's most susceptible blood vessels are in the eyes. Five thousand people learn this annually. After they're blinded.

The first stages of vision complications caused by diabetes generally go unnoticed. But by the time blurred vision, white spots and decreased peripheral vision are detected, the actual damage is far more extensive. Blood vessels servicing the back of the eye venture forward obscuring light. Often they hemorrhage and cloud vision. Sometimes irreversibly.

What all this means is simple. Uncontrolled diabetes blinds. Fifty thousand Americans know this from experience.

Give diabetes an inch, and it'll take a foot.

A combination of nerve and blood vessel damage causes 20,000 foot and leg amputations annually among people with diabetes. Wrecked nerves tingle and grow numb. Feet that don't feel foster stubbed toes, cuts and bruises. Poor circulation prevents healing. First there's infection. Then gangrene. Then amputation.

Statistics show that 65 to 85 percent of those who have one leg amputated because of diabetes will have the other one amputated within two years.

Sex.

Half the men 50 to 60 years old who have diabetes shy away from that word. That's because they can't have it. Their nerves have been damaged so badly or their circulation is so poor they become impotent. Whatever the reason, it's an awful, demoralizing situation. For the men. And their wives.

But diabetes is sexually impartial. Women with it have a much higher risk of menstrual problems. And if they manage to become pregnant, they run a higher risk of miscarriage, cesarean delivery, fetal deformity and fetal death.

It's a heartbreaking disease. Literally.

The more sugar or glucose in the blood, the higher the chance for plaque build-up. Plaque build-up narrows the blood vessels and arteries. When they become too constricted they clot. The medical term for this is "atherosclerosis." The consequences are heart attacks and strokes.

The leading cause of kidney failure in America.

Uncontrolled glucose levels will eventually thicken the blood vessels in the kidneys so they can't properly filter out wastes. People who get diabetes before the age of 20 have an even chance of developing kidney disease before they reach 40. In some cases, the treatment is dialysis. In other cases, the treatment is transplantation.

Kidding yourself vs. actual control.

People who think their diabetes is controlled are often wrong. The sugar in their blood may be dangerously high and they don't know it. They dutifully diet, take insulin and exercise yet they continue to be devastated by complications.

Current scientific data suggests that control of blood glucose levels in the normal range may postpone or even prevent these complications. By monitoring their own blood glucose levels and controlling them through diet, exercise and medication and by knowing what to do in time of stress or common illness, most people can learn to live otherwise normal healthy lives with diabetes.

The next best thing to a cure.

At the Diabetes Treatment Center, we offer the leading and most comprehensive national treatment program available. Through a team approach, including a physician, nurse-educator, dietitian, exercise specialist, counselor and nursing staff, we stabilize blood glucose levels, then teach patients of all ages to maintain that level with self blood glucose monitoring, diet, exercise, medication and determination.

There are no miracles here. No quick fixes. Just patients cared for by bright, dedicated professionals who have made diabetes treatment their lives. And not just their living.

No, we can't cure diabetes, but when patients leave us, they understand their disease, they know what causes its complications and they know how to control their blood glucose level before it ends up controlling them. And that's the next best thing.

So how many minutes will you waste before giving us a call?

If you have diabetes or you're experiencing any of the complications mentioned here, or if you've been overly tired or thirsty, urinating frequently or having problems with blurred vision or infections that just won't heal, do what many others have already done. Call us now. We can help. We can treat your complications. And we can help you feel better. But even more, we can help you and your family live a better life with diabetes.

Moore, Redgrave star in Sweet Sue

Coppelia terrific

Sweet Sue opens at Wilbur

A.R. Gurney Jr.'s new comedy, Sweet Sue, co-starring Mary Tyler Moore and Lynn Redgrave as different personalities of the same character, plays its only pre-Broadway engagement at the Wilbur Theatre beginning Friday, Nov. 28 through Sunday, Dec. 21.

Direction is by John Tillinger, with sets designed by Santo Loquasto, costumes by Jess Goldstein and lighting by Ken Billington.

Described by Gurney as "a mating dance between a woman who falls in love with her son's college roommate and the boy who falls in love with her," Sweet Sue, a contemporary two-character play requiring a cast of four, takes place in a home in a suburb of New York during the course of a recent summer.

In addition to Moore and Redgrave, the dual role of the college roommate is played by John K. Linton and Barry Tubb.

Moore, winner of five Emmys and an Oscar nomination for Best Actress for her role in Ordinary People, was last on Broadway in a special engagement of Whose Life Is It Anyway? as the hospitalized quadriplegic, a performance which earned a special Tony Award in 1980.

Redgrave, a member of the fifth generation of England's illustrious Redgrave family of actors, and a TV favorite through her own series and many guest appearances, was last seen on Broadway two seasons ago with Rex Harrison and Claudette Colbert in Aren't We All?

Tillinger, one of the theatre's most in-demand directors, was nominated for a Tony last season for Loot, and Gurney, who has had many off-Broadway successes, will have one of his plays in a Broadway theatre for the first time.

Arthur Whitelaw has produced such hits as Butterflies Are Free and You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown, and Dick Button, who had won two Olympic Gold Medals for figure skating by the time he was 22, has been involved with Broadway and television production since presenting Hal Holbrook in Do You Know The Milky Way on Broadway in the sixties.

Performance times for Sweet Sue are: Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 8 p.m.; matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2 p.m.; Sunday at 3 p.m.: $30, $25 and $18. Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.: $32.50, $27.50 and $20. For further information regarding Sweet Sue call 423-4008. (there will be a performance Sunday, Dec. 7.)

Born to dance Coppelia

REVIEW

Coppelia is the role that Laura Young was born to dance, and it was only fitting that after her glorious performance on opening night at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts that the ballerina was honored with a memorable tribute celebrating her 25 years of loyalty and dedication with the Boston Ballet.

Many artists of Young's stature and talent would have succumbed to the lure of the New York City Ballet or the American Ballet Theatre and the many rewards of affiliation with a New York-based company, but Miss Young has been happy to remain in Boston and assist in building the reputation of the Boston Ballet Company.

There has always been a tendency on the part of too many of the unenlightened to downgrade the capabilities of artists not connected with New York companies.

As Dancemagazine Editor-In-Chief William Como noted during his post-performance salute to Young, which marked the opening of Boston Ballet's 23rd season, "It's time we honored one of our own!" Never was a tribute more deserving.

The lavish new version of the comic ballet Coppelia (or The Girl With Enamored Eyes), was a Company premiere. Set to Leo Delibes' lilting and lyrical music and choreographed after Arthur Saint-Leon, and brilliantly staged by noted Hans Brenna of the Royal Danish Ballet, Coppelia featured the internationally acclaimed Danish dance mime Bjorn Larsen as Dr. Coppélius.

The whimsical Coppelia is almost entirely a folk-character ballet, with only the Swanilda/Coppelia role danced on pointe. The czardas was first introduced into ballet in Coppelia, leading to the popularity of national and folk dance being incorporated into ballet.

Set against a fairy tale, picture book Bohemian village, framed by an arbor of white blossoms (sets by Jose Verona that even Walt Disney would have admired) this joyous ballet relates the story of the young and lovely Swanilda and her lover Franz (William Pizzuto). When Franz flirts with a pretty girl sitting on the balcony of toymaker Dr. Coppélius' home (it's actually a life-sized mechanical doll that the old, snuff-snorting eccentric has invented), Swanilda becomes piqued, denounces her fiancée, and breaks their engagement.

Swanilda finds the lost keys to Dr. Coppélius' mysterious and brooding house and enters in search of her rival, only to discover that her nemesis is merely a doll.

Franz also enters the house via a ladder to the balcony, but is discovered by Dr. Coppélius upon his return and is later drugged. Coppélius dreams of breathing life into his dolls and imagines that Franz' love for Coppelia can accomplish this feat.

Mischievously, Swanilda exchanges dress with the doll and becomes Coppelia and, momentarily, tricks Coppélius into believing that his fondest dreams have come true.

The doctor becomes enraged when he discovers the deception, but all is forgiven in the end at a colorful festival where the villagers engage in spirited dances — czardas mazurka and waltz — and the loving couple are married.

In her signature role, Young is irresistible — captivating, infectious, endearing. In both roles, technically and dramatically, she is exquisite, alternately coy and saucy, flirtatious and high-spirited, lovable and exasperating.

She moves effortlessly and is virtually lighter than air as she executes the demanding role on pointe. Her entire being is the essence of grace. Certainly the Cohasset native deserves her name above the title.

As Dr. Coppélius, Neils Larsen is ingenious, a marvel in spelling out the action, and a veritable Gippetto. Further cudos to the handsome Pizzuto, Dierdre Myles, Karl Condon, the comely corps de ballet, the colorful folk costumes, the expressive lighting of Craig Miller, and especially to Conductor Ottavio de Rosa and the wonderful orchestra in his charge.

Following the curtain was a touching retrospective slide presentation of Young's career with Boston Ballet and, at last, the introduction of Laura Young, attired in a fairy tale creation of shimmering silver designed by Fiandaca.

In a beautifully choreographed ceremony that adopted the aura of fantasy, the children of the ensemble, then the young adults, laid bouquets of flowers at their feet and bowed in homage — reminiscent of

What To Visit

Kids events set for break weeks meals following the 6:30 performance.

Although Old Sturbridge is closed on Christmas and New Year's, it will offer a variety of programs called "Explorations" from Dec. 26 through 31. These include: walking tours, farm chores, puppet shows, slide presentations, candlemaking and other hands-on demonstrations.

Kids' events

Anticipating that week in February when schools close their doors on children, causing parents to wonder what to do with them, Old Sturbridge is planning numerous activities for the 16th through the 21st at the Museum Education Building.

Other offerings of Old Sturbridge through the winter months include: "crafts-at-close-range," family workshops and evening programs, antiques identification and care (bring your own for advice), maple sugaring and more.

Admission is $8.50 for adults, $4 for children ages 6 through 15, and free for little folk.

Located on Route 20 west, Old Sturbridge Village is located near Exit 9 of the Massachusetts Turnpike.

Valentine's Day

Looking ahead to Valentine's Day, the meetinghouse concert series will continue with Banquette Musicale, one of the few permanent orchestras in the U.S. performing baroque music on original instruments.

For their 7 p.m. concert, the Boston-based group will perform works by Bach and Handel as well as other composers of the early 18th century. Once again, the ever-dependable Bullard Tavern will be open for dinner at 8:45.

Foreigner opens at Merrimack Rep

March Of The Siamese Children from The King And I — as the adoring, stand-up audience applauded wildly in approval.

Along on center stage, Young was showered with a snowfall of silver petals that cascaded down, floating, flickering and sparkling in the beams of the spotlights.

Later, Miss Young made a grand entrance, like a star of the silver screen, at the landing of the ornate marble staircase leading down to the theatre foyer (where "dress-to-the-nines" guests had gathered for the champagne reception) and, escorted arm-in-arm by Artistic Director Bruce Marks and Associate Artistic Director Bruce Wells, descended the elaborate staircase into the glittering crystal-chandeliered room.

At its conclusion, a number of donors attended a Silver Anniversary Salutory Supper hosted by the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, marking the inauguration of the Laura Young Scholarship Fund at the Boston Ballet School. It was the culmination of a truly magical evening.

The Foreigner opens at Merrimack

The Merrimack Repertory Theatre opens its eighth season this week with Larry Shue's comedy hit The Foreigner, continuing through Dec. 6.

Voted the Best New American Play for 1985 by the Outer Critics Circle, the play concerns Charlie, a shy British science-fiction proof-reader who finds excitement, adventure and romance deep in the woods of Georgia.

Playing Charlie Baker is Brad Bellamy, most recently seen as Algon in The Importance Of Being Earnest at Atlanta's Alliance Theatre.

Bellamy performed for nine seasons with the Lyceum in Missouri and can be seen in Rodney Dangerfield's HBO special It's Not Easy Being Me.

Billie Lou Watt, who plays Betty Meeks, owner of the Georgia fishing lodge, was featured in the Broadway production of Take Her, She's Mine and has appeared in numerous Broadway, Off-Broadway and regional theatre productions.

Miss Watt appeared for over twelve years as Ellie in Search For Tomorrow and was also seen on Playhouse 90 and Studio One.

Catherine, the debutante heiress, is portrayed by Leslie Hicks, who was seen last season at the Merrimack as Lettie in the murder-mystery-musical Something's Afoot.

Responsible for sets is Alison Ford who designed Chapter Two and Monday After The Miracle for MRT. Costumes are by MRT's resident designer Amanda Aldridge and lights by John Ambrosone, MRT's new lighting designer.

Performances are Mondays and Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m., Sundays at 2 p.m., and 7 p.m., and Wednesday matinees at 2 p.m. on Nov. 19 and 26. School matinees are slated for 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 3-4.

Group rates are also available. Reservations and season subscriptions are available through the box office at 454-3926.

The theatre is located in Liberty Hall, part of Lowell's Memorial Auditorium complex, located in the historic downtown district and is accessible for the handicapped.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

A triangle-marked palm is one of a series of prints in Brian Swift's photographic murals at West Newton's Chapel Gallery.

Signs, symbols mark work

"Symbolic display and gesture, and their consequent ability to evoke a strong sense of presence between themselves and a viewer, are my primary concerns in these images," says Brian Swift of his large scale photographs.

The unframed black and white prints tacked to Chapel Gallery's walls are aggressive, jarring and confrontative in their imagery. As their collective titles, Conjunction Incantations and Gestural Evocations, suggest, the photographs effect a visual ritual, its sources often nameless and its spell cast through the enlarged, assertive scale, combination of images and proximity of subject.

Like dreams, Swift's images are at once arcane and familiar.

Flesh plays an important role, often visceral in its presence and sometimes layered and blurred, with more abstract associations.

Hard, jagged rock surfaces frequently form some visual relationship with the flesh, either in the same photograph or side by side, in another print. The surfaces of both, while never penetrated, are always changed in some way.

Scar-like markings, reflective pools and smeared liquids, and print manipulation by the artist conjure a myriad of associations, signs and symbols.

Light changes, context shifts, and tone moves from glaring white to brooding darks throughout the individual pieces of the exhibition. But the repetition of image and relentlessly aggressive large scale give continuity to the work, contributing to the total mural-like effect and the artist's and viewer's "incantation."

Chapel Gallery is located in the former Youth Chapel of The Second Church in Newton at 60 Highland St. The exhibition continues through Nov. 23 and may be seen Thursday through Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m., in conjunction with events at the church and by appointment.

Update — New Work From Old Friends, a group show of painting, drawing, prints and kinetic sculpture, opens at Chapel Gallery Nov. 28. The public is invited to a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. Nov. 30 honoring the four artists featured: Bert Snow, Pat Fouraker, Ruth Fields and George Herman.

For further information call 332-7782 or 244-4039.

Tolkien fantasy is Shubert offering

Bilbo, Frodo at Shubert

The Lord Of The Rings, the Theatre Sans Fil's spectacular stage adaptation of the J.R.R. Tolkien fantasy classic, continues its tour of the U.S. and Canada as it opens at the Shubert Theatre, 265 Tremont St., through Sunday, Nov. 23.

Under the direction of Andre Viens, Artistic Director of the world-famous Theatre Sans Fil, The Lord Of The Rings combines a large company of puppeteers, actors and actresses portraying 70 characters, music, and mind-blowing special effects to create a work that forges new theatrical territory while remaining faithful to Tolkien's original vision.

The Theatre Sans Fil was founded in 1971 by Claire Ranger and Andre Viens, who are still the directors of this unique company today. Since that time, they have attained world-wide acclaim through their novel and adventurous productions. J.R.R. Tolkien wrote The Hobbit in 1936, and the adventures of Bilbo gave birth to the famous trilogy, The Lord Of The Rings, which took him 12 years to write. This magical story was published in the early 1950s and achieved immediate success.

When it reached America in the '60s, its popularity soared. Adults and adolescents alike read and re-read Tolkien. His joyous characters, a little naive, generous and very peaceful, are comforting and know how to face challenges.

Many American colleges and universities formed Hobbit Societies which exist to this day. Even now, Tolkien's work is unanimously hailed as a masterpiece of fantasy.

The Lord Of The Rings is presented by the Theatre Sans Fil in collaboration with The National Arts Center Theatre and Nouvelle Compagnie Theatrale.

Performances are at 8 p.m.; and matinees on Saturday, Nov. 22 at 2 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 23, at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. Phone reservations, call Telecharge and Group Sales at 1-800-233-3123. For more information call the Shubert Theatre at 426-4520.

Open carnival at Goodspeed

Now in its final weeks of performances, the family musical Carnival! continues to win critical acclaim at the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam.

Good seats are available for special performances during Thanksgiving week: Tuesday, Nov. 25 at 8 p.m.; Wednesday, Nov. 26 at 2:30 and 8 p.m.; Friday, Nov. 28 at 2:30 and 8 p.m.; Saturday, Nov. 29 at 5 and 9 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 30 at 3 p.m.

Carnival! plays through Sunday, Dec. 7, with regular curtain times Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m.; Saturday at 5 and 9 p.m.; Sunday at 3 p.m. and a Wednesday matinee at 2:30 p.m.

"The Goodspeed revival of Carnival! turns the whole theater into a circus arena... deliciously high-spirited," wrote Stephen Holden of The New York Times.

"Everything about the Goodspeed Opera House production of Carnival! is a delight... from the moment she enters, Ann Talman captures the audience's heart."

wrote Michael Burlingame of New London Day.

As Lili, Talman plays the innocent French waif who joins a traveling circus in this dazzling tale of romance and magic.

For tickets call the Goodspeed Opera House box office, (203) 873-8668.

Biloxi Blues colors Boston

Neil Simon's new Broadway comedy hit, Biloxi Blues, opens at the Shubert Theatre in Boston for a three-week engagement Tuesday, Nov. 25 and continues through Saturday, Dec. 13.

Winner of Broadway's 1985 Tony Award for Best Play, Biloxi Blues is the second chapter in the autobiographical trilogy by Neil Simon.

The new comedy follows the life and times of Eugene Morris Jerome, whom audiences were able to see through puberty in Brighton Beach Memoirs.

The Depression years are done, it is 1943 and Eugene, now 19 years old, has gone off to war.

Now Eugene in Biloxi Blues is not only fighting the enemy, but the rigors of basic training, the heat, unfriendly sergeants and the intellectual and sexual growth in Biloxi, Mississippi.

William Ragsdale plays Eugene, who writes down all he sees and hears, hoping to be a writer. Later he will learn to savor what he has experienced.

The drill sergeant of every soldier's memory is being played by John Finn. Others featured in the cast are Andrew Polk, John C. MacKenzie, Michael McNeill, David Warshofsky and John Younger. Kathy Danzer plays the scarlet lady of Biloxi, and Amy Ryan portrays Eugene's first love.

Produced by Emanuel Azenber, Biloxi Blues was directed by Gene Saks, who won the Tony Award as Best Director for the comedy. The sets for the show were designed by David Mitchell, Ann Roth did the costumes and Tharon Musser designed the lighting.

For tickets and further information, call 426-4520. Biloxi Blues is a Shubert Subscription Attraction and a Show-of-the-Month Attraction.

*'Twas the month before Christmas,
Santa sat by the fire
He needed more elves.
But didn't know who to hire
He sipped his hot chocolate with a sigh of dismay
So much work to do in so very few days!
Then what to his tired old eyes should appear,
But this week's "What's Up" section and he got an idea!
He opened it up with a jolly Ho! Ho! Ho!
He dialed 729-8100!
"The kids are so good" he said "So few have been bad!"
Saint Nick had to place a "HOLIDAY HELP WANTED" AD!
With each tiny applicant Santa's confidence grew,
As he happily conducted each elf interview!
His inventory grew as they stocked all his shelves,
His workshop now bustling with busy elves!
Santa sat back and counted the days till his ride,
So relieved that he'd called CENTURY CLASSIFIEDS!*

CHECK OFFER WITH CARE

Your home has been for sale, inspected and the latest enthusiastic prospect presents you with an "offer" to buy. Review this offer with care. It's an extremely important part of the sale.

Are all names correct? Is the property correctly described? Is the mortgage information accurate? Can you move by the possession date? Is the purchase price satisfactory?

Then double check your calculations to be sure you know how much cash you will receive. If you have any doubts about points contained in the offer do not sign it until they have been completely removed from your mind.

The offer to purchase is binding on the purchaser for the amount of time stated in the offer. You can accept it without change. You can let it expire, or you can consider changes. If you change anything in the offer you are reversing the process and making an "offer to sell" to purchaser who then has the same options.

Before you sign, be certain that it clearly states all the points of agreement because the sale will be according to the letter of that script.

Audi Remanufactured Parts. Built Like New. Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit — alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts — is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts. • The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

*Ask for Autobahn or Audi Limited Warranty at our Parts Department.

Sachems, Woburn to clash for Super Bowl berth

By DAVID DEMARCO

Emotions will run high for both sides when Winchester High School visits Woburn High at 10:15 a.m. Thanksgiving Day.

The winning team will play in the Division I Super Bowl at Sullivan Stadium in Foxboro, all but certainly against Peabody.

The loser is done for the season. The key to the traditional Thanksgiving class this year is simple. It's Winchester's offense versus Woburn's defense.

Key: the tackles

Probably the most important battle will be on the line between Sachem offensive tackles Mike Vozzella and David Carter and Woburn's defensive tackles Tom Qualey and Martin Popoloski.

Woburn runs a straight 50 defense and plays man-to-man coverage in the secondary. During the season, the Tanners have executed their defense well.

Woburn's coaching staff has such strong faith in the defense that the Tanners stay in their 50 formation even inside their own 10-yard line. Most teams put six men on the line then.

Moving the defensive tackles won't be an easy assignment for Winchester, Qualey and Popoloski each weigh about 340 pounds.

If the Tanners have a weakness, despite their strength up the middle, it's lateral pursuit and pass coverage. Winchester should be able to run off tackle Thursday. Despite their size, or perhaps because of it, Popoloski and Qualey are slow to the flats while Woburn linebackers are not overpowering as in years past.

Woburn's secondary likes to play up close, which may mean the Winchester passing attack will be opened a bit.

During the Tanners' only blemished game this fall, the Melrose tied Raiders were able to run the ball outside and complete passes to the hook and flat zones. With the speed and moves of Winchester halfback Darn Cromwell, the outside game should be there.

Unlike the past two years, Winchester sports a balanced attack this year. The Sachems can both run and throw.

Winchester's biggest potential weapon is the pass. At any moment, Winchester can go deep for serious yardage gains. So if Woburn's secondary plays up tight to stop the Sachems' running game, look for quarterback John DeMarco to throw.

Woburn has not faced a team as (Please see SACHEMS, page 15)

Firefighters' raise of 4.5 percent approved

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Winchester firefighters will soon get a 4.5 percent raise.

Town meeting members voted Monday to approve funds for a new two-year contract between the town and the 48 employees of the fire department.

The contract grants a 4.5 percent raise in each year between July 1, 1986, and June 30, 1988.

One contract is still unsigned. Negotiations between the town and the police patrolmen's union have been formally accepted for mediation before the State Joint Labor Management Committee.

Another provision of the new contract will limit the amount of time firefighters can spend repairing non-municipally owned vehicles while on duty.

Town manager Chad Maurer said firemen have done such work so "many years" that the practice has become, under the law, a "condition of employment." The contract will limit the practice, he said.

The contract also includes a "sick leave buyback" provision.

The town will pay $30 a day to each fireman who has accrued 90 days of sick time for the unused portion of the annual increment of 15 days.

Employees can choose not to sell the days "back" to the town but instead accumulate them in a "sick bank" for up to 150 days and collect $10 per day.

New restrictions on the self-improvement program will provide reimbursement for only those firemen who earn C grades in a course and are working continuously toward a degree.

Increased cost of the new contract is $61,500, to be taken from "free cash" or unexpended surplus.

Town meeting members also dealt briefly with several other issues Monday. They dissolved 12 inactive committees created by previous town meetings.

A new committee was created to study ways to minimize the cost of solid waste disposal. Walter Farrell said the committee could investigate more recycling, alternate methods of disposing of biodegradable materials, new regulations and a public awareness program.

The committee will include appointees by selectmen, the finance committee, the board of health, the conservation commission, the department of public works and the moderator.

An article to purchase or take by eminent domain a lot on Mount Vernon Street, opposite the fire station and in front of the Mill Pond building, was indefinitely postponed.

Negotiations with the owner are continuing, selectman Wade Welch said. He also assured planning board member Dan Chane that "a three-story building" will not be built there in the next year.

"This is not a dead issue for the selectmen," Welch said.

Town will buy Cross Street duplex to end two-year squabble

By GEORGE DERRINGER

Winchester's long housing struggle is over with approval five new family units and a town-owned duplex on Cross Street.

Town meeting members voted unanimously Monday to purchase a duplex at 301-303 Cross St. The purchase will complete the town's promise to the state to provide seven units of Section 705 "low-to-moderate income housing."

Nearly two years after selectmen, planning board members and housing authority members contracted with the state for seven units, it was the housing authority's suggestion that sealed the deal Monday.

The end came with a whimper, not a bang. None of the neighbors of other possible sites had to speak.

Town meeting members agreed to buy the duplex for $200,000. They will use $36,000 of town money to supplement $164,000 the housing authority will receive from the state Executive Office of Communities and Development.

Under terms of the agreement, the town will also install granite curbing along 2,500 feet of George, Bradford and Charles roads, also in front of properties owned by Arnold Mason, owner of the duplex to be sold to the town.

Curbing will cost $50,000. Town manager Chad Maurer said curbs will be installed in the spring.

"In effect," he said, "the duplex will cost the town $225,000" because curbing projects are shared 50-50 by the town and property owners under usual circumstances. The town would have had to pay $25,000 for curbing the three streets eventually anyway, he said.

An important condition is that the sale must be completed by Jan. 1, 1987. Maurer said state officials have promised to release $82,000 each for all of Winchester's seven units as quickly as possible.

Three others units will be built on Palmer Street near the Mary Murphy Apartments, one will be at the corner of Cambridge and High streets and one in a corner of Mullen Park on Lockeland Road.

Final costs of those units are not available but more town money is likely to be needed.

During Monday's session of town meeting, it was quickly apparent that purchase of the Cross Street duplex had overwhelming support.

Town manager Maurer, who took part in the negotiations with owner Mason, urged support. He said appraisals of the property were $220,000 and $240,000.

Mary Meader, chairman of the housing authority, also urged support. She said the authority attempt to build two units on the Woburn Loop, a former railroad right-of-way, near Cross Street had been frustrated by the secretary of transportation.

An appeal to Gov. Michael Dukakis a couple of months ago has still not been answered, she said.

Selectman Wade Welch said his board unanimously favored the purchase and Maryann McCall Taylor, chairman of the planning board, had an identical report.

Gerry Focari, chairman of the finance committee, defused any argument that the town refuse to build Section 705 units and thereby give up state "discretionary funding."

Polcari estimated losses of $2.5 million in economic development funds, about $10 million in water and sewer grants and $2 million to $3 million in school funds.

The finance committee believes the town is ill-prepared to forego these funds.

To be declared unreasonably restrictive of housing would place us in direct confrontation with the state, in a battle we can't win," Polcari said.

Finance committee members also favored the Cross Street purchase, he concluded.

Maurer assured the meeting that the duplex is in good condition.

William S. Stroud, a near neighbor of the Cross Street property and a town meeting member, said he also favored the purchase.

"That might come as a shock," he said. "But now I know where to go when there is a problem." He also said town meeting members should remember that Precinct 8 had done its share of housing issues were raised in the future.

Without audible dissent, town meeting approved the purchase, thereby rejecting 14 other lots on eight sites that had also been considered as alternatives to the Woburn Loop.

Funds for the total project, including $50,000 for curbing, will include $164,000 from the state, $13,000 in unexpended funds appropriated by the spring town meeting for school roads and $23,000 appropriated for temporary loans for the town hall renovation project but not needed for fiscal 1987.

Local man to return to Pearl Harbor

Joseph Asaro of Winchester will find a different Pearl Harbor next month when he returns to the base where he was stationed that "Day of Infamy."

Asaro, Winchester's only remaining survivor of the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor, will leave Dec. 2 for a 45th anniversary reunion with other survivors.

About 200 will go from Boston for about 10 days, Asaro said.

Asaro, a sergeant with the U.S. Army Cavalry "back train" in 1941, said he is "lucky to be alive."

When Japanese aircraft attacked the Schofield barracks at 7:55 a.m. that morning, Asaro was gone.

"I liked to get breakfast early Sunday mornings, so I was already coming out of the shower room, headed for the mess hall," Asaro says.

"It's a good thing I was. My room, clothing and bed were all shot full of bullets by Japanese machine gun fire," he says.

Asaro jumped in a haystack and broke his ankle. "At the time, the only important thing was trying to stay alive."

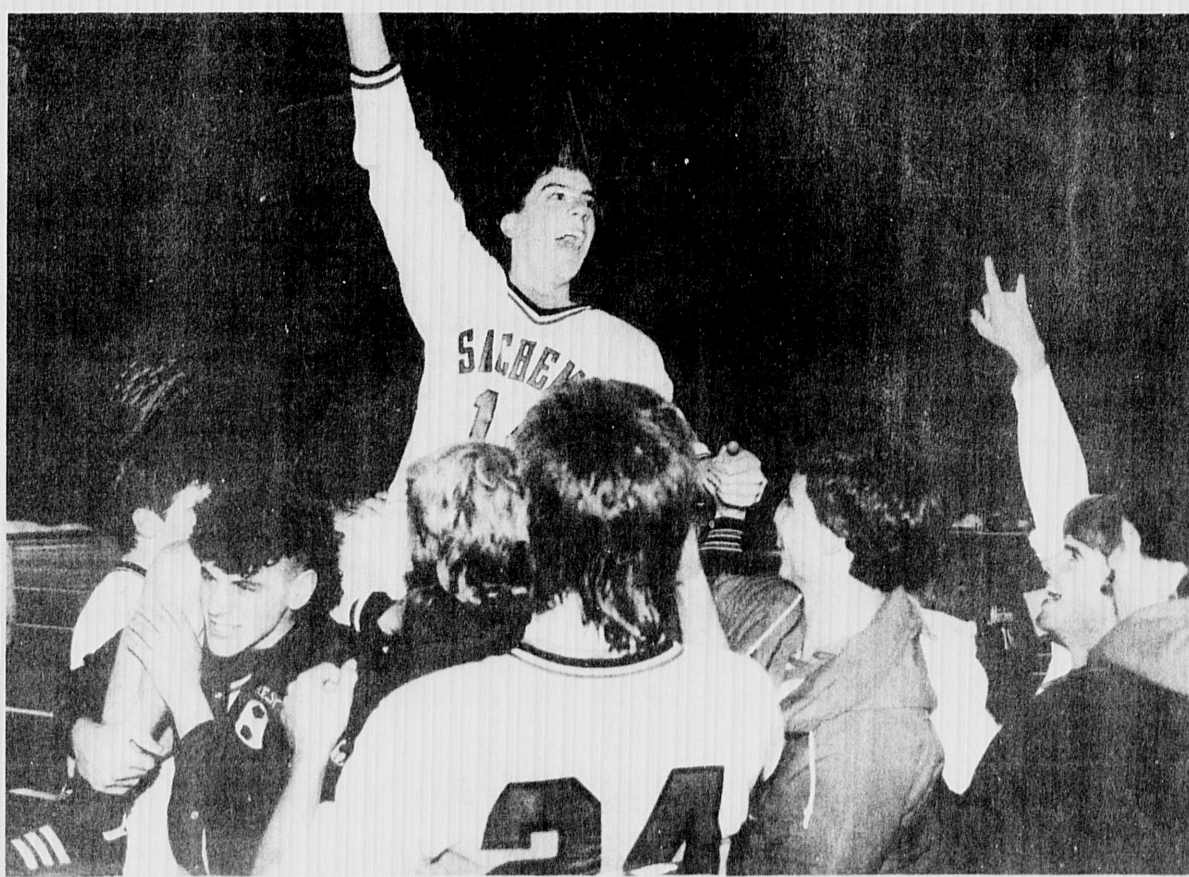

For almost 45 years so far, Asaro has succeeded. He will join about 10,000 other survivors for memorial ceremonies at the USS Arizona, including a mass funeral and other services. (Please see VE1, page 4)

Tree lighting to be Dec. 4

The annual Winchester tree lighting ceremony will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, on the common.

According to Catherine Alexander, director of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, all-star choruses from all public elementary schools will sing at 7 p.m.

Stores will be open and several will host open houses and provide refreshments.

POLICE LOG

Monday, Nov. 24

At 7 a.m., a Pontiac Sunbird owned by a Garfield Road resident rolled down Brookside Avenue, striking a 1966 Cadillac Eldorado which belonged to residents of the street.

The Sunbird was towed from the scene of the accident.

Sunday, Nov. 23

At 1:17 a.m., police were called to Main Street and Fairview Terrace to investigate a disturbance.

Two individuals phoned police after an argument occurred in the 1966 Olds Cutlass in which they were passengers. They claimed that the driver, a Somerville man, "went crazy."

Two other individuals got out of the vehicle and one slashed the tires of the vehicle so that the driver would not run them over.

Fighting broke out outside the vehicle between the driver and the passengers.

Although police believed all three to have been drinking, the driver passed the dexterity test.

Following the incident, the individuals left by taxi.

At 5:08 a.m., police were called to George Road when residents complained of property damage after a party next door to their home. Police found that a vehicle had struck the protective railing of their gas main.

Although police found tire tracks leading from the house to the railing, no evidence of the vehicle used to make the tracks was found.

At 11:11 a.m., a Myopia Road resident stated that a black pick-up truck with three males pulled up and one passenger rang the bell. When the resident failed to answer, the men pulled a ladder from the truck and leaned it against the house.

At this point, the resident confronted the men, who were evasive and said they had the wrong house.

A warrant check found the owner of the truck to be an Arlington resident and a cruiser was dispatched to his home.

No vehicle was in sight.

Saturday, Nov. 22

At 12:23 a.m., officers Benson and Romeo were summoned to Winchester Hospital when a patient, treated for a lacerated finger, struck and shattered a lamp in the waiting room.

Police pursued the individual, who drove a 1975 white Oldsmobile Cutlass, west on George Street and brought him to a stop on Conant Road.

The driver, a Charles Road resident, was arrested for being a minor in possession of alcohol, no license in possession and malicious damage to property.

The passenger, a resident of Burlington, was charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol.

At 1:55 p.m., a motor vehicle accident occurred at the corner of Mt. Vernon and Main streets.

A 1980 Buick Century, operated by a Charles Road resident, struck a 1982 Ford driven by an Arlington resident, on the right rear while traveling north through the rotary.

Both vehicles were towed, no injuries were reported.

At 2 p.m., a 1981 Volkswagen belonging to a Newton resident rolled down Myrtle Terrace and struck a 1981 Toyota parked in a driveway on Myrtle Street.

Damage occurred to the porch of the Myrtle Street home.

At 1:39 a.m., police were alerted to a Black Mazda that was spotted while an occupant was depositing beer bottles onto Washington Street.

After stopping the vehicle, police noticed two six packs of beer in the back of the car. A warrant check showed the driver, a Fairmont Road resident, was wanted to answer a warrant for speeding.

The driver was arrested and charged with a minor transporting alcohol and littering.

He was later bailed and released.

Friday, Nov. 21

At 7:45 a.m., police were called to a motor vehicle accident on Pond Street.

A Dotham Street resident, traveling west in a 1983 Mercury Sedan, crossed a center line while negotiating a right bend on Pond Street.

The vehicle struck a 1985 Chevy Chevette, owned by a Johnson Road resident, traveling east on Pond Street.

No injuries were reported.

At noon, police arrested George Kelley, 21, and Joseph Arbogast, 22, both of Everett, on charges of breaking and entering with an intent to commit a felony, into a Sheridan Circle residence.

The incident occurred Nov. 18, when a resident of Sheridan Road reported to police that her bedroom had been ransacked sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

The next day, neighbors reported having seen two men at the property at the time the incident was believed to have occurred.

Police said they seized two handguns, ammunition, jewelry, a fur coat, water pipes, frebase pipes and scales. A VCR and jewelry were returned to the owner.

Kelley is due back in court Dec. 9. Arbogast will return Dec. 10.

Young people to demonstrate 'whole brain ed'

A burglar causes a fire that leaves a family homeless, a burglar is caught with counterfeit lottery tickets, and a banker gives a loan to a foxy customer in a human fable based on Aesop's animal tale, "The Fox and the Crow."

These scenes created at the Winchester Drama Workshop will be presented at an open demonstration at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, in the social studies open area at the high school.

Teachers, group leaders and all interested in using the expressive arts in "whole brain education" are invited, along with families and friends of present and future participants.

The group has been working for 10 Wednesday afternoons in a holistic drama education program coordinating mind and body through yoga, sensory awareness, mime, movement, theater games and improvisation.

In the first scene created from life experience, Katie Oman plays the burglar who displaces Mark Ailshie, Alexandra Halchek and their mother, Amanda Curtis. Julia Kimball is a friend in need.

The second original scene portrays Matthew Ducharme and Fabio Pari forging a lottery ticket while they get away with it or be foiled by secret observer Kelly Ferrone? If lottery officials Carol Ailshie and Jessica Bradley believe her, all is lost!

After performing "The Fox and the Crow," the third group will transform it into a human fable with a similar plot and characters. Ruchika Mandhayan plays a "foxy" borrower who succeeds in extracting a loan from banker Lisa Marie DiFonso the "crow" after Kyle Ambrose, Rebecca Gulati and Katie Nowell have failed.

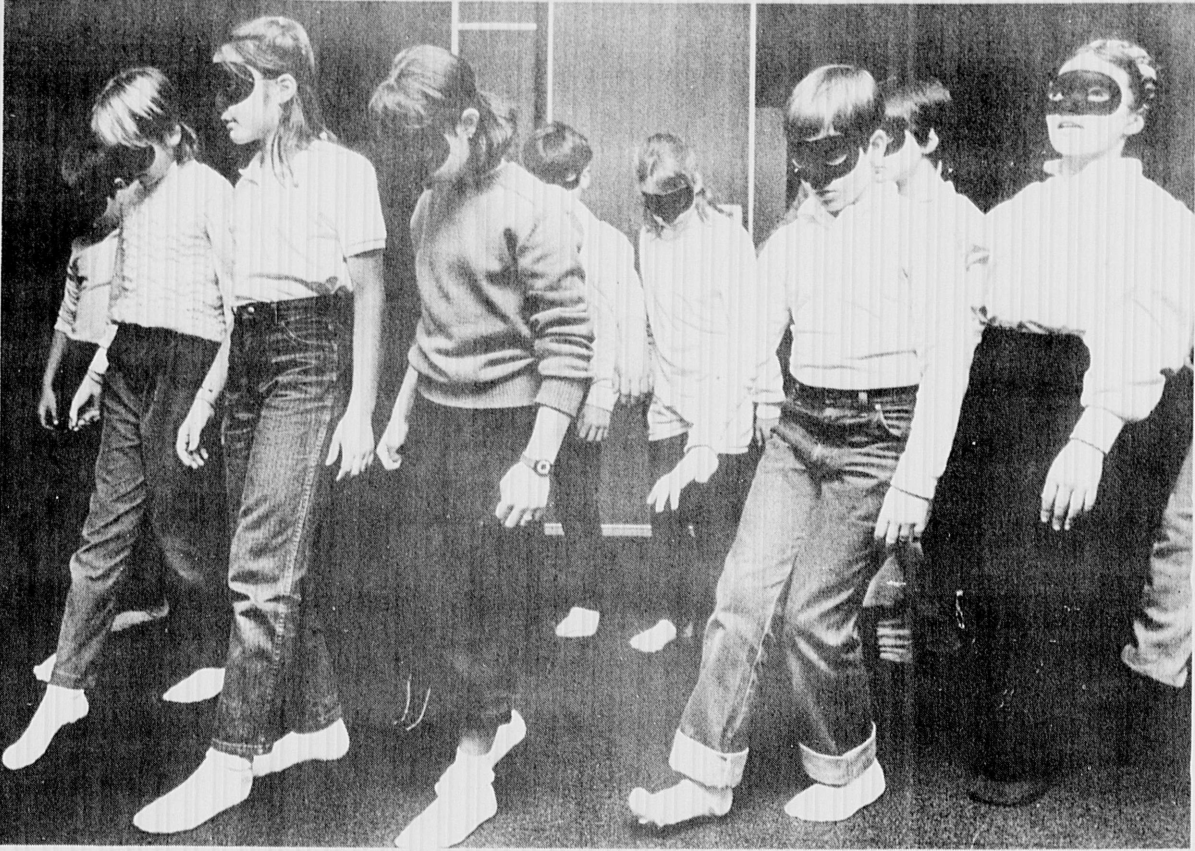

Arup De and Christina Manzo from the Junior High Drama Workshop have served as assistants throughout the series, helping the groups to develop scenes. Guest guitarist Marilyn Ailshie, will accompany the yoga salute to the sun with the song, "Morning Has Broken."

The Recreation Dept. appreciates the financial aid from the EnKa Society that makes this program available for a minimal registration fee. Further information may be obtained from Paulett Paggart, Winchester Drama Workshop, 17 Ridgfield Road, 729-6666.

Fuel assistance funds offered

Residents of Winchester having difficulty paying heating bills may apply for federal fuel assistance.

Call 322-6284 for information.

Actors journey through earth's environments wearing the neutral mask of basic mime at the Winchester Drama Workshop. A group of third-through sixth-graders will offer an open demonstration, co-sponsored by the recreation department, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, in the social studies area of the high school.

Girl Scouts celebrate 75th anniversary

The Girl Scouts are 75 years old and looking for volunteers to help plan the fun. Anyone who was a Girl Scout, or wanted to be one, can lend a hand for one of the biggest birthday parties of the year.

Volunteers are needed in areas from event planning and sign-making to folk dancing and photography. Winchester Girl Scouts can use the help of anyone who has a talent, career expertise or skill to share for the celebration.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for people to offer a single commitment to Girl Scouting in their hometown," said 75th Anniversary Service Unit Liaison Mary Ducey. "Since the 75th Anniversary celebration is for former Girl Scouts as well as current members, we'd like everyone to be included in festivities and fun."

For more information, contact Ducey at 10 Wellington Road or call the Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council.

Reinhardt cheers for St. Michael's

Carol Reinhardt of Winchester is a member of the St. Michael's College varsity cheerleading team which recently entered the Fod College Cheerleading Championship.

More than 200 college and university cheerleading squads will compete for a trip to San Diego and the finals Jan. 10.

Pearl Harbor vet to return

President Reagan is expected to lead a special ceremony Dec. 7.

Asaro says he is still puzzled why the Japanese didn't actually invade Hawaii in 1941. "They could have taken the island over in no time," he says.

An immediate concern of Americans was the loyalty of Hawaiians of Japanese origin.

"About 80 percent of the people were at least part Japanese," he says. "And Japanese people worked in the pineapple fields near Wheeler Field and in the home garden."

But few Japanese-Americans sided with the emperor, although two Japanese-American units of the National Guard were sent to the European front by President Franklin Roosevelt.

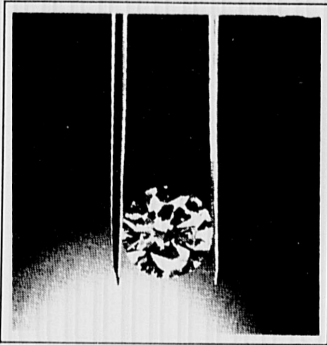

"They turned out to be two of the best fighting units in Europe," Asaro says.

Asaro says he wants to see both the people and places he remembers from 45 years ago. It's not a pleasant memory, he says, but it will never fade.

REAL ESTATE TODAY

Ann Blackham C.R.B.

PUT IT IN WRITING

Try this situation on for size. In order to "save" some money you decide to sell on your own. You advertise your house and a prospect drops by and tells you he wants the house at the price you're asking and—asks you to please take it off the market and hold it for him for a month. No papers signed, no earnest money down. This is a disaster waiting to happen. One disagreement and the whole deal is off.

As a rule, agreements for the sale of real estate must be in writing to be enforceable. A sincere buyer (the kind a Realtor would bring you) should have no qualms about signing a written agreement which spells out the terms, date of closing and other specifications. Any hesitation to sign such an agreement would indicate that your prospect is not really a buyer in the first place.

In addition, the buyer should be willing to produce a substantial amount of earnest money to be held in trust until closing. This is the LEAST you can expect when you deal with a Realtor.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

LOOKING AT OPEN HOUSES

Going to an "open house" can be a good way to begin your house-hunting efforts. It gives you relatively easy access to many houses, as well as offering you the opportunity to explore different neighborhoods in which you might choose to live.

Most open houses are held on weekends, especially on Sunday afternoons. You may find them advertised in the local newspaper or see signs pointing to the properties that are on display. It's best to plan your outing using a good map and the Sunday classified section. Next, plan your itinerary, noting where the promising homes are located and the hours that they'll be shown. Don't forget to bring your note pad. It'll come in handy in remembering the special features of each of the homes you'll be viewing.

If you don't find the perfect home through open house viewing, our real estate agents can show you other choice properties in the neighborhoods you prefer. Remember, many of the best homes won't be on the market long enough to be an "open house."

If you're planning a move, please contact the professionals at Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Call us at 729-7000, or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson St., Winchester.

LIBRARY NEWS

Art exhibit open, computer 'down'

A new show has opened at the Winchester Public Library's art gallery. Titled "Drawings," the exhibit features seven large colored pencil and crayon drawings by Cambridge artist Martha Lehtola.

Says the artist, "The subjects are common household objects. A dinner napkin, dish towels and the design on a sugar bowl provide their starting point." Paintings range from figurative to abstract, and all display a wonderful sense of color and texture.

The exhibit runs through Dec. 14 at the library. The gallery is open during all regular library hours. For information, call 721-7171.

Computer improvement coming
The automated circulation systems has been in place at the library for well over a year, handling check-in and check-out of materials, reserves and patron notices. In early December the Minuteman Network, of which the Winchester Public Library is a member, will begin a major improvement equipment and software.

New data disks will allow the system to store more data and new computer programs will allow member libraries to provide more efficient service.

During installation, computers will be "down" at the library. Patrons may still check materials in and out.

The staff will record loans on paper and key the information into the computer when the system comes back "up."

Other services, such as checking the computer to see if books are on the shelf, or finding out which other libraries have an item, will be impossible while the computers are down.

Installation is scheduled Monday, Dec. 1, through Monday, Dec. 8. Requests for transfer of materials from other libraries will not be taken until installation is complete. The staff appreciates the public's patience and understanding during this time.

A series of "drop-in" story times for children aged 3-5 will begin Thursday, Dec. 4, in the junior library. Programs Dec. 4 and 18 will run from 1:30 to 2 p.m. A pajama story hour is scheduled from 7 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 11. No advance registration is required.

Closed Thanksgiving
The Winchester Public Library will be closed for Thanksgiving but will re-open at 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 28.

Cable shows win nominations

Two locally-produced programs of Continental Cable of Winchester have been nominated for awards in state-wide contest sponsored yearly by the Massachusetts Cable Television Commission.

Winners will be named during Dec. 11 ceremonies at Gardner Auditorium in the State House.

Programs receiving nomination were "Sachem Update," produced by Mark Ockerbloom and an entry in the sports category, and "Cancer Today," produced by Drew Bouldin and nominated in the public affairs category.

Ockerbloom, a resident of Winchester, produced "Sachem Update," which was the predecessor of his current show "Middlesex League Scoreboard."

"There were only three systems with multiple nominations, so Winchester was represented quite well," said community services director Drew Bouldin.

The Winchester Garden Club will host a greenery sale from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3, at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church. From left are club members Florence Gosselin, Marjorie Zani, Mary Patricia Walsh, Ellen Browning, Marjorie Berger and Ruth Tunnicliffe, all busy making wreaths and Christmas tree ornaments for the sale. Home and Garden Club's 'Greens Sale' slated Dec. 3

The "Greens Sale" of the Winchester Home and Garden Club will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3, at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

Fresh Christmas wreaths, pine cone rings, decorative ornaments, swags, scrolls and candle-holders, plus baskets filled with pine and holly will make this sale one of the most colorful of the season.

The horticulture table will have plants, bulbs and partridge berry bowls arranged by Rachel Cook and Pat Byrne.

Rita Corcoran and her committee promise an interesting Christmas bake table.

Luncheon will be served at 11:30 a.m. Centerpieces for the tables have been designed by Grace Dignam. Betty Chevalo is in charge of waitresses.

Helen Hodgdon has planned a delicious buffet with the famous desserts from club members to be included. Price will be $4.50. Reservations for the luncheon may be made by calling Marjorie Zani, 729-7371, or Marjorie Berger, 729-4693.

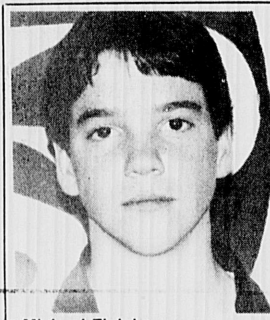

In case of a snow emergency cancellation, the sale will be Thursday, Dec. 4.

Two chosen to youth symphony

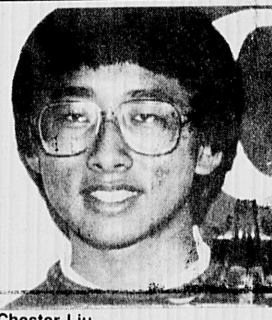

Winchester residents Michael Fieleke and Chester Liu have been selected to play percussion and the cello, respectively, with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GBYSO) at Boston University.

GBYSO includes more than 200 elementary and high school students from 80 communities throughout New England.

In its 29th season and under the musical direction of Elji Oue, GBYSO will perform this year in Boston, Cambridge and Worcester.

Thanks to Winchester, refugee families will have very happy Thanksgiving

By MIRIAM MARECEK-ZEMAN

At this special season of Thanksgiving, many of us will bow our hearts with grateful thanks for the many blessings we have received.

Just like the first Pilgrims, refugee families will join us to celebrate their first Thanksgiving in their new apartments in America.

In the spirit of this great American holiday, I send a huge bouquet of thanks to you in Winchester who have given of yourselves to help those in need. Many have donated valuable professional services joyously.

On behalf of all the refugee families, who join me in wishing you a truly thankful Thanksgiving, we send a special bouquet of thanks to:

• Pediatrician Dr. Don McLean, who has yet to send us a bill for all the sick refugee children he has treated.

• Physicians Dr. Jonathan Adler and Dr. Robert Shirley, who have provided medicine and free services to refugee families.

• Dentists Dr. Dick Norberg and Dr. J.D. Murray, who have fixed every filling and have been seen by Santa Claus delivering bags of goodies to families all over Greater Boston each Christmas, not to mention truckloads of furniture from the Rotary Barn.

• Dentist Dr. Richard Bush, who provided root canals without pain or cost for refugees.

• Winchester Rotary Club members, who thought of all the refugee families this summer and provided free tickets to the Boston Pops for them. Mention of the concerts still brings tears of joy to the families. They were a treat still cherished.

• Cathy Alexander and her staff, who have given free tickets to the best children's plays.

• School nurse Carol Kent, who follows each case closely and manages to arrange camp scholarships through the kindness of the EnKa Society.

• Betty Wolsky of Kids' Corner, who understands the difficulties facing refugee parents or single parents and helps find scholarships.

• All those school principals and teachers who have made their schools the happiest welcoming places for each child after his stressful months in refugee camps.

• Librarians Heidi Zeibig and Ginny White, who warmly receive all these children and watch over them daily. Some are too big for Kids' Corner and too lonely to stay home alone until the end of a work day. They have found our library the happiest place to visit after school.

• Real estate agents, especially Sherman Josephson, who refused fees for finding apartments, William Caci and Mr. Johnson of Johnson Apartments, who leased his apartments to refugee families, and all those who have rented places to these new families.

• Ken Vacovec, who provided legal services, and Walter Swap, who supported refugee work through Interfaith.

• All the religious congregations who have reached out through their social concerns and "adopted" families to erase many of their anxieties.

• Special thanks to Lucy Peck, whose phone is busy with refugee calls from morning to night, and to June Cannon, and to Pam Purdy, whose family of four children is never too large to add those in need of happier moments at holidays.

• To the ministers and rabbis who have supported Winchester Interfaith, the foundation for all the refugee and social service work here in Winchester.

• Special thanks to the Rev. David Purdy, who has made his church a welcoming home. Holiday events there, at the United Methodist Church, are always bi-cultural and often even bilingual.

• Most of all, thanks to you, my friends, who have given of yourselves and of your families' precious time and talents, whether coaching soccer, providing clothing or delivering food. May each of you have a truly blessed Thanksgiving.

(Miriam Marecek-Zeman is a Winchester resident who has helped to settle many refugee families here.)

Pay Raise(H 1368)- House 84-49, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate a bill giving a $6000 pay raise to a clerk in the office of the Registrar of Probate in Middlesex County.

Supporters did not offer any arguments in favor of the bill. Opponents challenged supporters to speak in favor of the bill and said it was simply special interest legislation designed to help one person. They claimed it would open the floodgates for similar raises.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it. Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

Prevailing Wage(H 6340)- House 113-27, gave near final approval to a bill which adds language to the existing prevailing wage law. The new language would provide that only collective agreements or understandings "in the private construction industry" be used as parameters for determining prevailing wage.

Supporters, noting a recent Supreme Judicial Court ruling broadened the parameters in a case involving a housing authority's employees, said the bill simply clarifies language to reinstate the original intent of the prevailing wage law. They claimed the bill is a pro-labor one which will help workers.

Opponents said narrowing the parameters would set aside the important decision and unnecessarily raise salaries. A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes. Computers(H 6467)- House 103-29, refused to reconsider its earlier approval of a $5.1 million package funding collective bargaining agreements for court employees and providing $950,000 for computer equipment, software and other expenses for the House. Debate centered around the $950,000 item.

Bill supporters said the $950,000 was necessary to modernize the operation of the House and claimed the investment could actually save money in the long run. Opponents said the money was not necessary and noted the cost of operating the legislature is already excessive. They also argued it was improper to attach the $950,000 item to a collective bargaining bill.

A Yea vote is for reconsidering passage of the bill. A Nay vote is for the bill. Saltmarsh voted no.

ABOUT TOWN

Church women set holiday tea

The Women's Association of the First Congregational Church invites all church women in Winchester to a traditional holiday tea from 2 to 4 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, in the Palmer Room.

The festive afternoon event is an opportunity to get together with other women in the community while enjoying tea or coffee and refreshments. No reservations are needed.

In addition, there will be a mini-fair, featuring Christmas decorations and gifts, knitted goods and mission crafts. Call 729-9180 for information.

Women, addiction to be discussed

Helen Liegakis, a registered nurse and addiction program leader at the Caulfield Center psychiatric and substance abuse unit at Choate Hospital in Woburn, will present "Addictions: Issues Facing Women and Their Families," at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 10, in the Choate cafeteria.

Liegakis will address the drug scene in social, school and business settings, and will cover the misuse of prescription drugs, and alcohol, as well as the use of 'street' drugs, including 'crack.'

Pre-registration is not required. For information call 646-1500.

Interest wins Little promotion

Arthur D. Little, Inc., of Cambridge has announced the appointment of Edward Interest as manager of the international consulting firm's chemical and metallurgical engineering practice.

Since joining Arthur D. Little in 1973, Interest has led assignments to evaluate and improve environmental technology for acid rain control, power plant efficiency, and synthetic fuels, and has provided technical assistance in the financing of cogeneration projects.

In his new role, Interest will oversee a group of engineering professionals involved in technical consulting to commercial and government clients in the areas of metals, petroleum, chemicals, biotechnology, energy and environmental control.

Earlier in his career, Interest worked as a process engineer at the Badger Company in Cambridge. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and a master's in business administration from Boston University.

Frank Giacomazzi, left, Winchester resident and president of the Purity Supreme Group, receives an award for his work as chairman of the "celebrity waiters luncheon" committee from Mark Mulligan, executive director of the American Lung Association of Middlesex County.

Giacomazzi honored by Lung Association

Winchester resident Frank Giacomazzi was acknowledged for his work as chairman of the 1986 Celebrity Waiters Luncheon to "knock-out" lung disease.

Giacomazzi served as a waiter at last year's luncheon and was so enthusiastic he agreed to serve as a 1986 event chairman. President of the Purity Supreme Group, he met with other businessmen and corporate executives to chair a special luncheon committee responsible for marketing the luncheon.

Giacomazzi's efforts raised more than $42,000. Funds allow the American Lung Association of Middlesex County to continue school health programs, breathing clubs, asthma clubs, smoking cessation programs and their community services.

Giacomazzi was also responsible for Frank Perdue's appearance as a celebrity waiter. Perdue joined middleweight champion "Marvelous" Marvin Hagler, Celtic great John Havlicek, Curt Gowdy, Jess Cain, Joyce Kulhawik and over 50 others who served 700 guests.

These programs are the Congressional Seminar, the Wall Street Seminar and the Presidential Classroom, all privately run. Expenses must be borne by the student.

Students interested in either the scholarships or the workshops should speak to Mr. O'Connor, social studies director, or Mrs. Watson, social studies instructional aide during the school day.

Tide pool visits
Lynch

"Look what I'm holding, the cucumber!" exclaimed Laura Buccella, as she grasped a sea cucumber, one of many invertebrates in the New England Aquarium's live tidepool exhibit which visited Lynch School Nov. 7.

Margaret Sudbury, program coordinator, took the readiness class, WIN program, and three kindergartens on a 45 minute visual voyage and hands-on exploration of life on many of our rocky eastern shores.

Sudbury said the animals she brought "need one special kind of home—water." After asking "where would you send me to find these animals?" and "what else is on the edge of the ocean?" she narrated a colorful slide presentation which showed the habitat of the animals.

Sudbury kept students engaged with questions and age-appropriate bits of tide pool information, for example: "You can't bring them home and expect them to live. They need salt water. You can't just put salt in the water," "if we didn't have seaweed we wouldn't have some of these animals," "mussels can spin a thread out like a spider and glue it on a rock."

Just as she explained how a sea urchin eats seaweed and plants, one student chimed in and said, "just like the dinosaurs!"

After pretending that they were barnacles glued to the floor, students were divided into small teams to examine four tubs filled with sea water and animals, including sea stars, sea urchins and sea anemones, mollusks and crab crustaceans. The room bubbled over with a stream of ooh's, ahs, eeks, and yuchs!

In other comments and actions from Sally White's, Betty Johnson's and Carol Lane's classes: Christopher Stevens counted the small and big legs of the crab and lobster. "Get in your shell!" he called to the hermit crab as the lobster approached. "I hope the sea cucumber doesn't squirt at me!"

Katelin Kennedy noticed the color variations among the starfish (sea stars). "It's purple and it's moving."

Andrew Gangi carefully watched the surprise openings of the sea scallop.

Jamie MacInnes commented on the sea star's texture: "When you pick it up it feels so rough—like sand paper."

Michael Ciaurro said: "I feel the urchin sucking onto my hand," while Jared Ahern said "It tickles me!"

Nicholas Beckman commented on the sea anemone: "Why doesn't he walk?" and "Boy, is he slippery."

Nils Hansen looked at the sea stars and said, "See those kinda green things, those are his eyes. It looks like somebody dancing. I'm not even scared." Much of funding for this program was made possible by the Lynch Parents Association.

Student spends Dorchester days

Recently, five juniors from The Rivers School in Weston took part in a retreat to Codman Square, a black neighborhood of Dorchester and part of the proposed city of Mandela.

Eric Hirschfeld of Winchester and four classmates spent two nights in Codman Square leading lives very different from their own in the wealthy, white suburbs of Boston. During the weekend, they discussed issues of poverty and racism, swung sledgehammers and crowbars to prepare a neighborhood storefront for renovation, toured Dorchester and Roxbury by van, and assisted the staff of a day shelter for the homeless in the Combat Zone.

Saturday night, students played a game called "Slumopoly" in which they were forced to address first-hand the issues confronting inner city residents. By the game's end, students began to feel the frustration, resignation, and hopelessness of their Codman Square neighbors.

The retreat was a joint project between The Rivers School and Christians for Urban Justice, a group committed to improving the conditions of the urban poor. The five students lived above the CUJ headquarters in Codman Square. The Rivers School is a college preparatory school for boys in grades 7-12.

Voke students
in state tests

Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School students scored above average for vocational schools in two of three areas of the Northeast Massachusetts assessment test given to all grade 11 students earlier this year.

In mathematics, Northeast juniors achieved a 1,250 average score, 50 points higher than the state average. In reading, Northeast students averaged a 1,220 score, compared to 1,180 for all vocational schools in the state.

In science, Northeast achieved an average score of 1,190, which was also the state vocational school norm.

Winchester vocational students attend Northeast, located in Wakefield.

LAWW program allows business, school alliances on work, drugs

By DIANE J. MUNINI
Laww Partnership

National attention has focused increasingly on the need for greater collaboration between business and education. Such collaborations frequently identify creative arrangements for sharing resources, human, material and financial, to promote the interests of the schools as critical community institutions.

The goal is to enrich resources available to school systems so graduating students will be more effective as citizens of the community and members of the work force.

The LAWW program is an initiative by the superintendents of Lexington, Arlington, Winchester and Woburn (LAWW) to develop a comprehensive school/business partnership program.

Planning began in early 1985. By the end of the 1985-86 school year, 34 major businesses and business associations participated in the program or pledged support.

Many school administrators have outstanding educational expertise but have little opportunity for management training to provide a shared perspective when collaborating with business.

This autumn 32 administrators eight from each town, participated in six days of management skills training. This project was the first multi-town management skills training program for school administrators and was funded through an incentive aid grant from the Executive Office of Communities and Development.

At a LAWW meeting last spring, LAWW education and business members expressed common concern about drugs and alcohol issues in our communities.

This fall, LAWW researched drug and alcohol community alliances between businesses, civic organizations and schools in the towns. LAWW also researched current drug and alcohol curriculum.

Later, administrators will share curriculum and future concerns. This LAWW focus meeting will allow school systems to trade curriculum and community approaches to drugs and alcohol and to "take home" information for their own research.

Jr. Great books training set

Places are available in a two-day training course for adult leaders in the Junior Great Books program. From 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Dec. 8 and 9 at Lynch School. The cost is $45 per leader and financial aid from the Lincoln School Association is available.

Adult leaders will be taught to introduce classic great books for reading and discussion to students from the second grade up.

For more information, contact Joanne Benton at Lincoln School, 721-7071; Robert Whitman, 721-2704; or Carolyn Harder, 729-4948.

Lucius for the birds'

Master falconer Dick Lucius will bring his "Birds of Prey" program to Muraco students Dec. 1. His program centers around a display of live North American raptors, including a red-tailed hawk, prairie falcon and great horned owl. The largest bird, a 13-pound golden eagle, is held under a special educational permit from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Also included is equipment used in the ancient sport of falconry and several one-of-a-kind reproductions of American Indian artifacts.

Doherty travels to Japan, examines cultural values

Greg Doherty, a senior at Winchester High School and son of Bernard and Barbara Doherty, continues to feel the impact of participating in The Experiment in International Living's Summer Abroad program to Japan. Summer Abroad opportunities are offered to 23 countries.

Doherty traveled with a small group of students led by a trained leader following an orientation session that acquainted members and leader, examined the cultural values of Japan and prepared them for a "homestay" through group discussions, role playing and films.

Doherty traveled with a small group and lived in a "homestay" with the Oda family of Nanao, Japan.

The "homestay" concept by which an individual learns about another culture by living as a member of a family was pioneered by The Experiment and is now recognized as one of the most effective learning tools in international education.

"My host family was wonderful," says Doherty. "They did everything for me and I felt like such a complete member of their family that I would have done anything for them."

The Experiment in International Living, founded in 1932, is a nonprofit international education organization. In its 54 years, The Experiment has grown into a world-wide endeavor to promote international understanding and service through a unique mix of programs in citizen exchange, language training, higher education and international development and training in the Third World.

NOTES FROM THE BLACKBOARD

Lincoln School Veteran's Day

Fourth grade students of teachers Steven Gorrin, Bernadette Golden, and Janet Greeno presented a Veterans Day program Nov. 10 for grade K-6.

Since Veterans' Day honors the men and women who served in the armed forces of the United States, students' reflections were filled with solemn pride in the heroism of those who died in the country's service and with gratitude for their victories. Choral questions and answers were led by Daniel Boffo.

As the finale, a flag flown over the nation's capitol was presented by former Lincoln School third graders Caitlin Maher, Timothy Zue and Brian Murdock to the Honorable Richard Horn who, in turn, handed it over to Andrew Odin, the school custodian, to raise. This special flag will fly everyday atop the school.

Special education liaison sought

Board members of the Vinson-Owen Parents' Association approved a new position for special education chairperson. A volunteer parent will act as a liaison between the special education staff and parents.

Pet Month at Lynch

The Lynch School library is celebrating pets during November, displaying posters and books about pets as well as pictures of pets drawn by students. For each book about pets they read, students may enter their names for a free book drawing.

Paul Marino of Woburn Animal Hospital visited students in the library Nov. 5. He showed slides and talked about pet care and his work as a veterinarian.

Stella Millet of the Animal Rescue League of Boston showed interested

Lynch students a movie about pet care Nov. 12.

Visitors to the library this month have been able to pet or observe several live pets, including a rabbit and a snake, courtesy of Pampered Pet Shop of Winchester.

Lincoln parents at computer class

Parent volunteers of Lincoln School kindergarten and first grade students attended their first of three computer sessions Nov. 13 at McCall Junior High.

Cathy Brodie, a Lincoln School parent, instructed the group about computer basics and helped parents become familiar with "Delta Draw," a software program for primary grade students. Once trained, classroom assistants will work with eager students.

Volunteers will help children, individually or in small groups, work on various computer-related projects. The computer assistant program, coordinated by fourth grade teacher Bernadette Golden, is in its second year.

V-O cookies raise funds

The Vinson-Owen Parents' Association's annual fund-raiser was an enormous success. Vinson-Owen students sold cookies packaged in decorative tins to support enrichment programs. Many thanks to Pat Minihane, the ways and means chairperson of the Vinson-Owen Parents' Association, for her contribution to success.

Lynch book Buddies abound

Lynch fifth and sixth graders have some new friends—kindergarten, grade one and grade two students! Older children have adopted a "Book Buddy" and get together to share a book and develop new friendships. It's a great opportunity for younger children to get to know the older children and learn from one another.

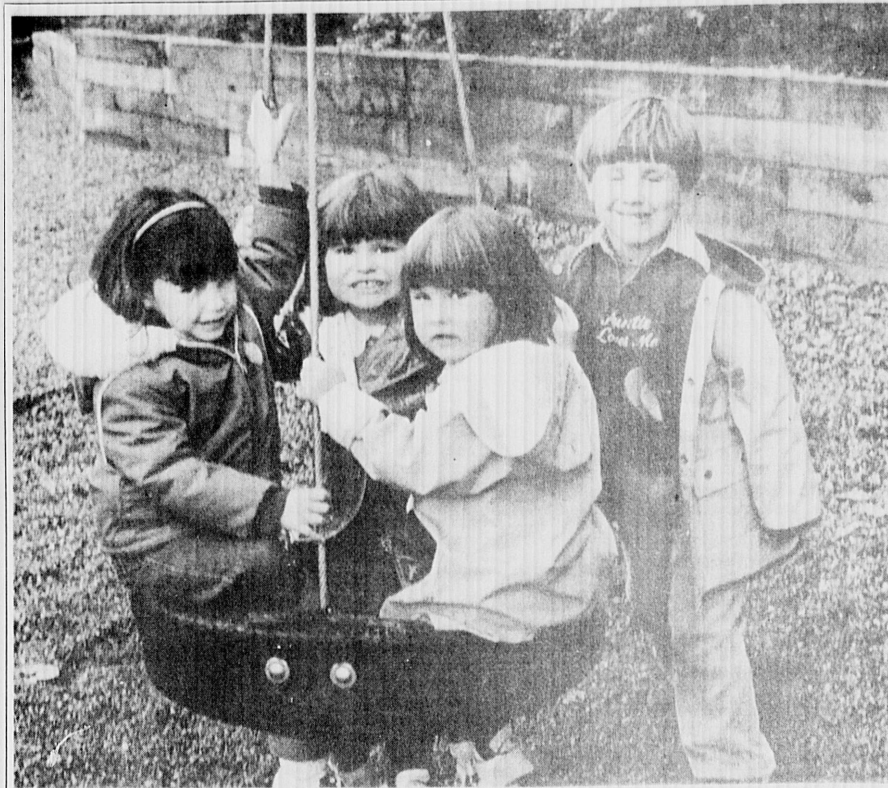

Students look forward to seeing each other for 30 minutes every other Thursday under the direction of fifth and sixth grade teachers Victoria Cavicchi, Mike Marino, Karen Clements and Missy Kaplan.

First Thanksgiving remembered

Lynch School second grade students performed in A Play for Thanksgiving, on Nov. 24 and 25, directed by teachers Maria Ramirez and Peg Kerr.

Students enacted the story of a young woman named Sarah Josepha Hale, who convinced President Abraham Lincoln to make the fourth Thursday in November a holiday of thanksgiving for everyone.

Applause went to the budding actors and actresses of the second grade, Stephanie Adams, Dawn Allen, Brian Brazell, Zuzka Chovanec, Christopher Descovich, Jamie Fahlbeck, Pax Franchot, Nicole Griswold, Erica Guarino; Enjoying the tire swing, part of the new playground equipment at the Winchester Cooperative Nursery School, are Jessica Scotti, Caitlin Sherry, Elizabeth Down and Adam White.

Vanessa Manriquez, Jennifer McNamara, John Murphy, Jessica Pirani, Aroosha Rana, Robert Roscillo, Michelle Russo, Julie Scholl, Emily Tournier and Peter Ward.

College reps will visit high school

Several schools will send representatives to the Winchester High School "mini-college" programs at 2 p.m. Wednesdays in the cafeteria.

College representatives will answer questions.

Schools to be represented Dec. 3 are American International College, Bradford College, Marymount College and Pine Manor College.

We thank you, God, for...

All my wonderful friends.
Beautiful flowers I see.
Creating our world.
Dying on the cross for us.
Every aunt and uncle.
Food that makes us healthy.
Gentle men and gentle women.
Happy birthdays.
Indian, one of God's people.
Jesus, who loves me.
Kittens that are special.
Loving us.
My life.
Noah who gathered the animals.
Oranges juicy and sweet.
People that are good to us.
Queen of heaven, our Blessed Mother.
Rabbits and rain.
Stars and the sun.
Teachers that are nice.
Under the trees, the pilgrims and Indians ate Thanksgiving dinner.
Very many different people in the world.
Water that we drink.
X-rays that help make us better.
Yellow leaves in the fall.
Zoo animals like zebras and lions.

Third graders say they wish:

That animals could talk and people could fly and every place had freedom and pumpkins grew 10 feet high.

I wish we did not need money to get stuff at the store and kids could drive cars and birds let us pet them and grass was very green.

I wish dinosaurs were still alive and they were friendly and they gave us rides on their backs.

I wish that we could stay under water as long as we want and we had real magic and made things disappear.

I wish all cartoon characters were real and we could make super robots and it snowed until it was over our heads and we lived forever.
— by Brendan Walsh

I wish to be president. And to have every plane guarded. That's what I'll do.

I wish to make Porsches. That will give me money to feed my mom and dad when they get old and lose all money.

I wish to make a movie. I wish that when Brian and Jeff are 20, I wish they will live with me, mom and dad and Caitlin.

The Winchester Star SENIOR SCENE

Forum at Jenks Center

"Older Women: Surviving and Thriving" was the subject of the first in a series of five forums at Jenks Senior Center. Ruth Jacobs, Ph.D., professor and chairman of the sociology department at Clark University, gerontologist, author of four books and many articles, helped an enthusiastic audience of seniors identify their resources and areas of concern.

Coordinated by Council on Aging administrator Barbara Ciampa and Marcia Wood, the series is commissioned by the Winchester Council on Aging.

Jacobs stressed the problems caused by stereotyped ideas about aging. Problems of older women are relatively new because people are living longer. Women outlive their husbands and Jacobs advised preparation. "Women are survivors who have worked hard, whether in the home or the community. They have earned the right to cultivate a satisfying and productive life. They have much to gain by 'networking,' sharing problems and solutions with each other," she said.

The public is invited to succeeding forums.

Farewell said to Helen Dame

Tuesday, Nov. 18, the Council on Aging and members of the Winchester Seniors Association executive board honored Helen Dame for her service to the seniors of Winchester. She has been chairman of the Council on Aging, but she and Arnold are moving to Wolfeboro, N.H.

Lawrence Beckley, who has been vice chairman, has stepped up to the chairmanship to fill the vacancy. Robert Ericson, an associate member of the council, will assume the responsibilities of vice chairman until the March 1987 election.

A beautiful farewell cake made by Helen Hodgdon was shared before the council meeting. Vincent Berger, treasurer/clerk of the council, paid a fitting tribute to Mrs. Dame for her services. He presented a money gift from the members of the council and the Winchester Seniors Association, extending best wishes to Helen and Arnold for joy in their new home.

Doll-making set

Diane Dieter and Jane Boorman will demonstrate doll construction at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 3, at the Jenks Center. The talk has been arranged by the education committee of the Winchester Seniors Association, under the chairmanship of Margaret Leader.

The public is invited. An exhibit of dolls with a holiday theme will be part of the program. Refreshments will be served. To provide adequately for the "goodies," please sign up with the center desk receptionist in advance (721-7136).

Mini-fair set Dec. 6

In accordance with custom, a mini-fair is scheduled at the Jenks Senior Center from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6.

Costume jewelry, gifts, knit goods, men's boutiques, women's boutiques, white elephants, baked goods, children's toys and games, electrical items, raffles, books and aprons will be available. The Bengali rug, six by nine feet, will go to the holder of the lucky number.

Panel describes con artists

A large audience expressed appreciation for a panel discussion concerning "con men and women" who fleece older residents in multiple ways.

Participants included: Robert Nickerson, president of the Winchester Savings Bank; Sue Hickey, director of Consumer Assistance in the bank commissioner's office; Georgeann Abernathy, Assistant General Counsel of the Commission on Banks; safety officer Kevin Mawn of the Winchester Police Department; Edwin Goodwin, president of the Winchester Cooperative Bank; Walter Dignam, president of Winchester Seniors Association; and Lt. Detective Joseph Perritano of the Winchester police department.

Changes in the center

Some changes in the internal structure of the Jenks Senior Center will be necessary in a very few days when the break-through into the building is taking place. It is probable that some activities will have to be curtailed because of construction.

Trip to the Wayside Inn

A Dec. 10 trip is planned to the historical Wayside Inn in Sudbury. Mary De Courcy is in charge of arrangements. A coach will leave Jenks Senior Center at 10:30 a.m. and return at 4 p.m. The old Red Tavern was the inspiration for Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's "Tales of A Wayside Helen Dame, who recently resigned as chairman of the Council on Aging, is surrounded by, from left, new vice chairman Robert Ericson, new chairman Lawrence Beckley and treasurer Vincent Berger.

Inn," published in November 1863. The Inn soon became known as Wayside Inn and has continued to provide food, lodging, and drink in accordance with old colonial laws and the tradition of New England hospitality.

Ruth Jacobs, left, spoke at the first in a series of forums about aging organized by co-chairman Marcia Wood.

Alice Dignam, back row, right, chairman of Winchester Seniors Association bake sale, presents a $500 check to Winchester High School marching band treasurer Dee Pedulla. In the front are drum majors Deldre Skehan, Ann Mueller and Marilyn Cummings.

Babysitter Training for girls and boys 11 to 15. Offered at Choate Dec. 29, 30 and 31 from 9 a.m. to noon.

All classes require pre-registration. For additional information and registration forms, call Choate at 933-6700, ext. or Symmes at 646-1500, ext. 2291.

Home health open house set

The Stoneham-based home health care agency, Health Care At Home, will hold an open house Thursday, December 4, from 2 to 4:30 p.m. at its office on the grounds of New England Memorial Hospital.

The HCAH staff will provide refreshments and a slide show for its guests and will be available to answer any questions regarding HCAH services.

Health Care At Home, headed by Suzanne Narkus, responds to hospital and consumer needs in 14 area towns, including Winchester. The agency offers the services of a wide range of health care professionals, including nurses available 24 hours a day, physical and occupational therapists, a speech pathologist, social workers, and home health aides.

Beginning in January of 1987, HCAH will increase supportive services by adding patient care assistants, homemakers and companions to the staff.

For information, call 665-2130.

CPR classes to be offered

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation CPR basic life support courses will be offered at the Symmes Hospital in Arlington from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays, Dec. 2, 9 and 16, and at the Choate Hospital in Woburn from 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays, Dec. 1, 8 and 15.

Techniques used in CPR include artificial breathing and artificial respirations for treating victims of heart attack, drowning, choking and other life threatening emergencies.

CPR recertification classes, for those with a current American Heart Association card due to expire within the month, are offered at the Symmes Hospital from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6, and from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesdays, Dec. 10 and 17, also at the Choate Hospital in Woburn from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 13.

All classes require pre-registration. Class size is limited. The telephone number for Symmes is 646-1500, ext. 2291; and for Choate 933-6700, ext. 377. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Red Cross volunteers sought

The Eastern Middlesex Region of the American Red Cross will conduct a volunteer orientation program from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 11, at the Winchester office, 39 Church St.

The program will cover the history and structure of the Red Cross, as well as volunteer opportunities.

Sachemettes defeat Ludlow to win state championship

By DAVID DEMARCO

It may have been the state girls soccer championship game Saturday but to the Winchester High School team, it was business as usual.

The Sachemettes defeated Ludlow High 2-1 to become the Massachusetts state champion.

An Astroturf surface at Worcester Polytech had an effect as Winchester came out very slow.

The Lions dominated the first five minutes and it seemed the Sachemettes were having trouble adjusting to the increased speed of the ball on Astroturf. Winchester has hesitated to either move or pass the ball.

Ludlow's assertiveness payed off as Pam Sochia put the Lions up 1-0 at 37:40.

Winchester did not panic and Ludlow's one goal would be all the glory Ludlow could remember for the day.

Immediately afterward, Winchester took over. From that point, the title game was just like any other Sachemette contest.

Play was all in Ludlow's end, except for very brief offensive flurries by the Lions.

"I hate Astroturf. That's why they scored. We weren't used to it at all," said Winchester's Katie Binding. "It's a lot faster game on Astroturf but we got used to it."

Binding almost tied the game seven minutes later when she took a booming shot that rolled along the cross bar but would not fall in.

Seconds later, Charlotte Reece did tie the game at 1-1 on a nice head in front of the Ludlow goalie.

The score remained tied for the remainder of the first half. But the ball was stuck in Ludlow's end and it was evident that it was only a matter of time until the Sachemettes took the lead.

At 3:06 of the second half, Reece scored again, this time on a dribbler in front from Kelly Dewar.

A 2-1 lead hardly guaranteed victory, however.

Goalie Joann Shusta played exceptionally well to preserve the victory but she gave credit elsewhere.

"The defense played great, distributing the play in front of me," she said.

Thanks to Debbie Maida and the rest of the defense, Ludlow had few scoring opportunities in the second half. Where the ball was, Maida was. She seemed to pick up speed with the Astroturf.

"Our sweeperback, Debbie Maida, may be the best player in the state," coach Chris Scanlon said.

As usual, the Sachemettes finished on top. Winchester did not taste defeat the entire season and none of the players knew what it's like to lose.

Two of Winchester's top players, Melissa Skehan and Debbie Nowell, did not play at all in the championship because of injuries.

Meghan Guarnotta, one of the Sachemettes' top scorers, said she wasn't particularly bothered by Astroturf but was surprised at Ludlow's skill.

"The fans were also great today," she said.

Jeanne Cullen said she liked the turf. "I seem to play better on it," she said. "But everyone played up to her potential. There are no regrets, thank God."

"We went out in style," Jane O'Neill added.

Ludlow's goal was only the second scored against Winchester in the tournament this fall.

"Eleven seniors started and this year we kicked the door open," said Scanlon, coach of the spectacularly successful girls team.

"It's best to be down early. That gives you the rest of the game to come back. It was our first time on turf but we could play on rocks and be OK," he said.

"And we'll give it our best effort to defend the state title next year," he said.

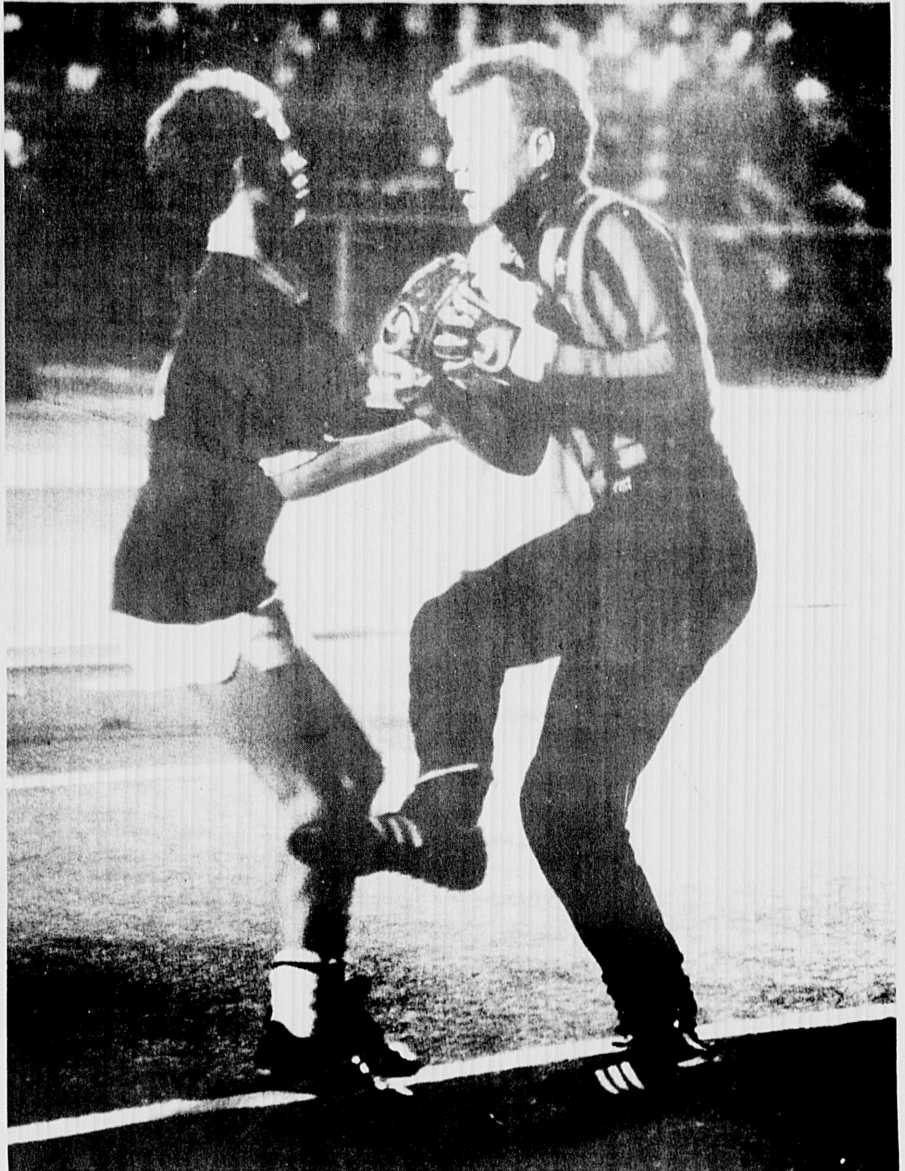

Winchester's team was characterized by discipline and determination. Despite an unbeaten record, the Sachemettes never developed troublesome egos.

Leslie Strazzullo was the unsung hero for the team, giving steady play day in and day out.

Shusta blossomed in the tournament and kept the Sachemettes in several times when they might have let down.

Several players it was hard to see the season end.

"Scooter" Binding summed up: "We ended on a good note. But it seems weird that it's over."

Sachems defeat Duxbury on the way to state crown

By STEVE GOUDSOUZIAN

Winchester High School's boys soccer team advanced to the state championship game Monday night by defeating south sectional Eastern Massachusetts champion Duxbury 5-1 Nov. 18 at Worcester Polytechnical Institute.

The game, played on Astroturf, was a new challenge for the Sachems.

Duxbury was a controlled, passing team which took the ball right at the Sachems, pressuring the defense. The timing of the Sachems was off as the ball took huge bounces and skips.

The Sachems held and kept Duxbury scoreless.

The Sachems began to use the huge field to their advantage. A Chris Verhaegen blast hit the post but the Sachems could not convert. Twice balls rolled in front of the net, waiting to be poked in, but instead sailed harmlessly away.

Finally, Paul Erbafina took a long curving shot that escaped the Duxbury goalie and slipped into the net.

With the lead, the Sachems began to pressure even more.

Slowly, Duxbury gained momentum. They used the full field to their advantage, controlling the midfield. They worked the ball up to the Sachem end.

A Sachem communication mistake and a fine heel pass allowed Duxbury to squeeze off a cross from the right corner that was tapped in. The half ended with the score tied 1-1.

The second half showed the Sachem offense explode for a flurry of goals. Mike Rice scored two on almost identical plays. Twice he ran under high long chips and flicked the ball over the goalie and into the net.

Verhaegen shot one into the far side. Kenny Fowler broke down the left wing and placed the ball in the far corner.

The Sachems exploded in the second half, to win the game running away 5-1.

Meet the Sachems you'll see Thursday

By DAVID DEMARCO

Who are they? What are they like?

Here's a chance to learn more about the players you'll watch Thanksgiving Day when they meet Woburn in the traditional rivalry football game. We asked each starting player how he'll play the game and how he feels about it.

John 'Scorch' DeMarco, quarterback

"Woburn can't take every aspect of our game away. They'll have to convince me how good their defense is. I'll concentrate on keeping the intensity of the offense very high for four quarters."

"I have all the confidence in the world we can beat these people. All our dreams are reality and now it's time to win. This is something I've been waiting to do for seven years."

Darin Cromwell, halfback

"I have to read my blocks well and be mentally ready. That's the most important thing. We're going to try and establish an inside game. If it doesn't work well, we'll go outside or pass."

"It's going to be 40 minutes of war. Whoever wants it the most will get it."

Aaron 'Brother' West, cornerback

"I want Woburn to run at me. I have to force everything inside to Richie (Burke) and Frankie (Gianci) so they can make the hits."

"When they blast, they bounce to the outside. When the end blocks down, they're usually running to my side. We're ready for everything. The defensive backs have been doing a good job. The rush has made things easier for us. It's going to be a case of being nasty."

Richie 'Boz' Burke, linebacker

"They're going to come right at me. They run power football. If they run away from me, I'll catch them!"

"They're going to try to throw on us to open the running game. The key will be controlling the lines."

Mike 'Hoss' Vozzella, tackle

"I'm just going to go at Tom Qualey, my opponent on the line. He's big but he's not really that quick."

"We really have to control their line on offense. I'm going to do what I've done to get me here. We're going to stuff 'em right on the line."

Artie Gordon, cornerback

"We're going to have to shut down Woburn's run from tackle to tackle. We'll have to vary the way we cover them in passing situations, playing sometimes close and sometimes off the line. Shut down the run — then shut down their passing too."

Mark 'Goon' Shaw, free safety

"I can't allow anyone behind me, covering the pass. I have to make sure the pass pass is covered and be mentally ready to play."

"At free safety, I go with the flow of the play. I follow the quarterback and anticipation will be a big factor for me. I've got to be ready and I've got to come through. Right now, this is the most important thing in my life."

George Nowell, defensive end

"I'm the weak side defensive end. I'll have to seal the off-tackle run and watch out for sweeps."

"We have to control the line of scrimmage. It's important to put a great pass rush on this guy (Woburn quarterback Bucky Doherty). I'm looking forward to it."

J.R. 'Moose' Morton, center

"We need to get a big game from our guards. I have to keep pushing the Woburn noseguard away from the play. Everybody on our team is healthy and this will be a game of execution."

"I think Woburn has little doubt it can beat us but, person for person, we match up better. We'll put a few points on the board. It's our time and we want it badly. We have something to pay Woburn back for."

David 'Duke' Carter, tackle

"I'm just going to beat up Martin Popoloski. I'll play an aggressive game. He'll remember it if I beat him up. I have an advantage because I beat him in last year's game."

Defensively, I'm going to have to work on my pass rush. I feel I can beat Pop. He hates losing and if I put it in his good, he'll get frustrated. He's a tough kid but I can do it."

David Ford, guard

"When the defense shifts, I'll head up the tackles. I have to concentrate on staying low and cut blocking."

"It depends too on field conditions. If it's slippery, we'll run powers. If the footing is solid, we can get outside. The game should take care of itself."

John 'Mad Max' Mathson, defensive end

"I'm just going to play the way I've always played. Woburn doesn't do anything tricky, just plays straight power football."

"I need to have a good game on offense. It's hard to talk about. You just have to do it."

Frankie 'Drago' Gianci, linebacker

"They seem to run power football with a couple of traps. We're going to have to step up and fill the holes. I'm just trying to take this as another game."

"It should be close. I think it will be a defensive struggle."

Vinnie Benincasa, safety and split end

"I'm going to have to stop the pass. I have to make sure I key on the run, too. It's the most important thing to me."

"We've got to get the ball to run our offense. If they key on me, well, we're going to be ready."

Scott 'Quasimodo' Cullen, noseguard

"I'm not worried about Woburn's center. I'm worried about double teams. I don't believe they'll double-team me much, except on traps, and they don't run up the middle that much."

Usually, Woburn runs up the No. 3 and No. 4 holes."

"I'm going to try to get my intensity higher than in the Lexington game. We should be awesome. As they say, true champions rise to the occasion."

Danny 'Cosmo' Costello, fullback

"I'm going to have to keep the middle game going. Woburn will also have to try and stop us outside."

"I'm not going to prepare for this game any differently. We've won nine games this way and I won't change now."

Game time is 10:15 a.m. at Woburn.

Victory bubbly on ice — since '79

By DAVID DEMARCO

They're still chilling. For seven long years, they've waited. Now they're a symbol to the 1986 Sachems.

They're two cheap bottles of champagne, bought in 1979 for a mere $2.39 per bottle but now more valuable than today's Dom Perignon.

Once in a while, Winchester High School football players have taken the bottles out, passed them around and looked at them as if they contained all the answers.

They don't, of course, but this week most of the players have been over to touch the bottles, as if to draw mystical power from their faded and torn labels.

These bottles have a history that has given them special significance.

Before the 1979 Winchester-Woburn game, then-captain Brad Cowen had two bottles of champagne to be opened after the victory. Circumstances surrounding that game were the same: the winner would advance to the Super Bowl.

But Winchester lost 22-15.

There was no victory celebration. As I left the locker room, going to the hospital for stitches, Cowen handed me the bottles. "They're yours," he said.

For seven years, they have waited, unopened, for another Winchester team to get what we had been so close to grasping.

The team is the 1986 Sachems. Those bottles have been waiting for these guys, even before most knew they existed.

Tomorrow, the bottles will be opened, win or lose, as a symbol of our togetherness and the friendships developed over the years as this team strived for the ultimate goal we share . . . the Super Bowl.

Michael Doherty

Doherty hat trick wins season final for St. Sebastian

Michael Doherty of Winchester, a senior at St. Sebastian's Country Day School, was the hero of the day Nov. 15 for the soccer team.

In the final game of the year, Doherty scored a three-goal hat trick to defeat archrival Rivers School 3-0. Doherty has played varsity soccer and lacrosse for the Arrows for four years. He lives at 49 Oxford St.

Sachems, Woburn to clash for Super Bowl balanced as Winchester. But fans who key their attention on the tackles may see the decisive factor early in the game.

Defense: Sachems

On defense, the edge is Winchester's. Woburn's offense has struggled at times this year against good defenses.

The Tanners run a power I-formation, very basic "run right at 'em" football.

Backfield positions are manned by senior Dave Digiralamo and juniors Derek Carbone and Jim Duran. Second-year starter Bucky Doherty is the quarterback.

Woburn likes to run a lot of motion in the backfield. Knowledgeable fans will watch the back in motion. Ninety percent of the time, the play is headed in the same direction.

Running is Woburn's offensive forte. The Tanners' running game is comparatively weak, again pointing to the importance of Winchester tackles Vozzella and Carter.

Woburn likes to send Digiralamo up the hole in the line as a blocking back. Winchester linebackers must quickly fill the hole again.

Likewise, Winchester's secondary will have to be sharp. Doherty has not thrown well this year but, if the Tanners falter running out of the power-I, they'll put the ball in the air.

Unknown: the blitz

Woburn's quarterback has had lots of trouble adjusting to a blitz this fall. If the Sachems put pressure on him, Doherty is likely to force his throws and toss either incompletions or interceptions.

As every coach knows, when you throw the ball, three things can happen and two of them are bad. The odds get even worse when the quarterback forces his throws.

Winchester, therefore, can tip the odds in its favor by stopping any Woburn ground game. A running game by the Tanners could spell trouble for the Sachems.

If weather conditions are not good, field position will be more important. Both teams have excellent punters in Winchester's John Mathson and Woburn's Duran.

Kicking games are about equal. Winchester's Mark Shaw and Woburn's Duran are the two best in the Middlesex League, each with excellent range.

When either team gets inside the opponent's 30-yard line, it must get some points on the board. If the game is close and the field sloppy, field goals may be a big factor.

Overall, if the Sachems play the game they're capable of playing — about the way they played against Lexington — Winchester will travel to the Super Bowl.

But in a match between two great teams, Winchester 9-0 and Woburn 8-0-1, mistakes can make the difference. Mental preparation and physical execution will be critical.

It's been seven years since a day like Thanksgiving has rolled around for a Winchester football team. Look for the 1986 Sachems to avenge the 1979 loss and go to their first Super Bowl.

Rehabilitation plays key role in success of Winchester team

By DAVID DEMARCO

Injuries have plagued the Winchester Sachems throughout the football season but the team is 9-0 anyway. Give rehabilitation a good part of the credit.

Vinnie Buscemi and Bill Antonelli, together known as Orthopaedics Plus of Winchester, have been a major factor in the team's march past injuries toward the Super Bowl.

Each night, certain players go to them for rehab. Without it, some would be unable to continue on the team.

Before the advent of sports medicine, players had to do their own rehabilitation and make their own decisions about when they could safely return to the field.

"We count on these guys, Vinnie and Bill, to help us heal quickly. They're great people," says Sachem running back Darin Cromwell.

The pair donate a lot of their time to high school kids, keeping their office open for them past regular business hours. Football players from Burlington, Malden, Medford and Wilmington also visit Orthopaedics Plus regularly.

"I like working with kids who have never tried therapy," Buscemi says. "That's the biggest challenge, taking care of the problem so they can come back to their activity."

About 35 percent of clients treated by Orthopaedics Plus are in the high school age group.

High school trainer Donna Guidersleeve has also been a huge factor keeping the Sachems' train rolling this fall. In some cases, she has referred injured players to Orthopaedics Plus, which found the injuries so severe the players should avoid action and possible further injury.

"You have to keep monitoring the injury," says Antonelli. "Our business is people-oriented. We try to do what's necessary to assure a safe return to competition."

The rehabilitation pair uses a computerized Cybex machine to test the strength of injured areas to see if they are ready to undergo new stress.

Buscemi and Antonelli are graduates of the University of Lowell who keep their practice current at the Institute of Graduate Health Sciences.

Situation now identical to 1979 'greatest game ever'

By DAVID DEMARCO

The faces have changed but the situation now is the same as in 1979.

Winchester's football game against Woburn that year is still seen by many as the greatest ever in the 81-game history of the series which began in 1891 and has been played every Thanksgiving Day since 1928.

Seven years ago, the winner of the Turkey Day classic would go to the Super Bowl. Today, the situation is identical.

Whether the results will be the same remains to be seen by perhaps 20,000 fans.

Winchester led throughout the 1979 game, played on a cloudy morning, but the Sachems lost it with only 5:34 left. It was the most heart-breaking loss in the long history of Winchester High School athletics.

A dream had been crushed. When Woburn beat Brockton a week later for the state championship, Winchester fans got no consolation.

I know it was the Sachems' right defensive tackle that day.

In the years that followed, it seemed the dream would never be realized, Winchester would never again get as close to "the gold."

Then, in 1986, along came a group of guys known as "Mad Max" Mathson, "Duke" Carter, "Pickle" Murray, "Brother" West, "Moose" Morton and "Goon" Shaw.

The fire was back and fever again grips my community.

Sachems of 1986 are truly "brothers." Individual glory is not paramount in their minds; team victories are.

Our 1979 team was hindered by some selfish motivation. The current Sachems are much more balanced on the field.

Our 1979 game was decided by passing. Woburn was able to throw while Winchester could not. This year, the reverse is true.

Looking back, comparing the two teams, it seems to this 1979 veteran that the current Sachems are better prepared to be champions, both on and off the field.

In previous Turkey Day records, Winchester has won 31 times and Woburn 20 with seven ties. Overall, Winchester leads in victories 42-29.

The Sachems will not be denied this year. Look for them to lead the series 43-29 by Thursday afternoon.

Local student to describe Great Peace March events

The seasonal salutation "Peace on Earth" takes on new meaning for Winchester resident Stephanie Nichols.

She walked an average of 15 miles a day six days a week in the cross-country Great Peace March for Global Nuclear Disarmament which ended Nov. 15 in Washington, D.C.

Nichols, a graduate of Dartmouth College and currently a seminary student at Starr King School, will speak on this experience Sunday, Nov. 30, at the 10:30 a.m. service in the Unitarian Church of Winchester.

Although the numbers of marchers often swelled en route, Nichols is one of a core group of approximately 400 who walked the country-wide route since its departure from California in March. More than 100 of the core group were over 50 years old.

Nichols' presence in the pulpit this Sunday is timely.

More than three years ago, Chuck Reinhardt, minister of Unitarian Church of Winchester, challenged the congregation to more forcefully work for world peace.

He envisioned a networking among denominations focused on global nuclear disarmament.

Reinhardt's sermon worked. Church members contributed checks and formed an ad hoc committee which later evolved into the Unitarian Universalist Peace Network, a cooperative program supported by six Unitarian Universalist organizations, working exclusively to end the nuclear arms race and promote world peace.

Accomplishments of the young Peace Network are impressive and include a national legislative action network, sponsorship of eight major regional peace conferences this year, and the completion of numerous local community awareness and education programs.

Reinhardt, on sabbatical this year, will visit churches throughout the country to encourage their "grass-roots" involvement in the Peace Network.

The Winchester Unitarian Church continues to play a leadership role in the activities and financial support of the program. The annual fundraising campaign now underway is backed by a specified commitment from the church to match, 50 cents to the dollar, contributions made to the Peace Network.

Call the Unitarian Church of Winchester at 729-0949 for additional information.

Agape Christian bazaar planned

Agape Christian Academy, 263 Main St., will have its Christmas bazaar from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 29, at the school.

Many baked goods, craft items and Christmas gifts will be available.

St. Mary's Soldality to meet

Saint Mary's Blessed Virgin Sodality will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 3, in the parish hall. Mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Paul G. Kelley, followed by a Christmas party.

All women of the parish are invited and are asked to bring a $2 grab

Christmas Goose Fair Dec. 5-6

The Women of Epiphany, 70 Church Street are planning their annual Christmas Goose Fair, chaired by Susan Molatesta and Christine Joseph, from noon to 9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 5, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6.

Many professional crafts persons will sell their works. Tables of knitted items, sews, cutlery, books, holiday decorations, white elephants and more are also planned.

A children's fair will be held from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and will feature a magic show.

Soup, salad, pizza and desserts will be sold continuously throughout the fair at a gourmet cafe coordinated by Patty Cianci.

Proceeds from the fair are used for many outreach projects, including donations to local and Boston concerns such as St. Stephen's Parish in Boston, Rosie's Place and Meals on Wheels.

Thanksgiving Day services planned

Thanksgiving Day services are planned at 8 and 10 a.m. Thursday at the Parish of the Epiphany (Episcopal), 70 Church St.

At 10 a.m., the Rev. Jane S. Gould will give the homily. The choir will sing David H. Williams' "A Hymn for Thanksgiving" and will lead the congregation in singing familiar Thanksgiving hymns.

Offerings from both services will be given to Oxfam for famine relief efforts.

Rev. Morgan is Merrimack alumni leader

The Rev. George R. Morgan, O.S.A. a Winchester native, has been appointed director of alumni relations at Merrimack College in North Andover.

For the past three years, Father Morgan has been assistant to the president at St. Thomas University in Miami. In his new position, he will work to build a community of support among Merrimack alumni.

Morgan is a 1961 graduate of Merrimack College. He entered the Order of St. Augustine in 1961 and was ordained to the priesthood in 1966. He holds master's degrees in theology from the Augustinian College in Washington, D.C., and in spirituality from Mundelein College in Chicago.

Colonial Travel Can Customize A Vacation To Fit Your Wants And Needs.

Whether your vacation takes you across the state, across the country, or around the world, whether your needs are more toward the economy vacation, or money is no object, or whether you prefer the excitement of the fast lane or serenity of seclusion, Colonial Travel, located at 564 Main St., Winchester, can customize a vacation to fit your wants and needs.

With more than 27 years of experience as travel agents between them, Colonial's co-owners Elaine Mahoney and Tony Sampson have tailored vacations for thousands of satisfied clients to all corners of the globe.

"What many people don't realize is travel agents don't charge a service charge," explains Elaine. "Our fee does not affect the price our client pays."

Instead, booking through a travel agent is not only easier, but it can also be cheaper. With access to plane fares, hotel rates, and car rental fees at their fingertips on computer, Tony and Elaine can assure you the best rates and can book a reservation simultaneously.

In addition to helping you get the best rates, Colonial can make your vacation more pleasant by meeting your needs with corresponding accommodations ranging from standard to deluxe or superior.

"Some people prefer to travel alone, while others want the security of a group," explains Elaine. "Some travelers want a more free schedule while others prefer a guided tour. In any case we will make the arrangements to fit their needs."

Some other benefits of booking through travel agents include their knowledge of special discounts, their awareness of the atmosphere, weather conditions and economic state of the place you are traveling to, and their ability to assist you in planning and getting ready for your vacation.

Tony and Elaine can assist you with passport needs, rate of exchange, and will make you aware of any other necessary information to make your trip easier and more enjoyable.

Has Colonial Travel seen any effects on European bookings as a result of the situation abroad?

"Bookings to Europe are down," explains Elaine, "but that has led to a noticeable increase in bookings to places like Hawaii, the Caribbean, Bermuda, cruises, and U.S. destinations."

In any event people are vacationing and the smart ones are letting Colonial Travel find them the vacation they desire at the price they want to pay.

To have Colonial Travel arrange and fit your vacation to your needs, call Tony or Elaine at 729-4700 or visit their office at 564 Main St., Winchester. They are open Monday through Friday 9-5, Thursdays till 8 p.m., 11-3 on Saturdays, and both Tony and Elaine are available any other time by appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. McDonnell

Corinne Mary D'Onofrio, Edward F. McDonnell exchange wedding vows

Corinne Mary D'Onofrio and Edward F. McDonnell were married Oct. 11 at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. Joel Szydlowski of Philadelphia, Pa., officiated the nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. D'Onofrio of Winchester. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Florence Garcia of Winchester and Mrs. Adaline D'Onofrio of Framingham.

Maid of honor was Cynthia Vita of Nashua, N.H., friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Trina Wang of Cambridge, sister-in-law of the bride, Nancy Gray of Westford, cousin of the bride, Karen and Mary McDonnell of Philadelphia, sisters of the bridegroom, and Wendy Foley of Westford, friend of the bride.

Best man was Gregory Bliss of Plymouth, friend of the bridegroom. Ushers were Thomas McDonnell of Philadelphia, brother of the bridegroom, Lawrence D'Onofrio of Cambridge, brother of the bride.

Stephen D'Onofrio of Winchester, brother of the bride, Carlton Jeffcoat of Vienna, Va., and Robert Sweeney of Wrentham, friends of the bridegroom.

The bride graduated with a bachelor of science degree from the University of New Hampshire and received an associate's degree from Colby-Sawyer College. She is a database administrator for Wang Laboratories Inc. in Lowell.

The bridegroom graduated from the University of New Hampshire with a bachelor of science degree. He is enrolled in a business administration master's program at Northeastern University. He is a sales representative for Floating Point Systems in Dedham.

The reception was at the Sheraton Commander Hotel in Cambridge. The couple will reside in Waltham and Plymouth following a cruise through the Caribbean.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Buchholz

Mara H. Reece and Thomas A. Buchholz exchange wedding vows

Mara H. Reece and Thomas A. Buchholz were married Aug. 16 at Goddard Chapel of Tufts University. The Rev. James Haddad, former pastor of St. Eulalia's Church in Winchester, officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berry Lowrey Reece Jr. of Winchester. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Buchholz of Rye, N.Y.

The bride wore a Priscilla gown of tulle with an embroidered lace bodice and sleeves. Her veil was decorated with matching lace covering the headpiece and the chapel train. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies, baby's breath and stephanotis. She also carried a lace handkerchief that her paternal great-grandmother and her mother wore on their wedding days.

Georganne Reece of New York City was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Charlotte Reece of Winchester, sister of the bride, Marv Boland of Winchester, Jennifer Stradtner of Los Angeles and Romy Knittel of Delaware Water-Gap, Pa., all friends of the bride.

Daniel Buchholz of Groton, Conn., was best man for his brother. Ushers were John Buchholz of Rye, N.Y., brother of the bridegroom, Craig Toland of Baltimore, Md., Matthew Samarel of Monroe, N.Y., and Daniel Landry of Sanford, Maine, all friends of the bridegroom.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Winchester High School and graduated from Bucknell University. She is in the corporate training program at Baybank Middlesex.

The bridegroom is a 1980 graduate of Rye High School and graduated from Bucknell University. He is a third-year medical student at Tufts University School of Medicine.

After a reception at the Sheraton in Lexington, the couple took a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

OBITUARIES

Mihran Bezjian

Mihran Zenob Bezjian, 77, a retired Navy Department engineer who also worked for British Petroleum in Baghdad, died Nov. 14 of pulmonary arrest at his home in Alexandria, Va.

He was married to the late Shogher Baghdayan of Winchester, who died in 1985.

A graveside service was scheduled at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 26, at Wildwood Cemetery prior to interment. The Rev. Walter B. Davis, pastor of the First Congregational Church, will officiate.

Mr. Bezjian was born in Aintab, Turkey, and graduated from Robert College in Istanbul. He earned a master's degree in electrical engineering at what was then the Case Institute of Technology in Cleveland during the 1930s, then worked 25 years for British Petroleum in Baghdad.

During that period he traveled extensively in the Middle East and Europe.

He came to the United States in 1960 and had lived in the Washington, D.C., area since 1965. He retired in 1984 after working 19 years for the Department of the Navy.

He was fluent in six languages, including Armenian, Turkish, English, French, Arabic and German.

Survivors include a daughter, Alexandra Bezjian of Alexandria, Va. Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Ruth M. Freeman

Ruth (Moulton) Freeman of Winchester died at her home Nov. 7 after a long illness.

Born in Portland, Maine, in 1903, she was a resident of Winchester for 55 years, residing at 11 Lorena Road for 51 years. She leaves her husband Maurice T. Freeman. Among her survivors are four daughters; Louise F. Ahearn and Elizabeth J. Spiller of Winchester, Ruth M.F. O'Neill of Harbor Springs, Michigan and Jean T. Freeman of Manchester, Connecticut, and 11 grandchildren.

Mrs. Freeman was a graduate of Vassar College, Class of 1925.

She was an active member of the Winton Club, En-Ka Society, The Boston Museum of Fine Arts Ladies Committee, and the Winchester Garden Club.

As a youngster Mrs. Freeman spent her early summers on Gilsland

Farm, her father's 60-acre farm in Falmouth Foreside, Maine, which she recently donated to the people of Maine and to the Maine Audubon Society for its headquarters.

Funeral services were conducted Nov. 10 at the Parish of the Epiphany by Rev. John J. Bishop assisted by Fr. James J. Haddad, formerly pastor at St. Eulalia's Church and Fr. John Mendicco of St. Mary's Church.

Reflecting Ruth's more than 50 years of attendance at the Boston Symphony Friday afternoon concerts, a string quartet from the orchestra and Lawrence Berry of the Parish of the Epiphany provided a beautiful program of music before and during the service.

Ruth's four daughters, Louise, Elizabeth, Ruth and Jean are establishing a trust fund in their mother's memory to encourage further progress in pain research at the Pain Clinic of the Massachusetts General Hospital. Donations currently and over the years will be welcome to the Massachusetts General Hospital—for the Ruth M. Freeman Fund for Pain Research, Kennedy 9, Dept. of Neurology, Boston 02114.

Funeral arrangements were by Lane Funeral Home.

In re: Chapter 11
MANAGEMENT II, INC., Case No. 86-10214-JNG

Debtor
Notice of Debtor's Intent To Sell Asset At Private Sale Free and Clear Of Liens

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to §363 of the Bankruptcy Code, Management II, Inc., debtor in possession in the above-captioned Chapter 11 proceeding, intends to sell a certain asset to Susan J. Gilmore, an individual residing in Massachusetts and not affiliated with the Debtor, as follows:

1. The asset proposed to be sold pursuant to this notice is a 1984 Mercedes 280SL, a copy of the Certificate of Title for which is attached as Exhibit "A".

2. The vehicle is encumbered by a lien in favor of First Maryland Savings and Loan, Inc. securing an installment note having a balance in excess of $30,000.00 as of the date of the filing of the Debtor's Chapter 11 petition.

3. The vehicle was originally manufactured according to German specifications and retrofitted according to U.S. specifications upon being brought into this country. Such vehicles have no book value in this country. A survey of used Mercedes dealers in the greater Boston area reveals that the vehicle would bring at most $10,000.00, but that in most cases a dealer would not give anything for it.

4. The terms of the proposed sale to Susan J. Gilmore are $23,000.00 cash, as set out in the motion for approval of compromise of controversy filed herewith.

5. Debtor believes that this sale is in the best interest of the estate but will consider alternative bids from any other party.

6. Any person or entity which desires to object to the proposed sale or make a counter-offer must file and serve upon John F. Davis, Esquire, Counsel for the Debtor, no later than December 10, 1986, such written objection or counter-offer.

7. A hearing will be held before United States Bankruptcy Judge James N. Gabriel, United States Bankruptcy Court, 1101 Boston Federal Office Building, 10 Causeway Street, Boston, Massachusetts at 11:00 a.m., December 11, 1986 to hear timely filed objections or counter-offers. Any party filing an objection or making a counter-offer will be expected to be present at said hearing.

8. If no objection or counter-offer is timely filed as described above, the proposed sale may take place as described without hearing.

Season Nutcracker, Christmas

Clockwise, from top left: Laura Young and William Pizzuto perform in The Nutcracker at the Wang Center Dec. 4 - Jan. 4; Brent Rourke and Richard Maynard perform in a scene from A Christmas Carol at Merrimack Repertory Theatre at Libert Hall in Lowell Dec. 12-27; A Child's Christmas in Wales stars Ron Ritchell, Bob Bouffier and Renee Miller in the Lyric Stage performance Dec. 3-23; A Christmas Carol continues in Lowell through Dec. 27; The Nutcracker continues at the Wang Center through Jan. 4.

Boston Ballet celebrates the holiday season in New England with the magic of "The Nutcracker" at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts in Boston, opening at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4 through Jan. 4.

The company will stage a 39 performances of its 23rd production of "The Nutcracker," including four matinees exclusively for school children.

Featuring the familiar Tchaikovsky score, a fairy tale set by Helen Senn and Herbert Pond and stunning costumes by British designer David Walker, "The Nutcracker" is yuletide entertainment for the entire family.

Boston Ballet will also present "The Nutcracker" in Worcester on Nov. 28 and 29 at the Memorial Auditorium, sponsored by the Worcester County Music Association.

"The Nutcracker" was first choreographed in 1892 by Marius Petipa and Lev Ivanov. Petipa, choreographer to the Russian court during the latter half of the 19th century, is the man who single-handedly raised the standard of Russian ballet to the level we know today.

His many works include the romantic masterpieces "Swan Lake" and "The Sleeping Beauty," Ivanov, too, had a long career at the Maryinsky Theater and today is considered a major precursor of modern ballet, literally and figuratively bridging the gap between the romanticism of Petipa and the vivid expression of Fokine.

Boston Ballet's first "Nutcracker" production was in December of 1964, staged by Founder E. Virginia Williams after the original Ivanov-Petipa choreography. In 1980, Boston Ballet's "Nutcracker" was featured at the gala opening of the Metropolitan Venter.

In December of 1983, Boston Ballet's "Nutcracker" was featured at the dedication of the Wang Center for the Performing Arts, formerly the Metropolitan Center.

With a full orchestra and over 100 performers, including members of Boston Ballet and young students of dance, ages 7-14, from the Boston metropolitan area, the annual "Nutcracker" performances feature the traditional "on-stage" snowfall, the breath-taking Christmas tree that grows 40 feet high on stage, the enchanting Palace of Sweets, and the celebrated Nutcracker himself.

Based upon the fairy tale by E.T.A. Hoffman, "The Nutcracker" is a classic ballet in two acts.

The story begins in the Silberhaus home where preparations for a Christmas Eve celebration are underway and the children, Fritz and Clara, eagerly await the holiday festivities.

Their godfather, Dr. Drosselmeyer, arrives and presents Clara with a nutcracker.

Jealous of his sister's present, Fritz seizes it and throws it to the ground, breaking the new toy. Dr. Drosselmeyer comforts Clara by mending the broken nutcracker.

Later that night, long after everyone has gone to bed, Clara steals down to the drawing room to retrieve her nutcracker. Suddenly, the room is filled with mice and toy soldiers led by the Nutcracker himself.

A battle ensues, but with Clara's help, the soldiers defeat the mice. The Nutcracker is transformed into a handsome young man who leads Clara through the window to the Enchanted Forest where they meet the Snow King and Queen.

Clara and the Nutcracker arrive at the Palace of Sweets where they are greeted by the Sugarplum Fairy. An elaborate ceremony is held in Clara's honor, and she is entertained by a number of exotic dances.

A shimmering pas de deux by the Sugarplum Fairy and her cavalier climax the entertainment and mark a memorable end to Clara's magical journey.

been a vital part of "The Nutcracker" and this year there will be over 150 young people participating in the Company's production. They will perform in such roles as toy soldiers, baby mice, party children, reindeer, polichinelles, angels, dolls, and assorted other roles.

Evening performances are at 7:30 p.m., with the exception of Sundays, when the curtain is 6:30 p.m.

All matinees are at 2 p.m., primarily on Saturdays and Sundays, with additional mid-week matinees slated. Tickets for "The Nutcracker" are available by mail order, by calling CHARGE at (617) 542-3600 or 1-800-223-0120, or in person at The Wang Center box office, 270 Tremont St., Boston 02116, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Ticket prices are $13, $17, $22, $25 and $35.

A Christmas Carol opens Dec. 2 at Nickerson

"A Christmas Carol," Charles Dickens' classic tale of Christmas, adapted for the stage by Larry Carpenter, will ring in the holiday season for the second consecutive year at Norwell's Nickerson

Theatre, Dec. 2-21.

Staged by Grey Johnson, who previously directed the Nickerson favorite, Agatha Christie's "Towards Zero," the cast of "A Christmas Carol" includes: John Adair, Robert Bouffier, Lisa Foley, Niels Miller, Peter Haydu (most recently seen in the title role of "Bilby Bishop Goes To War"), Ted McAdams, Ingrid Sonnichsen, Stephanie Clayman, Becky Hertzberg, Brian DiLorenzo, Jamie Panagos, Jessica DelGizzi and Brandon LaFond.

Written in 1843, Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" has been credited with reviving the 'spirit of Christmas' and the traditional holiday customs that saw a decline during the mid-19th century.

Recognized as the author with the wonderful ability to express the spirit of the holiday season, Dickens' other famous works include: "Oliver Twist," "Nicholas Nickleby," "Pickwick Papers" and "David Copperfield."

J. Arnold Nickerson, producing director, has announced that a special 10:30 a.m. performance has been added Dec. 3 to accommodate the sixth grade students of Marshfield's Furnace Brook School.

In addition, the Dec. 2, 3, and 4 performances will begin one hour early, at 7 p.m., in order to facilitate the attendance of school-aged children.

Tickets for these three performances only (Dec. 2-4) are specially priced at $6 for children under 18.

This will mark the first time that Marshfield Public School system will be bringing an entire student body to a professional theatre production, and Mr. Nickerson and Marshfield school volunteer coordinator Suzanne Allmendinger view the major field trip as an "opportunity for the students to see quality, live theatre." The field trip will culminate a curriculum where the sixth grade students have been studying Charles Dickens and his famous Christmas tale in English class.

As Dickens noted, "It is good to be children sometimes, and never better than at Christmas time."

Performance times are Tuesday through Thursday at 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday evening performances are $16; all other performances are $13. For mail orders or a detailed brochure of the 1986-87 season, write the Nickerson Theatre, 30 Accord Park Drive, P.O. Box 272, Accord (Norwell), 02018 or call (617) 871-2400.

The theatre is located off Route 3, South, Exit 14, in Norwell.

What To Visit

First settlers dined on interesting fare

Story by James Baker

Photos by Paul Drake

There is no exact record of the bill of fare for the famous first harvest festival of 1621, which is now known as the "first Thanksgiving."

The event is mentioned only in two quotes, one from William Bradford's Of Plimoth Plantation and the other in a letter of Edward Winslow's included in Mourt's Relation.

There is no specific date for the three-day celebration, but it was between Sept. 21, the return from Massachusetts Bay of the shallop, and Nov. 9 when The Fortune arrived with new settlers.

According to the two quotes, the feast included cod, sea bass, wildfowl (such as ducks, geese and swans), turkeys, corn (and probably wheat) meal, and the five deer brought by Indians.

Meat, fish and bread were the most important elements of the English diet at this time, although fruits and "herbs" were also eaten.

The term "vegetables" was not used at this time; edible plants were known as sallet herbs, pot herbs, or roots.

Shellfish were probably not featured at the feast. Although they were plentiful and formed a large part of the Pilgrims' diet in the early years, they were looked on as poverty fare and hence not appropriate at a feast.

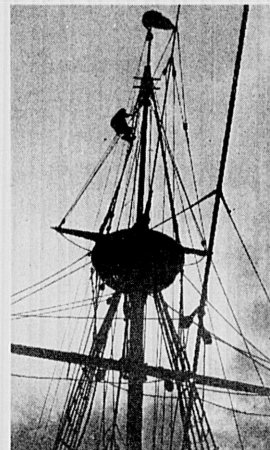

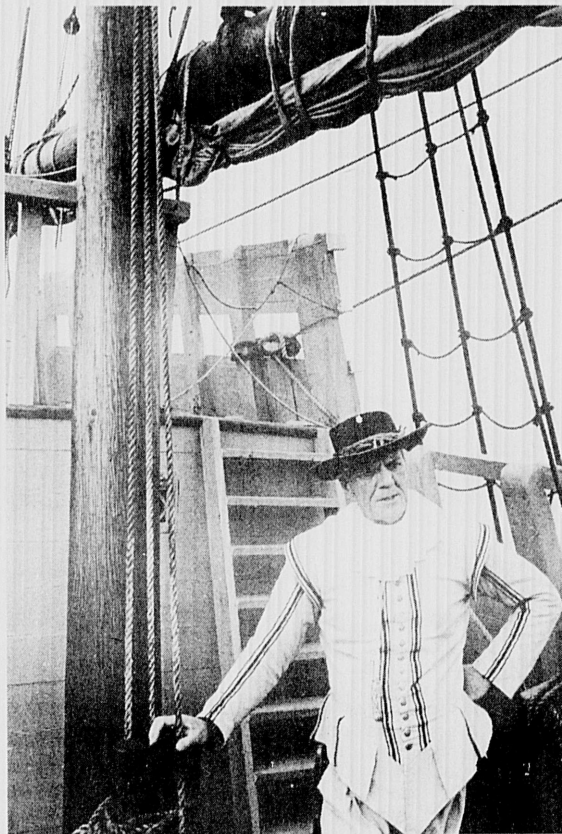

The meats were roasted or boiled in traditional English fashion, and the fish boiled or perhaps grilled after the Indian fashion.

Breads were skillet breads cooked by the fire or perhaps risen breads baked in a clay or cloam oven. Fruit tarts were produced the same way.

The herbs were either boiled along with the meats as "sauce," or used in "sallets." A sallet was a vegetable dish either cooked or raw, and either "simple" or "compound," that is made from one ingredient or a mixture. The popularity of sallet or vegetable dishes was not great at this time. Therefore, they are not always mentioned, although they were served fairly frequently.

Beyond these foods, the Pilgrims had many native and English fruits and herbs. The former were both wild and cultivated, the latter planted in the cottage gardens from English seeds.

Native plants included: walnuts, chestnuts, grapes, American and beach plums, smooth and round-leaved gooseberries, raspberries, wild cherries, ground nuts, wild strawberries, and watercress.

Christopher Jones, owner and master of the Mayflower II, muses over the first Thanksgiving. Above, seaman William Trevor climbs the ratlines.

Therefore, there was no cider at the first harvest.

Potatoes were known to botanists, and the sweet potato enjoyed a mild popularity in England among the well-to-do (it had supposed aphrodisiacal powers) but they were not available in early New England.

The corn grown by the Pilgrims and local Indians was a flint variety, and they did not have sweet corn on the cob, nor popcorn. Flint corn, when roasted or "parched" does puff a bit but not as dramatically as true popcorn.

There was no "Indian pudding" in its modern form as there was no molasses.

Cranberries might have been used in "puddings in the belly," which we know as stuffings, but not in their familiar jelly or preserves, because of the scarcity of sugar.

Celery was unknown. Olives were imported in England, but it is quite unlikely that they came to Plymouth in 1620. However, olive oil, or "sallet oil" is suggested for future immigrants in Mourt's Relation.

Even creamed onions were not possible, for although onions and milk were probably available, there were no flour-thickened sauces or gravies in 1620. Bread crumbs or egg yolks were used as thickeners instead.

The English enjoyed spices and would have brought a supply of cinnamon, nutmeg, mace, ginger, cloves and pepper, but not allspice.

Tea and coffee were not in use in England, nor known to the Pilgrims.

The English, even Puritans and Separatists, enjoyed feasting. Bills of fare of the period, even for middle class families, look enormous to our eyes, just as Victorian ones do. However, there were some differences in the presentation of food.

A dish was not prepared with the intent of allowing each guest a portion. As at a pot luck dinner, each dish provided only a limited amount of food. Courses didn't proceed from soup to sweets, but tended to contain all sorts of dishes at the same time.

The table was set with a variety of dishes, and they were passed or fetched by the children and servants who waited on their own families.

There would not be any table decorations in the modern sense, for the decorated salts and subtleties, such as elaborate food sculptures, were not a part of the yeoman tradition familiar to the Pilgrims.

People sat at cloth-covered tables on benches and forms, with a few chairs for the more important men.

They ate with knives, a few spoons, but no forks. Large linen napkins, about three feet square, were important since hands were used to both serve and eat with.

Instead of dishes, trenchers or small eight-inch square or round wooden plates were used. Sometimes two people would share one of these. The food was taken from the serving bowls and chargers (platters), and most likely cut on a trencher before being consumed, or just eaten. Perhaps the "reach and eat" style still used in the near East is the best analogy.

Other foods were put on the trencher, and eaten as they are today. Pottage, or soups, were eaten from bowls, and the beverages were passed around in bowls, cups, tygs or other containers.

There were about 140 people at the three-day harvest celebration, 90 Indian men and 50-odd Pilgrims.

There were only four adult housewives who survived the first winter, and it is possible that they oversaw the cooking and preparation, with the help of the children and servants. They were Elizabeth

Apart from two dogs, which European animals came on the Mayflower is not recorded. However, chickens might be assumed.

Other possibilities are cats, goats (for milk) and pigs. Cattle, horses and sheep definitely did not come until later. It is unlikely that any of the animals were slaughtered as it was desirable to build up stock.

There is a good chance that eggs and goat's milk were available.

Beverages included beer Aqua Vitae, or "strong waters," and water. Milk was not drunk whole, and only occasionally as whey. Children drank beer along with their elders. Brandy is a fair substitute for period "Aqua Vitae."

What was not available at the first harvest?

Apples, pears and other fruits not native to New England would take years to bear after planting.

Hopkins, Elinore Billington, Mary Brewster and Susanna White.

There is no period account of a harvest or actual Thanksgiving feast in Plymouth, but in 1636, there was a celebration in Scituate — "Then making merry to the creatures, the poorer sort being invited of the richer," according to Love, Fast and Thanksgiving Days, 1895.

The book goes on to report that, in 1639, the entire community "divided into three companies to feast."

From these suggestions, it is speculated that the colony broke into small groups to eat, not as families but as larger divisions of the company.

While the three-day harvest celebration was definitely a secular event and not a true Thanksgiving, there was undoubtedly some sort of grace or prayer. Religion was never separate from their lives although there is no model for such a grace in surviving records.

For those who wish to recreate the first Harvest Festival of 1621, here are some period recipes of the sort that may have been used.

Fruit Tartes

You must boile your fruite, whether it be apple, cherie, peach, damson pearre, mulberie, or codling, in faire water, and when they be boyled inough, put them into a bowle, and bruse them with a ladle, and when they be cold, straine them, and put in red wine or claret wine, and so season it with sugar, cinnamon and ginger.

Dawson, T.

The Good Huswife's Jewell

The fruits available here could be used in this recipe as well. The fruit is boiled down, crushed and strained. The Plymouth settlers would have to omit the wine, but the sugar, cinnamon and ginger would be possible. The filling is put into an open pie shell or "coffin," and baked.

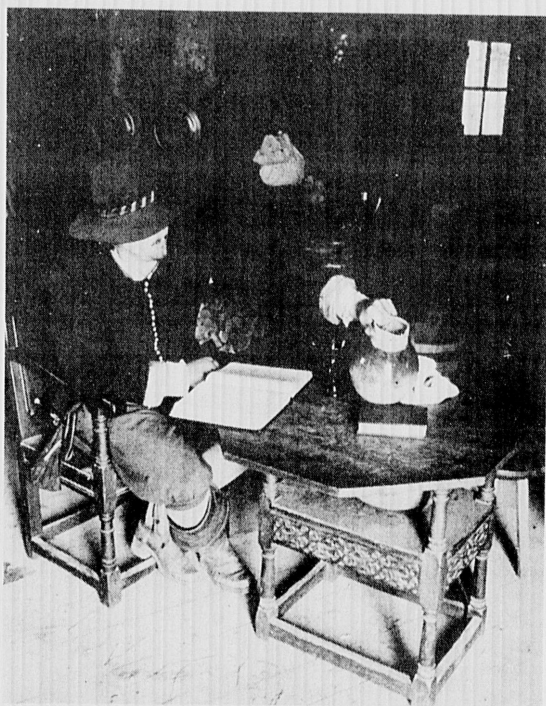

Roste Venison

Let your venison be per boyled, then make it tender and cast into it cold water, then larde it and roste it, and for sauce, take broth, vinegar, pepper, cloves and mace with a little salte, and boyle these together and so upon your venison serve it.

Partridge, I.

The Good Huswives Handmaide for the Kitchen (1594).

This simple recipe calls for boiling the meat until almost done, then cooling and larding it. The sauce is made with some reduced broth from the boiling.

To Boile Onions

Take a good many onions and cut them in four quarters, set them on the fire in as much water as you think will boyle them tender, and when they be clean skimmed, put in a good many of small raisons, halfe a spoonfull of grose pepper, a good peece of sugar, and a little salte, and when the onions be through boyled, beat the yolke of an egge with vergious and put into your pot and so serve it upon suppes. If you will, poch egges and lay upon them.

Dawson, T.

The Good Huswife's Jewell (1507).

This recipe for boiled onions, seasoned with raisins, coarsely ground pepper, sugar and salt, is thickened in the period manner with raw yolk. The idea of adding poached eggs on the onions and on the toasts might please the British cook even today.

Cornbread

"Their bread also they make of the homminy. So boyled, and mix their flower with it, cast it into a deep bason in which they form the loaf, and then turn it out upon the peel, and presently put it into the oven before it spreads abroad, the flower makes excellent puddens."

Josselyn, J.

New England's Rarieties (1672).

There are no detailed corn bread recipes from the early part of the 17th century. Josselyn's description gives us a suggestion of their practice.

Another colonial cornbread recipe used before the advent of baking powder and soda is: "scald a quart of milk, pour it to three cups of Indian meal, add a bit of butter. When cool, stir in four eggs, a great spoonful of flour and a half teaspoon of salt. Bake in small cups for twenty minutes."

The Plimoth Colony Cook Book, S. Erath, Ed. 1957.

Furmety

Take wheat and wet it, then beat it in a sack with the wash-beetle, being finely hulled and cleaned from the dust and hulls, boil it over night, and let it soak on a soft fire all night; then next morning take as much as will serve the turn, put it in a pipkin, pan or skillet, and put it a boiling in cream or milk, with mace, salt, whole cinamon, and saffron, or yolkes of eggs, boil it thick and serve it in a clean scowred dish, scrape on sugar, and trim the dish.

May, Robert.

The Accomplisht Cook (1660)

This is one of many recipes for this traditional harvest dish, which was mentioned in Thomas Morton's New English Canaan (1637) as being served in Plymouth in the 1620s. Ground whole wheat is used, and cooked up, much like rice pudding.

To Seeth Fresh Salmon

Take a little water and as much beere and salt, and put thereto parsley, time and rosemarie, and let all these boyle together; then put

'Blue Leaves' is compelling black comedy

House of Blue Leaves

REVIEW

During a summer spent by yours truly as assistant producer of the Falmouth Playhouse, a young, aspiring playwright made the weekly trek from New York City to court his girlfriend, the office secretary.

Six years later, his first play was produced Off-Broadway.

His name was John Guare and the play, The House of Blue Leaves.

Now, 15 years later, this black comedy, with four 1986 Tony Awards tucked safely away, is experiencing a hearty revival at the Broadway's Plymouth Theatre (236 W. 45th St.).

What makes Guare's devilish plot so unique is that his wild premise of an assassination attempt on Pope Paul VI during his historic visit to New York, which seemed frivolous and far-fetched fantasy at the same time, became an actuality years later and Guare suddenly became a prophet of sorts.

His far-out, zany comedy took on depth and truth: fiction became fact.

Ultimately, Blue Leaves proves to be an unsettling, disturbing tragic-comedy and a mix of cruelty and compassion. Performed by a notable ensemble and under Jerry Zaks' astute Tony Award-winning direction, the play carves a deep emotional impact.

The action opens on middle-aged Artie Shaughnessy (Jack Wallace) as he performs at an amateur night before a bored audience in the dingy El Dorado Bar and Grill.

Artie composes songs, all of which sound the same, and writes his own inane lyrics, like "Where is the devil in Evelyn/What is it doing in Angela's eyes?" Artie, a born loser and a dreamer of impossible delusions, works as a zoo keeper, feeding the animals.

Artie lives in a seedy little apartment in Sunnyside in the Queens (great set by Tony Award-winner Tony Walton), with barred windows and a fragmented ceiling, with the Triborough Bridge on the horizon.

It is Oct. 5, 1965, the day of the Pope's arrival, and Artie's downstairs neighbor and girlfriend, a tall, sexy, misguided blonde named Bunny Flings (Christine Baranski) has a friend holding two seats on Queens Blvd., near the cemetery, so that the pair can see the Pope's procession and maybe get a personal blessing.

Bunny met Artie when he accidentally stumbled into the woman's steamroom and he liked what he saw. With a Joan Rivers style of delivery and most of the laugh lines, Bunny has taken the Reader's Digest sex test and scored a "12."

Bunny sleeps with Artie but won't cook for him until after they're married (another hopeless illusion); after all, "you gotta keep some magic for the honeymoon!"

Bananas (entrancingly portrayed by Tony Award-winning Swoosie Kurtz), Artie's wife, weaves in and out of sanity but, for the most part, she is bananas.

Disheveled and unkempt in her ill-fitting, tattered cardigan with holes in the elbows, her slip hanging unevenly below her dress, her stockings down around her ankles, and her sloppy slippers, Bananas enjoys getting on her hands and knees and imitating animals. She cries about the way her life has turned out and, closeted in her room, pleads, "Please, for once, let my emotions come out!"

Bananas is subject to fits of hysteria, a pathetic figure who needs help.

Bunny pressures Artie to put Bananas away and Artie has checked out a hospital in Long Island, with no paved road and a tree covered with blue leaves.

The leaves proved to be a flock of birds and, swoosh, once flying away, left the tree bare.

Bunny dreams of taking Artie to Hollywood where Artie's old crony Billy Einhorn (Mike Nussbaum) is a big movie director, where Billy will engage Artie to compose for musical extravaganzas. She coerces Artie to phone Billy and the scene that follows is both crushing and heart wrenching.

Artie and Bananas' kookie son Ronnie (Jack Gwaltney), A.W.O.L. from the service, slips into the house to make a bomb, hoping to blow up the Pope. To further complicate matters, Billy's girlfriend Corrinna (Faye Grant) drops in.

Three nuns (including a novice who gorges herself on peanut butter) also barge in and when Corrinna offers two tickets to the Polo Grounds where the Pope will celebrate a mass, all hell breaks loose.

It becomes a three-ring circus when an M.P. and then impresario Billy join in, all of which leads to a devastating climax and the fury spawned of wasted lives and impossible dreams.

Mikado premieres at Colonial Dec. 16

The Stratford (Canada) Festival's sumptuous production of Gilbert & Sullivan's enchanting musical, The Mikado, will have its U.S. premiere Tuesday, Dec. 16, through Jan. 4, at the Colonial Theatre in Boston.

Staged by the celebrated Canadian director and choreographer Brian MacDonald, this visually stunning operetta opened in Stratford in June of 1982 to critical acclaim and sold-out houses, and went on to tour throughout Canada, being enthusiastically received in every theatre it played.

It also enjoyed a six-week engagement at the Old Vic Theatre in London, where it played to capacity houses nightly.

Set in G & S's distinctly British depiction of ancient Japan, The Mikado tunelessly tells the tale of Nanki-Poo, heir-apparent to the throne, and his farcical attempts to marry the fair maiden Yum-Yum.

Having been promised to the elderly Katisha, he flees his father's court.

Meanwhile, Yum-Yum's guardian Ko-Ko poses another threat to the longed-for union, as he wishes to marry Yum-Yum himself. Adorned with color and musical magic, this comic romance of love, chivalry and concealed identities is as popular now as it was at its world premiere in London 101 years ago.

The original Stratford cast of The Mikado brings together an ensemble of 28 energetic and multi-talented performers, including Eric Donkin as the infamous Lord High Executioner Ko-Ko, Richard McMillan as the deliciously outrageous Pooh-Bah and Marie Baron as the demure heroine, Yum-Yum.

Other members of the ensemble include Joy Thompson-Allen, Stephen Beamish, Timothy Cruickshank, Aggie C. Elliot, Glori Gage, (See page 15)

Top, John Keane and Eric Donkin in The Mikado, opening Dec. 16 at Boston's Colonial Theatre; I'm Not Rappaport stars Judd Hirsch and Cleavon Little, opens Nov. 28 at Colonial Theatre.

Horoscope

For The Week of
Nov. 30 to Dec. 6, 1986

By GINA

For more complete forecast, read indications for your Ascendant sign plus Birth sign. To find your Ascendant sign, count ahead from Birth sign the number of signs indicated.

Time of Birth	Probable Ascendant is:
4 to 6 a.m.	Same as birth sign
6 to 8 a.m.	First sign following
8 to 10 a.m.	Second sign following
10 to Noon	Third sign following
Noon to 2 p.m.	Fourth sign following
2 to 4 p.m.	Fifth sign following
4 to 6 p.m.	Sixth sign following
6 to 8 p.m.	Seventh sign following
8 to 10 p.m.	Eighth sign following
10 to Midnight	Ninth sign following
Midnight to 2 a.m.	Tenth sign following
2 to 4 a.m.	Eleventh sign following

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Stick with the familiar rather than new, untrodden paths. Let those in authority know about your goals and ambitions. You can put together parts of a puzzle now and someone could help you resolve your previous doubts and confusion.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Don't hold back your thoughts, speak out in matters of love and romance. In a showdown with an important person in your life be tactful, low-key and considerate for best results. Try to steer clear of troubled situations.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Give yourself and others some space to avoid conflict and make concessions to mate or partner. Don't take an "important other" for granted. Protect yourself financially, define your terms and don't fall for a sob story.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — A matter you thought settled may require more work and could involve a change of residence. Play it cool, maintain a low profile and a wait-and-see attitude. Don't let people or commitments from the past upset you emotionally.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Accept a gesture from someone who is trying to create more harmony in the relationship. Don't get involved in a confusing situation — play the role of observer. Be discreet about a new opportunity and don't talk about it yet.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Don't worry, you can overcome the obstacles in a romantic relationship and restore harmony. Take advantage of a good opportunity to make some money. Streamline your work techniques and build your prestige by showing your talents.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Your prestige should increase now and your past efforts will earn admiration. You may meet someone whose style impresses you — cultivate this important relationship, accept social invitations and enjoy holiday parties.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — You can relax a bit about your money situation but don't stop being vigilant. Bring family members together for social fun — it will strengthen ties. A relationship that has been strained can heal and be better than before.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — You can make some new beginnings now and express yourself creatively — look your best and dress the part! Curb tendency toward extravagance when shopping. Play the role of peacemaker at a family gathering.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Someone from the past may reappear and you must decide whether to renew the relationship or not. Focus your energies and you can overcome a big block to your progress. Regarding finances, don't expect something for nothing.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Make holiday plans but keep a close eye on your budget. If a secret meeting would cause gossip or compromise you, turn it down. Rely on your timing and judgment which are excellent now and confidently move ahead.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Don't cut corners now — there are no shortcuts to success! The way to settle a dispute is with compromise and exceptional diplomacy. In another matter curb feelings of self-doubt, stand up for yourself and your principles.

What To Visit

Native plants used

in your salmon, and make your broth sharp with some vinegar.

Partridge, J.
The Good Huswife's Handmaide for the Kitchin (1594).

We will substitute cod or sea bass for the salmon. Make the poaching broth as stated, simmer your fish which, if large, should be cut through to the bone with parallel vertical cuts about $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch apart, as if one was slicing bread but not so as to break or separate the fish. When the fish is done, reduce some of the broth and add a little vinegar.

To Boyle a Duck with Turneps

Take her first and put her into potte with stewed broth, then take persley and sweete hearbs and chop them, and per boyle the roots very well in an other pot, then put unto them sweete butter, synanome, ginger, grosse pepper, and whole mace, and so season it with salt, and serve it upon soppes.

Dawson, T.
The Good Huswife's Jewell
Pt. I. (1587).

The combination of duck and turnips is quite popular and can be found in several sources. The turnips were boiled separately, and added to the duck in the stewed broth (stock) and chopped herbs; parsley, thyme, chervil, bay, and marjoram. Butter, cinnamon, ginger, coarsely ground pepper and the whole mace is added, the seasoning is corrected with salt and it is served on soppes (piece of toast or dried bread).

To Bake a Turkey or a Capon

Bone the turkey but not the capon; par boyle them and sticke cloves in their breasts; lard them and season them well with pepper and salt, and put them in a deep coffin with the breast downward and store of butter.

Murrell, J.
A New Booke of Cookerie
(1615).

Such large pies as this one, containing a whole baked turkey were quite common. The pie shell ("coffin") both served as the baking dish and the storage utensil. Some could be eaten, others were just a thick flour and water paste shell that would be discarded when the meat was consumed. Butter was added both for cooking (before the pie was closed) and more poured in afterward if the pie was to be kept and used cold.

If you wish to roast your turkey, here is a good period sauce:

Sauce for a Turkie

Take faire water and set it over the fire, then slice good store of Cranberries might have been used in 'puddings in the belly,' which we know as stuffings, but not in their familiar jelly or preserves.

onions and put into it, and also pepper and salt, and good store of the gravy that comes from the turkie, and boyle them very well together; then put to it a few fine crumbs of grated bread to thicken it; a very little sugar and some vinegar, and so serve it up with the turkie.

Markham, Geervase.
Country Contentments
(1614).

"Gravy" is the drippings from the bird.

Jerusalem Artichokes

These roots are dressed divers waies; some boil them in water, and after stew them with sacke and butter, adding a little ginger; others bake them in pies, putting marrow, dates, ginger, raisons of the sun, sack, &c. Other some other way, as they are led by their skill in cookerie.

John Goodyer, quoted in Gerard J.
The Herbal (1633).

Jerusalem artichokes (sold as "sun chokes" &c.) today grow wild in Plymouth, but were a recent introduction and fad in England. Sack or sherry is unlikely in Plymouth 1621, but not impossible.

A Swanne or Goose Pudding

Stirre the bloud of a swanne, or goose, steepe fine oatmeale in milke, nutmeg, pepper, sweet herbes, minst suit; mingle all together with rosewater, lemmon pils minst fine, coriander seeds, a little quantitie thereof. And this is a rule both for grated bread-pudding or any other pudding that is made to a swanne, or a goosenecke.

This recipe, while inappropriate in its coriander, lemon peel and rosewater, should give one an idea of the stuffings of the time.

The Ancient New England Standing Dish

But the Huswives manner is to slice them when ripe, and cut them into dice, and to fill a pot with them of two or three Gallons, and stew them upon a gentle fire a whole day, and as they sink, they fill again with fresh Pompions, not putting any liquor to them; and when it is stew'd enough, it will look like bak'd Apples; this they Dish putting Butter to it, and a little Vinegar, (with some Spice, as Ginger, &c.) which makes it tart like an Apple, and so serve it up to be eaten with Fish or Flesh: It provokes Drin extremely and is very windy.

Joselyn, J.
New England's Rarities
(1672).

This recipe for "pompions" or pumpkins is one of the few detailed New England recipes that survives. It appears to have been in the same tradition as the other recipes we have been citing and almost identical to a recipe for turnips in Murrell's A Book of Cookerie. We might suggest adding a little sugar, which was considered a seasoning, rather than an ingredient.

Furmety

"The nine Worthies had a great Feast made, and the furmety pott was provided." 1628 (Morton, Thomas, New England Canaan 1637). The nine worthies were the Pilgrim leaders.

Pumpkin

"We have pumpkin at morning and pumpkin at noon. If it was not for pumpkin we should be undone." From "The Forefathers Song" composed about the year 1630.

Roast Fowl

"Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a special manner rejoice together."

Heartbreak House welcomes season at Huntington

George Bernard Shaw's poignant comedy, Heartbreak House, will welcome in the holidays as the second production of the Huntington Theatre Company's season. The play previews Nov. 29 and 30 and Dec. 2, opens Wednesday, Dec. 3, and will through Dec. 21.

Set on the eve of World War I, Heartbreak House is a funny, rueful elegy for the passing of an era, filled with Shaw's characteristic humor and insight.

The action follows the wide-ranging debates and shifting personal alliances that arise when a charming, eccentric group of characters gathers for a party in the country home of a retired sea captain.

Shaw's deeply felt masterpiece about their lively evening explores the undercurrents of a society in transition from pre-world war innocence to the turmoil of ideas and ideals triggered by the onset of the first world war.

The cast will feature the return of Tanny McDonald as Hesione and Jack Ryland as Hector, and the debuts with the company of Jonathan Farwell as Captain Shotover and Marilyn Caskey as Ellie Dunn.

Also appearing in featured roles will be Joyce Worsley as Nurse Guinness and William Denis as Alfred Mangan, as well as Huntington veterans Munson Hicks as Randall, Etain O'Malley as Ariadne, Louis Turenne as Mazzini Dunn, and Joseph Costa as Billy.

Directing Heartbreak House is Edward Gilbert, who was at the helm of the Huntington productions of The Misanthrope and Plenty.

Previews are Nov. 29 and Dec. 2 at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Nov. 30 at 7 p.m. Regular performances will open Wednesday, Dec. 3 at 7 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. (except Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 2). Prices range from $10 to $24.50. Call 266-3913.

Andy Williams Christmas show at Wang

His voice was declared a "national treasure" by President Reagan. His Christmas concert is one of the most successful to hit the stage today. On Friday, Nov. 28, The Andy Williams Christmas Show, starring Andy Williams, lights up the Wang Center for the Performing Arts with two performances, 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

For decades, Andy Williams' name has been synonymous with Christmas. His Emmy Award-winning television specials have touched the hearts of millions. This live concert tour provides an extra-special holiday celebration for thousands of fans, old and young alike.

As part of a 20 city tour, The Andy Williams Christmas Show opens the day after Thanksgiving in Boston. Tickets are $24.50, $22.50, and $19.50. Call 1-800-682-8080.

A.R.T. announces cast for opener

The American Repertory Theatre is in rehearsal for its first production of the 1986/87 season, Luigi Pirandello's Tonight We Improvise, adapted and directed by A.R.T. artistic director Robert Brustein, with video sequences directed by the award-winning filmmaker Frederick Wiseman.

The mounting, which opens the A.R.T.'s eighth season in residence at Harvard's Loeb Drama center in Cambridge, begins previews on Friday, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m., with the official opening on Thursday, Dec. 4 at 8 p.m.

The cast features members of the expanded resident company.

New to the acting troupe this season are Harriet Harris, most recently featured as Titania in A Midsummer Night's Dream at the Pepsico Summerfare in Purchase, who will play the role of Mommima La Croce; Nestor Serrano, who portrayed Redlight in Cuba and His Teddy Bear at the Public Theater, and on Broadway, performing the role of Rico Verri; and Pamela Gien, who joined the company for their West Coast tour, playing Nene la Croce.

Returning for the season are two actors formerly associated with the company in New Haven: Elizabeth Franz, whose work in New York includes the Broadway production of Brighton Beach Memoirs and Isabelle Monk, who has performed on Broadway.

Also returning to the company is one of its founding members, Richard Grusin, who has performed in nine A.R.T. productions over the years.

New company member Ken Howard and senior actor Jeremy Geidt, along with many of the company mentioned above, will perform in the second production, Arthur Kopit's End of the World (With Symposium to Follow), directed by Richard Foreman, which begins previews on Friday, Dec. 5.

Subscriptions to the six-play season are available by calling the box office, 547-8300.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

Alice Aronow's charcoal, ink and pencil drawing of a Sioux Ghost Dance Shirt is a prizewinner in the Cambridge Art Association's juried exhibition, Black and White.

'Black & White' has range

Watching a well-made black and white film in the age of technicolor movies and color t.v. almost invariably triggers a couple of responses:

- color is not missed;
- absence of color enhances visual impact and contributes to meaning.

So it is with the Cambridge Art Association's all-media juried exhibition, Black And White.

The variety of expressive attitude and approach ranges from Betty Fuchs' still, quiet photographs to Debi Milligan's lively lithogram to David Colombo's drawings — wiggly and linear and refreshingly witty views of the American landscape.

Without the interaction of color relationships, the graphic force of line is allowed full play, and artists Juliet Kepes, Sylvia Brodsky, Marge Schwarz, Roger Kizak and Bernie Klein use it with assurance and the kind of control that makes drawing look easy.

In Brodsky's Jazz Improvisations, the angular ink lines change directions, cross and interrupt one another with taut, but unforced rhythm. Kizak's Portuguese Princess is a boat formed by the thickly fluid line of acrylic gel. She floats on among other happy tugboats, all formed by the same jaunty line.

Smudges soften the paper's white surface and add to the subtlety of Schwarz' Hang It Up, where the blackest crayon lines push back and forth to describe hanging garments that are alive with apparently imminent motion.

The weight and mass of Adrienne Bortell's alabaster sculpture, Centering, are countered by graceful curves allowing light and air to become part of its form. Bortell's piece, Barbara Barss' soapstone Seaform #10 and Ann Vaughn's alabaster Cumulus comprise a handsome triumvirate of free-standing sculptures among the two-dimensional hanging works.

The figurative oil paintings of Gordon Green, Carol Buchman and prizewinner George Bard Jr. make the most of value range and interplay, which, along with strong composition contribute to spatial relationships and force of image.

Finally, Judith Aronson's photograph of two figures backed by the English countryside, lighted by long, broad rays of a friendly sun, and laughing heartily with one another, projects the warmth and spirit and lack of pretense that characterizes very much of this exhibition, on view through Dec. 3 at 25R Lowell St., Cambridge, opposite Mt. Auburn Hospital.

Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Call 876-0246.

Lehtola at Winchester

Designer of the Cambridge Art Association's Black And White exhibition announcement was member Martha Lehtola, whose colored pencil works are exhibited in the Winchester Public Library through December.

Building up color and controlling light and form through delicate hatch marks, Lehtola depicts folds of cloth that flow without boundaries across the surfaces of her paper.

A series of familiar striped dishtowels have a fullness of hue that surprises in the context of the artist's light touch and the medium's pale chroma. Astute design and use of the white of the paper contribute to the punch of these works.

The Winchester Public Library is located at 80 Washington St. Call 729-3770 for hours.

Exhibits & Events

Larger-than-life

Boston — through Jan. 2, 1987. Extramurals: Larger-Than-Life Works By New England Artists, organized by the DeCordova Museum in collaboration with the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, explores the impact of scale on imagery and the transformation of ideas to epic proportions. The exhibition is at The Federal Reserve Bank Gallery, across from South Station, open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. A reception in honor of the artists and open to the public without charge is from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4.

Rizzi's Sunday talk

Boston — Nov. 30. Marking the conclusion of the exhibit, Engame: Reference and Simulation in Recent Painting and Sculpture, artist and educator Ron Rizzi will present his final gallery talk, "Perspectives on CURRENTS: The work of Clifton Peacock, Rosamond Wolff Purcell and Stephen Jay Gould." The talk takes place at 2 p.m. at the Institute of Contemporary Art, 955 Boylston St., and is free with gallery admission. Call 266-5152.

Ashcan School

Framingham — through Jan. 4. The Eight: A New Spirit In American Art is an exhibition of work by artists of The Ashcan School, whose 1908 landmark exhibit in New York heralded the beginning of an independent American art. Over 50 works are on display at the Danforth Museum of Art, 123 Union Ave. Museum hours are noon to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 1 to 4:30 p.m. weekends. Call 620-0050.

New Decordova exhibits

Lincoln — through Jan. 4. The DeCordova Museum exhibits Saints And Sinners: Contemporary Paintings To Religion, in various mediums by 16 contemporary artists; From The Wild, an exploration of forms in nature through mixed media drawings and 3-dimensional works by Carolyn Evans; a juried exhibition by the museum's students; and of special interest, Adam Cvi-janovic's large exterior mural, Construction Fence, on the museum's north wall. Call 259-8355 for museum hours and fees.

Two from Latin America

Boston — through Dec. 13. Aleman Gallery exhibits figurative art works by Salvadorian artist Cesar Menendez and Mexican artist Antonio Ramirez. Located at 30 Newbury St., the gallery is open 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Call 536-4978.

Musicals, drama celebrate season

(From page 3)

TBS presents holiday musical double-bill

Theatre by the Sea will present a holiday musical double-bill, "The Gift of the Magi" and "The Diary of Adam and Eve," Dec. 11-28, at the theatre at 125 Bow St., in downtown Portsmouth, N.H.

The celebration of the yule season is brought to life through music with these two one-act plays.

"The Gift of the Magi," from the original story by O. Henry with adaptation, music and lyrics by Peter Ekstrom, is a bit of tuneful magic about unselfish love and caring. The true meaning of Christmas comes to light as a husband and wife share the holiday together.

"The Diary of Adam and Eve," based on a story by Mark Twain, with music and lyrics by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, tells the story of the first two people in the world with wit, nostalgia and happiness. In the holiday spirit, this play gives the understanding of the origin of human nature and love.

Regular performance times are Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m., and a 3 p.m. matinee and 7:30 evening showing on Sunday. On Friday, Dec. 12, there will be a 12 noon student matinee, and on Friday, Dec. 26, a 2 p.m. matinee.

On Saturdays, Dec. 13, 20 and 27, there will be a 4 p.m. matinee. Additional matinees are being planned and group rates are available for all performances except Saturday nights.

All seats for preview performances are $12. Regular ticket prices range from $15 to $19 and there is a $2 deduction off the regular ticket price for children 12 and under.

For reservations, or a complete listing, call (603) 431-6660, Tuesday through Saturday from noon to 9 p.m.

New at Goodspeed musical

For the holiday season Goodspeed-at-Chester/The Norma Terris Theatre will present a new family musical, "A House In The Woods," Dec. 9-Jan. 4.

"A House In The Woods," which will appeal to the adults and children alike, is set in a Tennessee hilltown where a beguiling group of renegade orphans, ages 7 to 15, have run away from their orphanage to hide in an old miners' shack.

A young lawyer, engaged by the orphanage to find and return the children, falls in love with their protector, the 19-year-old Anabel, leading to a surprise happy ending for all!

With a marvelous blend of gospel, folk and Broadway tunes, the score provides a warm backdrop for the fast-paced plot.

Tickets may be ordered by calling (203) 873-8668.

Performance times are Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m., Sunday at 5 p.m., and matinees Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. and Saturday at 2 p.m. Christmas week times vary.

Dickens Classic 'Christmas Carol' at Merrimack

"A Christmas Carol," the Charles Dickens holiday classic, will be presented by Lowell's Merrimack

Repertory Theatre, Dec. 12-27, in a new production that combines actors, props, music, children, and on-stage effects in a unique staging.

Dickens' novel has been newly re-adapted for the stage by Larry Carpenter, the Artistic Director of the American Stage Festival in Milford, N.H.

The production will be directed by Thomas Clewell, former stage manager at the Merrimack.

Theatre professionals have been working for several months with students from Lowell's Arts Magnet School, who will appear in the production. Ann Meyer of the Copley Square Ballet Company, and her staff, have been conducting ballet classes at the theatre. Linda Bisesti has concentrated on drama workshops for the students, and eight youngsters from this group will be selected to appear in the production.

The professional cast features Robin Chadwick, who returns to the Merrimack as Scrooge. Chadwick starred in the BBC TV serial of "The Brothers" and has performed in national and international repertory theatres.

Carl Heist will play Scrooge's nephew, Gary-Thomas Keating as Christmas Present, Tammy Richards as Christmas Future, Pat Dougan as Christmas Past, Richard Maynard as Bob Cratchit, William Miller as Marley's Ghost, and Alice White as Mrs. Cratchit.

Responsible for set design is Leslie Taylor, who created the sets for the 1985 season's opener "The School for Wives."

Handling costumes is Amanda Aldridge, MRT's resident costume designer. Light plan is by John Ambrosone, resident lighting designer at Merrimack.

Helene Desjarlais, Merrimack's

Administrative Director has developed study guides for both teachers and students to be used before and after attending school matinees, with at least one scheduled for each regular subscription production and ten for "A Christmas Carol."

Last season several bi-lingual classes attended the show and while enjoying the production, they were not able to understand the traditional Western holiday favorite.

As a result, Miss Desjarlais has had the guide translated into Cambodian, Laotian and Vietnamese with the assistance of the Lowell International Institute, which will be distributed to students by bi-lingual classroom teachers.

Evening performances are at 8 p.m. on Dec. 12-13, 19-20, and 26-27. Saturday matinees are at 2 p.m. on Dec. 13, 20 and 27. There are also 10 student matinees at 10:30 a.m. on Dec. 10-12, 15-19 and 22-23. Tickets are $5 for children and students, and $13 for general admission. For reservations, call the box office at (617) 454-3926.

The theatre is located in Liberty Hall, 50 East Merrimack St. in Lowell.

Dylan Thomas' Child's Christmas at Lyric Stage

For the 11th year, the Lyric Stage presents its holiday favorite, Dylan Thomas' warm remembrance of his childhood, "A Child's Christmas In Wales," opening at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 3.

Boston's oldest holiday tradition captures the magic of Christmas in a spirited foray into Dylan

Thomas' boyhood: his mischievous companions, curmudgeon uncles, a grandfather whose gift for storytelling steals Dylan's heart, and the unforgettable Auntie Hannah, who sings in the back yard "like a big busomed thrust."

The play is a colorful medley of songs, poetry, and comedy seen through the eyes of a young boy who unravels for us the magical and unforgettable tapestry of a child's Christmas.

The play runs Wednesdays through Fridays at 8 p.m. Saturdays at 5 and 8 p.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m., through December 23.

Ticket prices range from $9-12, depending on the day, and may be reserved at 742-8703. Tickets can also be charged by calling 497-1118.

The Lyric Stage is located at 54 Charles Street, just off Beacon Hill.

Trinity Rep presents classic

The 10th annual production of Trinity Repertory Company's holiday classic, "A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens, adapted by Adrian Hall and Richard Cumming, with original music and lyrics by Richard Cumming, begins Friday, Nov. 28, through Dec. 27, in the Upstairs Theatre.

Performances are Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m., Sundays at 7 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. In addition, special performances have been added.

Ticket prices are $16-$23 and $10 for children under 12 matinees. For reservations call (401) 351-4242. The theatre is at 201 Washington St., Providence, R.I.

*'Twas the month before Christmas
and money was tight
I was checking the Want Ads
each day and each night.
I could file, sort mail and
do some light typing too,
But I wanted to work til
Christmas was through.
I signed up at Staff Builders
and as quick as could be
They found the right job
and there was no fee.
Now I work when I want to
and have time to be free.
And I've plenty of money.
MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ME!!*

PRICE IT RIGHT

Human nature is predictable and there is a better than even chance that you'll put the wrong selling price on your home if you set the price on the property yourself.

You may price it far above its fair market value because of sentimental attachment, expenditures you have made, or heeding a well-meaning friend's advice. A home remaining on the market for months due to over pricing frequently becomes a White Elephant, it eventually sells for a much lower figure than it would have brought originally, had it been priced realistically.

On the other hand, you might under-price it because of your unfamiliarity with the local market. That would be financial folly. Your safest bet is to list your home with a realtor who will help you price it correctly from the start and sell it for the highest and best price with the least amount of inconvenience to you and your family.

DESIGN/BUILD Construction & Remodeling

"Twas the month before Christmas,
Santa sat by the fire
He needed more elves,
But didn't know who to hire
He sipped his hot chocolate with a sigh of dismay
So much work to do in so very few days!
Then what to his tired old eyes should appear,
But this week's "What's Up" section and he got an idea!
He opened it up with a jolly Ho! Ho! Ho!
He dialed 729-8100!
"The kids are so good" he said "So few have been bad!"
Saint Nick had to place a "HOLIDAY HELP WANTED" AD!
With each tiny applicant Santa's confidence grew,
As he happily conducted each elf interview!
His inventory grew as they stocked all his shelves,
His workshop now bustling with busy elves!
Santa sat back and counted the days till his ride,
So relieved that he'd called CENTURY CLASSIFIEDS!

Good News for the Weekend Mechanic

Audi 5000S Sedan

If you do your own repair work, do the job right with genuine Audi replacement parts. First of all, they fit, so if you take your Audi apart Saturday morning, you know the parts you bought will get you back on the road without another trip. Second, every part has a 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty. At Audi, we care as much about your car as you do.
